Smith Joins Roosevelt Fight

Today

What About Roosevelt?
Attempted Murder
Hurricane, Earthquake
Birthplace, Rockefeller, Homes

By Arthur Brisbane

EACH DAY ten million Americans ask ten million others, "What do you think of Governor Roosevelt?" They will be interested in the opinion of one voter, W. R. Hearst, who writes from Los Angeles:

"Mr. Roosevelt is going to be elected surely, and during the first four years of his administration we are going to get back such good times that he will probably be re-elected.

"Roosevelt is not a radical. He has not done anything radical in the four years he has been governor of New York, and that is the length of his presidential term.

"Roosevelt is simply honest and, of course, that frightens the high financiers more than radicalism."

That last paragraph contains political wisdom. It is easy to deal with a man, conservative or radical, who is not honest. He "listens to reason." The difficulty is with the honest man that will not be bought or coerced.

Judge Webster Thayer sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti to death five years ago, after they had been convicted of murder in the first degree.

Yesterday Judge Thayer's house was wrecked by a dynamite explosion, his wife and a maid injured. Judge Thayer refused to accuse or suspect "any individual or any organization," saying, "I should hate to think that because a man does his duty before mankind and God this penalty is his."

There is always a possibility of mistake, and that is one of the things that makes capital punishment so vile.

But a cowardly attempt at secret murder, risking the lives of innocent women, could not benefit the two dead men or honor their memory.

Thousands are homeless in Puerto Rico, many dead, following one of the hurricanes born so often in those waters. The victims are natives, living in houses poorly constructed, unable to resist the power of the wind.

Nature shows no favoritism, and while the Puerto Rico hurricane was raging an earthquake 3000 miles away in Greece killed more than 100 and hurt many others.

The birthplace of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., a 54-acre farm in Tioga County, New York, has been sold for unpaid taxes, says the Associated Press. The amount involved was only $47.25. Mr. Rockefeller's modesty apparently makes him indifferent in this matter. The owner who let the farm go for taxes should get it back.

Writers of history far enough away from John D. Rockefeller to get a clear view of his work will tell the world what Rockefeller means. On the remains of the old house where he was born, or on its site, there will be a tablet reading, "Here was born John D. Rockefeller, in the year 1839. Starting with nothing, his intelligence and industry enabled him to accumulate hundreds of millions, which he and his son spent promoting education, fighting disease, endowing scientific research, restoring and preserving beautiful ancient monuments. He proved that unlimited competition is wasteful, and thus rendered a service even greater to mankind than in the giving of so many millions."

Seven wealthy towns contend for Homer dead,
Through which the living Homer begged his bread.

Homer's birthplace, according to the Associated Press, is finally located in Smyrna, interesting city of Asia Minor. Greeks had it in the ancient days, the Allies gave it back to Greece after the war. Kemal Pasha, powerful Turk, said to Greece: "Let's see you keep it," took it away and has it now. If it be proved that Homer was born there, it should help the tourist business.

Some learned gentlemen say there wasn't any individual Homer, but that several gentlemen wrote "Homer's" poems.

The Smyrna idea is not new. In ancient days proud Smyrna citizens put Homer's face on their coins, and showed you the cave in which he composed his poems, near the source of the river Meles.

In Italy, according to Mr. Knickerbocker, who has been talking with Mussolini and learning a lot, workers are not allowed to strike and wages, already low, are cut 30 per cent. BUT there are few out of work and there are compensations.

For instance, the workers, arranging a festival, have good wines for 10 cents a full quart, the best wine for 15 cents. Workers of Rome can see Greta Garbo, three cents admission for adults, two cents for children. You can't do that here and you can't get good wine for 10 cents a full quart.

What you get for your money is as important as how much money you get.

AL TO PLEDGE SUPPORT AT CONVENTION

Will Nominate Lehman; Governor Also to Speak; Tammany in Line for Ticket

New York, Sept. 28—Alfred E. Smith intends to nominate Lieut.-Gov. Lehman for governor at the Democratic state convention next week. He also plans to indorse the Roosevelt-Garner ticket and to announce his readiness to participate in the campaign.

Democratic leaders became certain of these developments as they completed plans for their conclave, at which Gov. Roosevelt, who has announced Lehman as his choice for the nomination, is expected to deliver an address.

The Democratic convention will be held in Albany on Monday and Tuesday, at the same time the Republican State convention is in session in Buffalo.

TAMMANY HALL IN LINE

Smith's plans as to Lehman, leaders said, reflect not only his desire to aid the man he placed in politics and who contributed $800,000 to various Smith campaigns, but also the changed attitude of Tammany Hall and John H. McCooey, now advocates of Lehman.

Although Lehman's nomination appears assured, there is the prospect of a fight on the floor. The O'Connell brothers, of Albany, insist they will nominate Mayor Thacher, of Albany, for governor, and will not take second place on the ticket. Atty.-Gen. Bennett and Comptroller Tremaine are quite likely to be renominated.

It appears certain the battle within the Republican camp will be carried to the floor.

DAVISON GROUP ASKS AID

Supporters of F. Trubee Davison for the gubernatorial nomination expected to demand convention action in their fight against the nomination of Col. William J. Donovan.

Included in the Republican field for the nomination is Mayor Marvin of Syracuse. It is understood, however, that he is being pressed to accept the nomination for attorney-general. Speaker McGinnies and Majority Leader Fearon of the Senate are considered less likely possibilities for the gubernatorial nomination than a few weeks ago.

Lake Quits Bible Post at Harvard

Prof. Kirsopp Lake, world-renowned authority on Biblical history, today resigned as Winn professor of ecclesiastical history and all connection with Harvard Theological school.

Prof. Lake's resignation is the result of a drive led by Bishop William Lawrence and Rev. Willard L. Sperry, dean of the theological school, to oust him because of his recent Reno divorce.

The resignation was announced by the Harvard publicity bureau in a terse statement. Prof. Lake, the statement said, will continue to give courses under the faculty of arts and sciences.

O'Neil freed himself from the machine and swam to safety, but a passenger, George Fenton, 36, of Falmouth st., was trapped in the sunked machine and drowned.

DEATH TOLL IN STORM GROWS

San Juan, Sept. 28 (INS)—With all relief agencies mobilized, Puerto Rico today faced the task of undoing the damage wrought by a hurricane that swept over the island, killing hundreds and causing property losses running into millions of dollars.

Gov. James R. Beverly told International News Service the known dead already reached 200 persons and that 1000 at least had been injured. He said he expected the figures to increase.

RECALL STORM OF 1928

Residents surveying the scene recalled the famous storm of San Felipe in 1928, when the island was reduced to utter desolation.

In sorrow they named this new hurricane the San Eusepio. For it was on the feast day of this saint that the storm first began its fatal journey from the equator.

Efforts were begun immediately under the guidance of an emergency committee to find food shelter and medical attention for the homeless and injured. Reports filtering in from remote centers indicated the task would be gigantic.

In Fajardo and Tao Alta, it was said, few if any houses were left standing. The same fate was reported suffered by many smaller inland towns.

Series Fans Cheer as Band and Sun Come Out of Hiding

New York, Sept. 28—Promptly at 11 a. m. today the gates for the $1.10 rush seats for the opening game of the World Series were opened, and 12,000 of the faithful who had braved a stormy night, rushed into the park. All scrambled for choice locations in the rightfield bleachers, known locally as "Ruthville" because of the number of balls the great Babe deposits there for his patrons during the course of a season.

* * *

Soon after the gates opened, the Seventh Regiment band took its stand, 75 brases, woods and drums strong, along the foul line beyond first base and tried to blow the mists away with breezy tunes, but without avail. After two short pieces, the natty boys in bluelsh gray retreated to the shelter of the stands until the mists cleared.

* * *

The playing field, with the basepaths, pitchers' and batters' boxes swathed in canvas, seemed in good condition as game time neared. From early morning laborers had struggled to save it from harm, constantly replacing the dirt along the lines of play with fresh loam and cinders.

* * *

The bleaches filled rapidly along toward noon. There had been a pessimistic report yesterday that the crowd would not exceed 40,000. Within twenty minutes after the gates opened, the right field stands were three-quarters filled, and the covered stands plentifully dotted with early comers.

Commissioner Landis took a look at the field about 11:30 a. m. It was drizzling at the time. Joe McCarthy, manager of the favored Yankees, was for calling the game off, but the white-

BULLETIN

Yankee Stadium, New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—A rain squall drove the Yankees and Cubs from the playing field at 1:20 p. m., as they were finishing their practices for the opening game of the World Series.

Play was called at 1:45.

Yankee Stadium, New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—The 1932 World Series made its debut here this afternoon. When the sun chased away the low-hanging clouds and glistened on a field that was rain-drenched except where protecting tarpaulins had been placed.

At 12:30, an hour before combat was to start, there were no more than 6000 persons in the gigantic stands. No waiting line outside, and estimates as to the probable attendance ranged between 30,000 and 35,000.

The opposing pitchers were Charley Ruffing for the Yanks and Guy Bush for the Cubs.

A 1 p. m. the sun started a hide-and-og-seek game with some newly-arrived dun-colored clouds and there was much looking up and speculating as to what might transpire.

CHEERS FOR BABE

The Yankees drew a few cheers when they went into fielding positions, with Babe Ruth getting quite a noisy reception in answer to his "Hello Pals" gesture.

Rain started to fall at 1:20 and all occupants of box seats and others who were in exposed sections of the stands hurried into the inner recesses of the Stadium.

The squad of workmen hurried into the infield and spread tarpauling over the pitcher's box.

Meanwhile another crew of laborers whitewashed the baseline.

The shower increased in intensity at 1:22, and tarpaulins were spread along the base lines, upon the infield and also over the plate.

All of the box seats were vacant at this time, the original occupants having taken parking space away from the rain.

HAVANA UNDER MARTIAL LAW AFTER 4 KILLINGS

ROADS CLOSED IN HUNT FOR ASSASSINS

Fliers Patrol Coast to Cut Off Escape of Political Revolt Leaders

Havana, Sept. 28 (AP)—Martial law prevailed in Havana today as police and governmental agencies sought assassins who yesterday murdered four of Cuba's prominent political leaders by American gangster methods.

President Machado explained the decree of martial law was promulgated to prevent possible reprisals by friends of the four slain men.

Dr. Clemente Vazquez Bello, friend of Machado, president of the Senate, and prospective candidate for the presidency of Cuba, died in a rain of machine gun bullets from a passing automobile.

CAR OWNER HUNTED

Shortly afterward three brothers, Gonzalo, Guillermo and Leopoldo Freyre de Andrade, political opponents of Dr. Vazquez Bello and the Machado regime, were slain in their home. Investigators described their killing as an act of reprisal by friends of the dead Senate chief.

Police were seeking Agustin Alvarez, who, they said, was the owner of the car that bore the machine gunners. They arrested the proprietor and an employe of the suburban garage where they said the auto was kept, but declined to say whether they had learned anything about the owner. In the car they found six rifles, four pistols, a revolver, and a quantity of ammunition.

ALL ROADS CLOSED

Rep. Miguel Angel Aguilar, who participated in the unsuccessful revolt against the Machado Government in August, last year, was wounded four times in a third shooting.

Police closed all roads leading out of Havana in hope of capturing the slayers. Airplanes began to patrol the coast looking for small boats in which they might try to escape.

THREE HURT IN DANVERS FIRE

Three firemen were seriously injured today when they were buried under a falling wall in a general alarm fire which destroyed a barn on the dairy farm of Felix Lubin at 238 Andover st., Danvers Highlands.

Other firemen dragged the injured to safety and they were taken to Hunt Memorial hospital.

The injured are Capt. Ralph Pitman, Arthur Tufts and James V. Madison, who was a member of the Byrd North Pole Expedition.

The flames destroyed autos, trucks, farm implements and a large quantity of hay, but all livestock was rescued. The loss was estimated at $7000. The cause was not determined.

ROOSEVELT AND NORRIS MEET IN NEBRASKA

Democratic Nominee Invades More Friendly Territory of West; Acclaimed in Colorado

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 28 (INS)—Gov. Roosevelt carried his appeal for the progressive support of the country into friendly territory today.

From California where he pointedly courted the support of Senator Johnson's friends, through New Mexico, where he went out of his way to welcome the progressive support of Senator Cutting, the Democratic nominee today invaded Nebraska, the home of the most insurgent of all Republican insurgents, Senator Norris.

FOR NEW SQUARE DEAL

Senator Norris has frankly bolted the Republican national ticket and is openly supporting Roosevelt, just as four years ago he supported Smith.

Late today, at McCook, Neb., Gov. Roosevelt will stop to pay his respects to the veteran Nebraska insurgent. A meeting has been arranged there at which Roosevelt will publicly voice his appreciation of Norris' support.

Twenty years ago, Theodore Roosevelt appealed to the country on his famous pledge of the "square deal." Franklin Roosevelt has campaigned the same territory during the past fortnight on the self-described issue of "the new deal."

In New Mexico, he declared "there is no room in this country for two parties, both conservative." The voters, he said, must take their choice between "a liberal party," which he represents, or "a conservative party," which he described as bringing the country to its present state.

G. O. P. FAILS UTTERLY

Here in Colorado Springs last night, he addressed an audience of thousands, and his extemporaneous speech was again directed to the independent vote.

"Our fight," he said, "is not against the rank and file of the Republican party. Our fight is directed against the leadership of the Republican party, which has failed utterly to measure up to the needs of the present hour."

Tomorrow will find the Roosevelt train traversing Iowa, with a major speech scheduled at Sioux City tomorrow night. There the [illegible] discuss the tariff at some length, particularly with application to the farm problem.

13 WITNESSES REPUDIATE DOHERTY

Ballot Fraud Plot Hearing Reopens in Worcester City Hall

Worcester, Sept. 28—Hearing on the nomination papers of Patrick H. Doherty, paid candidate for Governor of the "Prohibition Repeal Party," was resumed in City Hall here today with 70 witnesses ready to testify that their signatures were either forged or obtained by misrepresentation.

The first 13 witnesses said they had never heard of Doherty and the few who admitted their signatures said they thought they were signing a petition for prohibition repeal.

HIGGINS LEADS PROTEST

Thep rotest over Doherty's papers was made by Representative John J. Higgins of Boston and he was represented by Atty. James W. Sullivan, who says he will try to prove that Doherty was put into the field by friends of Lieut.-Gov. Williadm S. Youngman for the purpose of taking away votes from Gov. Joseph B. Ely.

Doherty, a retired Avon machinist, admitted at a previous session of the hearing in Boston, that he signed his nomination papers in the sub-cellar of a Boston garage on payment of $1000 and a promise of $100 a month during the campaign.

RUSHTON NAMED

Doherty was induced to run, he testified, by a friend he would not name, and by Samuel Rushton, known as "Attleboro Sam," said to be a backer of Lt.-Gov. William S. Youngman.

Witnesses at previous hearings also testified that Samuel Le Vine, a Brighton attorney, relegate to the Republican state convention which will be held Friday and friend of Youngman, had distributed Doherty's nomination papers in Lawrence.

James F. Manninv, another political ally of Lt.-Gov. Youngman, and chauffeur for him on political campaigns, was said to have distributed Doherty's papers in Cambridge.

"MAN FROM ATTLEBORO"

Among witnesses summoned is one Ernest Lutfy, who will state under oath, it is claimed, that he circulated most of the papers in this territory, that Doherty's name did not appear on them at the time, and that he was hired to distribute them by a "man from Attleboro."

Today's hearing comes on the heels of the hearing in Boston yesterday in which the ballot law commission disqualified William R. Ferry of Newton, prohibition candidate, shortly after the latter withdrew.

The disqualification was ordered after the commission was certain many signatures on Ferry's papers were invalid because of misrepresentation or forgery.

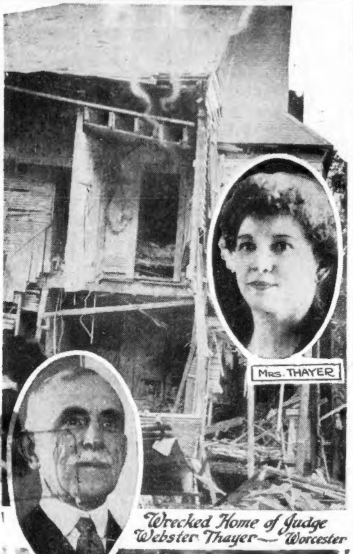
Bombing Laid to Radicals



State and City Police Investigate...

New violence was written into the turbulent history of the Sacco-Vanzetti case when the home of Judge Webster Thayer, in Worcester, was wrecked by a bomb. In 1927 Judge Thayer pronounced the death sentence on Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti for the killing of two men in a payroll robbery in Braintree and radicals throughout the world espoused the cause of the doomed men. Homes of jurors and the executioner have been bombed since the pair went to the chair.

CALL MAGRATH IN BOG DEATH

Gloucester, Sept. 28—The pathological skill of Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath of Boston, has been enlisted to aid Gloucester police in the solution of the mysterious death of Miss Mary Frances Beary of Lynn, whose body was found on the West Gloucester marshes last Thursday.

That Dr. Magrath, veteran of scores of mystery murder investigations, had been asked to take personal charge of the medical end of the investigation was made known today by Medical Examiner Ira B. Hull of Gloucester.

Hull said he expected a report on Dr. Magrath's findings tomorrow or Monday.

Meanwhile pending a completion of the work by pathologists, all police investigation into the girl's death has been halted.

City Marshal Daniel Casey said today that efforts to learn how Miss Beary reached the spot where she was found had proved fruitless. He said he has been unable to find anyone who saw the girl after she had told neighbors on Sept. 6 "You probably will never see me alive again," and "My nerves are going to pieces."

Dr. Hull has expressed an opinion that the girl may have ended her own life in the water of Jones creek.

SULLIVAN KIN'S DESKS RIFLED IN MANOMET

Break Seen as Desperate Move to Get Corruption Notes as Ex-Raider Seeks Parole

Secret documents and notes concerning the defunct Ritz Hotel and the associations of its owner, John F. Sullivan, with ex-Patrolman Oliver B. Garrett, were sought unsuccessfully by thieves who broke into the Manomet cottage of Sullivan's brother, it was learned today.

Coming on the eve of Garrett's petition for parole from Deer Island, where he is serving two years for conspiracy to extort money from Sullivan, the break is regarded as a desperate attempt to destroy records of official corruption and graft paid by the aged hotel owner.

PAPERS ARE SOUGHT

The Manomet break was reported by Daniel F. Sullivan two weeks ago but it was not learned until today that a previous attempt to steal the papers had been made at his home in Cheswick rd., West Roxbury.

From a source close to the family of Daniel Sullivan, the Boston Evening American learned today of the existence of the papers and the belief of the family that the breaks were made for the purpose of destroying them.

Records at the Plymouth police station show that Daniel Sullivan reported the Manomet break but made no mention of any papers being stored there.

The cottage was ransacked from cellar to roof. Desk and bureau drawers were rifled and their contents strewn about the floor. But smaller buildings near the cottage, said to be the hiding place of the papers, was not entered.

RECORDS MOVED TO BOSTON

It was learned from the same source that after the break had been discovered the papers were removed to a safety deposit vault in Boston.

Daniel Sullivan, a former employe of his brother at the Ritz hotel, discovered the second break when he returned to his Cheswick rd. home for the winter, according to the family spokesman.

While nothing was stolen, he said, there was plenty of evidence that the house had been entered and thoroughly searched.

Sullivan today admitted he had personally reported the ransacking of his Manomet cottage, but denied his brother had given him any papers for safe keeping.

PAROLE HANGING FIRE

"Several articles, including household furnishings, were taken from the cottage," he said, "but no papers were stolen. I had none in my possession and there was none on the property to my knowledge."

It was chiefly through the testimony of John F. Sullivan that Garrett, former czar of the Boston police liquor raiding squad, entered a plea of guilty to conspiracy to extort money and accepting gratuities.

Garrett was sentenced on May 7, 1931, and became eligible for parole last Monday His application is now in the hands of Probation Officer Henry McKenna of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court.

YOUNG SMITHS AGREE TO PART

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—Alfred E. Smith, Jr., son of the former Governor, and his wife have moved from their apartment at 33 5th ave. and reports today are that they have separated.

It is said the couple intend to forego any court action and that attorneys are drawing up a friendly separation agreement for them.

Inquiry at the 5th ave. address revealed young Smith left last week and Mrs. Smith on Monday. Neither gave a forwarding address nor disclosed their future plans.

They were married secretly eight years ago in a civil ceremony and later in Holy Cross Church. Mrs. Smith was Bertha Gott, daughter of a New York Central railroad engineer, living in Syracuse. The couple first met at the State fair in Syracuse.

LINDY KIDNAP SUSPECT HELD

Harrisburg, Ill, Sept. 28 (INS)—A 30-year-old man was held at the county jail today as state authorities prepared to question him in connection with the kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr. last March.

The suspect, according to Sergt. Gibbons of state police, was named in an anonymous letter sent to Lindbergh as a man "involved" in the kidnaping. Lindbergh turned the letter over to Illinois authorities, who took the suspect into custody.

The anonymous letter, Gibbons said, apparently was written by a woman.

HAGUE VISIONS BEER IN MARCH

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Mayor Franke Hague of Jersey City, Democratic national committeeman from New Jersey, said today on his arrival from France that beer will be back by March if Franklin D. Roosevelt is elected president.

"Every Democratic congressman and senator from the East and Middle West will be absolutely dependable on the wet question," Mayor Hague said, "just as they can be depended on not to upset industry by radical ideas."

Mayor Hague said the French are greatly interested in the presidential election here.

NEW ALIBI FOR TOM MOONEY

Portland, Ore., Sept. 28 (AP)—Paul M. Callicotte, 32-year-old mountaineer, was held in jail without bond today after purportedly telling police he "thinks" he unwittingly placed the dynamite laden suitcase that killed 10 persons and injured 42 in the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day parade.

Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings are serving life sentences in California prisons for the bombing.

Although detectives said they were not inclined to give full credence to Callicotte's statement, they booked him as a fugitive from San Francisco and promised a full investigation.

Callicotte was quoted as saying he took the suitcase from a man in front of the Industrial Workers of the World Hall in Oakland, carried it across San Francisco Bay, delivered it to a man in San Francisco and at the latter's request placed it on the curb at Steuart and Market sts., where the explosion occurred. Callicotte said he was paid $5 and did not know what the suitcase contained.

3 SHOW GIRLS TRAP YOUTHS IN THEFT

Employes of the City Hospital Plead Guilty; Hide in the Basement for 4 Hours

Caught in the act of stealing by three show girls, according to police, two City Hospital employes were arrested today in the sub-basement of the Hotel Bradford after a four hours' search of the building.

The arrested youths said they were Edward Peterson, 20, who lives at the hospital as well as working there, and his fellow-employe, William Cargill, 20, of Mayo st., South End.

Police say they were stealing $62.10 in cash and vanity cases, lipsticks, rouge and other articles in the dressing room of the Cascade ballroom at the hotel when the three girls found them, shortly after midnight.

The girls are Blanche Christian of Phillips st., Boston; Peggy DeCourcey, Market st., Cambridge, and Mary Marchetti, Sargent ave., Somerville, all members of Lou Walters' Revue.

Peterson and Cargill pleaded guilty in municipal court and Cargill was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction. Disposition of Peterson's case was continued to Friday. The stolen articles, including half a poung of grease paint, were recovered.

"I went to the dressing room at 12:05. The other girls were close behind me," testified Miss Christian.

"I saw the two men in the room. I said, 'What are you doing' They didn't answer, and I cried, 'Get out,' and kicked at one of them. Then I called the house officer, Eugene Sprague."

BOTH TORTURED FOR 13 YEARS, SHE CHARGES

Government Seeks a Guardian to Restore More Than $1,000,000 to Husband

Los Angeles, Sept. 28 (AP)—A woman's defiance today temporarily halted efforts to learn what became of a large part of the wealth of Jackson Barnett, 90, a Creek Indian, who became a multi-millionaire from oil land in Oklahoma.

The prosecutor was perplexed at the refusal of the Indian's white wife, Mrs. Anna Laura Lowe Barnett, to give her deposition in United States commissioner's court and awaited word from authorities at Washington as to whether to proceed with contempt proceedings against her.

TORTURED SHE SAYS

"We have been persecuted and prosecuted and tortured by the government since our marriage 13 years ago," Mrs. Barnett told the court. "I don't intend to testify here and there's nothing you can do about it."

Unlike his wife, Barnett took the proceedings good-naturedly and testified yesterday.

"Now, Jack," he was asked, "did you want your wife to have your money or not?"

"Sure," answered Barnett. "She's been good to me."

However, he added, if he were to do it all over again he isn't sure he would get married.

"In Indian tribes," he said, "the brave just picks out a squaw for his own. Maybe that's a good idea—I don't know."

MACHINE GUN AUTO TRAILED AS U. S. AGENTS JOIN HUNT FOR THAYER BOMBERS

taken as to the nature of the weapons.

The New York car is said to be black or dark blue, the color of the New York auto seen outside Judge Thayer's home at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, two hours before a bomb explosion wrecked the house and damaged 14 other homes.

The scene of the reported transfer of weapons is about two and one-half miles from the Milton home of Foreman Lewis McHardy of the Sacco jury. McHardy's home was bombed in 1927.

U. S. Joins Probe; Hunt On for Buda

Police believe an anarchist plot behind the outrage at Worcester may include other bombings or violence in the district south of Boston where live many of those who figured prominently in the conviction of the radical-slayers.

Two other developments of major importance in the case today were the investigation begun by Department of Justice agents and a search for Mario Buda, known as Mike Boda friend of Sacco and Vanzetti, who was reported in April to be planning a return to the United States from Italy "to prove the innocence" of the executed men.

William Keefe of the Boston office of the Department of Justice and Donald McLaughlin from the New York office conferred at the State House this morning with Public Safety Commissioner Foote, Capts. Bligh and Beaupre of the State Police and State Detectives Stokes and Ferrari.

Hunt Clue in Sacco Files in New York

William West, the local department of justice agent most intimately concerned with the Sacco-Vanzetti case over a period of seven years, was sent on a hurried trip to New York, where the files of the case are now kept.

These files, containing reports on 147 persons investigated, were transferred to New York last February. Three agents working with West are poring over them there.

The conference of the federal and state men lasted an hour and 20 minutes, at the end of which time Commissioner Foote said there would be a general conference of all state police authorities concerned in the case at the Holden state police barracks later in the day.

Huge Quantity of Dynamite in Bombs

He said that a partial report from State Chemist Perlin L. Charter indicated that a huge amount of dynamite was used in the bomb and that it was exploded by a blasting fuse.

The investigation concerning Boda is primarily to determine whether he did return to the United States.

In April he was serving the end of a 5-year prison sentence in Italy for being implicated in an anti-Fascist movement. At that time he was visited by Edwin Holton James, Concord millionaire, prominent in the Sacco defense, and Sacco's 18-year-old son, Dante, who was traveling with James. James is still in Europe, now in Switzerland, according to his family.

All Threat Mail Is Being Probed

Boda was freely charged by police at the time of the South Braintree paymaster murder, for which Sacco and Vanzetti were electrocuted, with being in the automobile that carried the murderers from the scene of the crime.

He lived in West Bridgewater, but was never located in the United States after the shooting and later he turned up in Italy. A friend from Hyde Park was supposed to have accompanied him to Italy, and they were said by police to have taken the stolen $15,000 payroll with them.

In addition to the search of the New York files on the Sacco case, threatening letters received by Judge Thayer from New York over a period of several years were under scrutiny today. By a strange coincidence the explosion that wrecked his home blew them out on the front lawn where they were picked up by police.

Mrs. Thayer Rallies from Effect of Shock

At Worcester, still another Department of Justice agent from Washington was working with Chief of Detectives Finneran, who is directing the probe. Finneran said he had many leads, none of which was very promising, but none of which would be "passed up."

Judge Thayer's condition was much improved, and he again visited the ruins of his house in company of Justice John C. Crosby of the Supreme Court, which is sitting in Worcester.

At Worcester Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Thayer's condition was also better, and Joan Ashe, the Thayer maid, was resting comfortably at the Worcester City Hospital.

State Detective Edward McCarthy is in charge of a check up on persons recently getting licenses to store explosives.

As the investigation proceeded today, Edwin G. Norman, district attorney of Worcester County, announced that maximum rewards would be asked by the executive council of Gov. Ely today and the Worcester city council at its next meeting Monday.

Through the rewards, detectives hope to obtain some clues to the perpetrators of what Gov. Ely characterized as a "most dastardly crime, against a man who has given, unceasingly, to the ends of justice."

Another clue was given by a milk man's helper who makes deliveries at the Thayer home.

Milkman Discovers Mystery Package

The helper, whose name has been withheld, said he delivered the Thayer milk at 2:15 yesterday morning and noticed a cardboard box measuring about 18 inches long, 12 inches wide and 6 inches deep on the rear porch.

The box was placed in about the same position figured by officials as the center of the explosion.

This clue coincides with the report of Mrs. Dorothy Chapin, a neighbor, who is said to have observed a coupe with New York license plates, parked in front of the Thayer home about 2 a. m.

The maid in the Thayer home, said the box was not on the porch at 8:30 Monday evening when she examined the rear door to make sure it was secure

Although it was announced yesterday that Mrs. Chapin had memorized the numbers on the plate of the car, she said today the only thing she noted about t was a "V."

Capt. Van Amburgh and other explosives experts explained today that the plotters made at least one mistake in ca rying out their purposes.

Had the bomb been placed in the cellar of the Thayer home, or had it been secured to throw the force of the blast forward, Judge Thayer, Mrs. Thayer and Miss Ashe would have been killed and the house would have been blown to atoms, they said.

Through the night thousands of curious visited the scene, requiring the services of scores of extra police.

Earlier in the night the valuable law library of Judge Thayer and many personal belongings of other members of the family were removed to places of safety.

In view of the failure of the plot, special watch was placed on the section within a mile of the Thayer home to guard against any further plot.

Residents whose homes were damaged were reassured by police that no further danger need be expected, but many went to other sections of the city to stay with friends.

Fuller Blames Propaganda

Commenting on the attempted assassination of Judge Thayer, who presided over the trials of Sacco and Vanzetti, Former Gov. Fuller said:

"I am not at all surprised. The public knows my conclusions in regard to Sacco and Vanzetti and my opinion of those whose propaganda has probably influenced some ill-balanced person to attempt another murder, also my opinion of public officials who would condone such activities, aye, and even reward them."

Labor Defense Protests Linking Workers in Blast

Accusing "capitalist" agents of using the bombing of Judge Thayer's home as propaganda against "organized labor," the International Labor Defense of Eastern New England denied implication of "organized workers" in the outrage.

"Organized workers are unalterably opposed to such irresponsible 'acts of vengeance,' as the stories in the capitalist newspapers imply this outrage to be," the statement said.

"Organized labor condemns such actions and recognizes in them the hand of capitalist agents seeking to discredit labor and to provide through them pretexts for further frame-ups.

"To all workers and sympathizers of the working class movement this method is nothing new. We recall the attempt of a woolen company president to have a bomb planted during the strike of 1912 in Lawrence, afterwards proven in court.

"The 'Preparedness Day' bombing in San Francisco in 1916 was another step in the frame-up attempt to rob the working class of its organizers and leaders, including Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

Boy Hurt in 40-Foot Fall From Bridge

Plunging 40 feet from the railing of the Babson st. railroad bridge to the roadbed below when he slipped while playing, Henry Keleishik, eight, of Walk Hill st., Mattapan, was dangerously injured late yesterday.

DYNAMITE USED BY BOMBERS

Debris from the home of Judge Webster Thayer were assembled at the State House today in the attempt to discover the nature of the bomb which wrecked the residence early yesterday, and to trace down those who planted the explosive.

A microscopic examination of residue on this debris will be made today by Perlin L. Charter, State police chemist. In the opinion of Capt. Charles J. Van Amburgh, State ballistics expert, "nothing less than dynamite could have caused such terrific damage.' At least 50 sticks of dynamite would have been needed—enough to fill a suitcase, he declared.

TWISTED TIN FOUND

Capt. Van Amburgh was much interested in three bits of twisted, curled metal, probably tin, found in the wreckage at the rear, close to the focal point of the explosion. It is possible that the explosive was carried in this substance, a theory which would indicate that nitro-glycerine was used.

Nitro-glycerine however, is such a dangerous liquid to handle that Capt. Van Amburgh leans towards the dynamite theory.

Capt. Van Amburgh refused to make any statement, at this stage of the inquiry, about the assumption that the bombing was a reprisal for the Sacco-Vanzetti verdict.

BLAST OUTSIDE HOUSE

His investigation determined that the site chosen by the bombers was at the rear corner of the house, in front of the garage.

The nature of the explosion indicates that the explosive was not placed within the building, Capt. Van Amburgh said.

State officials gathered statistics showing that in 300 cities and towns out of 355 in Massachusetts dynamite has been stolen in the past few months.

State Asked to Pay Bomb Loss

A bill to reimburse Judge Webster D. Thayer for injuries and property damage resulting from the bombing of his home was filed with the clerk of the House by Representative Joseph A. Logan of Hyde Park.

The Legislature made an appropriation several years ago when the home of Judge Albert Hayden of Roxbury was bombed.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 28—Margaret Little, five, was struck and killed by an auto while leaving school yesterday. The car was driven by Fred Perry of Penacook.

JURORS' HOMES UNDER GUARD

Boston police today maintained a guard on all public buildings and homes of persons prominent in the prosecution of the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Through Acting Supt. of Police Thomas G. Goode, orders were issued to all route patrolmen and cruising police to pay particular attention to the home of ex-Gov. Alvan T. Fuller in Beacon st., the home of Judge Robert Grant in Bay State rd., and that of Judge Albert Hayden in Roxbury. Public buildings and the homes of lesser officials concerned in the case were also ordered watched.

Police of Cambridge, together with the special officers of Harvard yard, maintained a close guard yesterday around the house of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, following the news that Judge Thayer's house at Worcester had been bombed. President Lowell was a member of the committee that considered the case of Sacco and Vanzetti before the latter were executed.

JOKES, SONGS, POEMS HOOVER'S CURES FOR BAD DAYS

By GILBERT SELDES

I do not think that President Hoover is exactly happy when he stoops from the high places and tries to be one of the boys. If I remember correctly, he made two efforts before, and neither was a success; he asked Will Rogers to make a joke which would help put an end to hoarding, but the sight of the grim engineer dried up even Mr. Rogers' flow of wit; and he said something to Rudy Vallee about a song to get people out of the depression, apparently under the illusion that "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame, but I Haven't Got a Job" would cheer us all into a frenzy of prosperity if Mr. Vallee crooned it to us. The latest literary effort to cure our miseries comes by the way of a report from Mr. Christopher Morley in the Saturday Review of Literature, and the burden of it is that if Joyce Kilmer never saw a poem as lovely as a tree, Mr. Hoover has never seen a Reconstruction Finance Corporation as effective as a poem.

GILBERT SELDES

"Perhaps what this country needs," said the President, not thinking of a five-cent cigar, "is a great poem. Something to lift people out of fear and selfishness. You remember Kipling's 'Recessional' and that poem of Markham's."

By "that poem of Markham's" he must have meant "The Man with the Hoe," who stands bowed under the weight of centuries of depression, under the burden of poverty and injustice—the forgotten man, in short, as he was understood two generations ago when this country was going through its last fight for social justice. Nothing could have been less apt than this choice; a poem like "The Man with the Hoe," having the terrific impact which that poem had, would sweep Mr. Hoover out of the White House even before election.

The reference to Kipling is not only inaccurate, as has been noted, since his "Recessional" came at a time of insufferable pride and self-sufficiency—a regular 1929 boom time—but it calls up another poem, by the same author, which had something of the effect in England that "The Man with the Hoe" had here: "The Absent-Minded Beggar." It was about the men going off to the Boer War, the duke's son, cook's son, son of a hundred kings, each one doing their country's work, and who's to look after their things? Another forgotten man, in short, especially when he returns—which is not a dirty dig about paying bonuses, but a mild allusion to the fact that when a man has been jobless for three years, after he has done the country's work in the army or in the factory, you can't very well say, or let your subordinates say, that he must shift for himself.

"Three hundred words is about the limit," said the President. He is right and they need not be in verse. In 267 words of prose Abraham Lincoln made an address at Gettysburg in the middle of a war which was not going well, and told his people something about themselves which they hardly knew, making them understand their sufferings, making them see why it was necessary for them to suffer and endure. He said what the people believed but did not know they believed; he spoke the common thought in an uncommon way and made visible the picture in the back of men's minds. He had not only the right and eloquent word, but the true emotion.

Mr. Hoover has seldom uttered the unspoken thoughts of the people; he has seldom stepped ahead of them and showed them a promised land. He has looked backward, to assure us that the old ways are the best ways and that in this unparalleled crisis of human affairs, we must cling to every outworn principle. He has spoken of getting back the good old job, in which heaven knows he spoke the mind of the jobless who have been beaten by despair into wanting nothing more. But beyond that he has had singularly little to say to the people. Even when he appealed to us to open our purse-strings for sweet charity, he could not make us open our hearts, because every appeal was spoiled by his insistence upon the political argument that as a nation we must let ten million starve, and only as individuals are we to be allowed to save a few thousand.

Our President, who began his term of office with promises to lead us farther and farther along the way we were already going—the way of comfort and prosperity, with chickens in pots and many, many cars in every garage—has left us far behind, going off into a world not ours, a distant dream world in which charts and graphs take the place of human feelings. At moments, it appears, he has his doubts. He wonders whether some sort of spiritual leadership isn't necessary, whether the heart may not be moved as well as the head. He must think at times that the hundred commissions and corporations and agencies and laws he has fostered are a pretty sad result when no one has faith in them.

In those moments he does a characteristic thing; he turns away from himself. The great confession of his defeat is that he imagines a jokesmith, a crooner, or a poet can, to order, supply what it was his duty to give to the American people, a sense of their own destiny, a strength to fulfil it.

220 PASS TESTS FOR STATE BAR; 477 FAILURES

Of the 697 who took the June bar examinations, 220 passed and are eligible for admission, the state bar examiners have announced.

The percentage of successful candidates is 31.5, in comparison with the January examination's 18 per cent and last year's June examination of 33 per cent.

Among the successful candidates are 14 women. Sixty-six of the future attorneys are from Boston. Seventy-five of the 220 are graduates of evening or part time schools.

SHOWING BETTER

Chairman Hitchcock said the showing was better than January's because more than 300 of those taking the recent test were fresh from school and taking the examination for the first time. In January only 150 of the 693 candidates were making their first try, while the others had taken at least two examinations.

Among the successful candidates are Gardner T. Bolster, son of Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster of the Municipal Court; Donald R. Simpson, son of Prof. Frank Simpson of Boston University; Katherine Rand, daughter of Waldron H. Rand, Jr., Boston banker; Bailey Aldrich, grandson of Thomas Bailey Aldrich, author and editor; Philip Nichols, Jr., son of the Boston tax expert and Charles F. Gaskill of Worcester, son of George Gaskill, lawyer.

WILL BE SWORN NOV. 2

The applicants will be sworn in at the Supreme Court in Boston on November 2. Those who passed are:

New Orleans, La., Sept. 28 (US)—Peter F. Murphy, Jr., 14, was rushed by airplane to Houston, Tex., in a final desperate attempt to avert death from respiratory paralysis arising from the effect of an anti-tetanus serum injection. In Houston there is a "Drinker respirator" which makes the lungs function when the muscles controlling the lungs fail.

The boy is a son of Dr. Peter F. Murphy, port physician of the United Fruit Co., prominent socially.

DEMOCRATS IN N. H. DEMAND DRY REPEAL

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Concord, N. H., Sept. 28—"Immediate repeal of the 18th Amendment; state control of liquor; no saloons and no speakeasies," that is the text of the wet platform adopted here today by the New Hampshire Democratic state convention.

An attack on the Hoover administration and demand for repeal of the law depriving "paupers," so-called, of their vote are other features of the platform adopted.

"After three terms of Republican control the country finds its factories closed, its agriculture prostrate, its business at a standstill and its people by millions out of work and their life savings swept away," the platform said.

"In the same time the growth in the cost of government has been tremendous and taxes have been piled upon taxes until business and the home-owner can barely stagger along under the load," the platform said.

ROOSEVELT LANDSLIDE

George H. Combs, vice-chairman of the Democratic national speakers' bureau, predicted a Roosevelt landslide in November. He predicted that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and his supporters will come to the support of Gov. Roosevelt within the next few weeks.

William H. Craig, of Manchester, presided over the meeting of 500 Democrats.

Dominated by Governor John G. Winant, the Republican convention had adopted a dry platform in conformity with the dry-submission plank adopted at Chicago.

A motion to approve the attitude of President Hoover, even in his slight trend away from prohibition was overwhelmingly repulsed under the snap of the dry Mr. Winant's whip.

The motion for a less rabid dry stand was made by Harold K. Davison, president of the New Hampshire Senate.

After his motion was rejected, Davision declared:

"I want to say frankly that if the people had voted as they drink and the delegates here had voted as they think, I would have been twice victorious."

United States Senator George H. Moses sat upon the platform with knitted brows in contemplation of the dry verdict's effect upon his campaign for re-election.

In an attempt to soften the suspicion that he prefers to see ex-Gov. Fred C. Brown, Democrat, elected to the Senate in Moses' place, Winant, who is running for governor again, said:

"I have announced that I will support this ticket and I want this convention to be reminded that when I start I finish."

Moses, too, took note of the alleged divergence between Winant and himself and in his speech said:

"So far as Governor Winant and myself are concerned, if our fool friends will leave us alone, we'll get along all right."

The Democrats, as they assembled here, were expected to have a pyrotechnical fuss over prohibition, but to end with a forthright demand for complete repeal.

Henri T. Ledoux, the popular ex-mayor and ex-postmaster of Nashua, the gubernatorial nominee, has expressed his accord with the repeal plank adopted at Chicago under the authorship of Senator David I. Walsh.

BROWN FOR REPEAL

Ex-Governor Brown, the senatorial opponent of Moses, said to the Boston Evening American:

"I have always been opposed to prohibition and, in the light of 14 years of sorry experience with that experiment, I am more than ever convinced of its sheer futility. I am for repeal with no strings attached."

Brown also declared his outright opposition to cancellation of war debts.

"I can get along," he said, "with the fellow who pays his bills. Nations are no different from men. I can't tolerate welchers among either. About 50 per cent has been cut off the war debts already and it is about time that the nations abroad willingly admitted their responsibility to pay what is left. It is about time that we began looking after our American interests, and in this country. We can't seem to expect Mr. Hoover to do that."

Anti-Dry Women Find Candidates' Favor

Results of a poll of congressional candidates in Massachusetts, by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, were announced today as follows, from 15 districts:

Fifteen Democrats for straight repeal.

Five Republican candidates for straight repeal.

Seven more Republicans for submission to voters.

Three Republicans—no reply.

This overwhelming liberal sentiment was made public by Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, Massachusetts chairman of the organization, with the statement:

"We are proud that in every one of our 15 Congressional districts, at least one of the candidates is for straight repeal, and in five districts—the second, sixth, seventh, tenth and eleventh—both candidates have taken that stand."

The Republican candidates for straight repeal, and their districts, are Joshua L. Brooks, second; A. Piatt Andrew, sixth; Charles W. Lovett, seventh; George H. Tinkham, tenth, and Edward L. Donnelly, eleventh.

For submission: Treadway, first; Foss, third; Holmes, fourth; Luce (Hoover's interpretation), ninth; Wigglesworth, thirteenth; Martin, fourteenth, and Gifford, fifteenth.

No reply: Mrs. Rogers, fifth; Norton, eighth, and Ginsburg, twelfth.

How Nominees Stand In Nation-Wide Poll

Washington, Sept. 28—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading.

In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

SEN. WILLIAMS DIES IN SOUTH

Yazoo City, Miss., Sept. 28 (AP)—Former Senator John Sharp Williams, who spent part of his boyhood fleeing a Federal invasion of his state and most of his manhood in his country's Congress, died last midnight.

He was 78 and was at his old plantation home near here when the end came. He had failed fast during recent months.

It was the voice of John Sharp Williams that helped awaken the South from its lethargy after the Civil War. The same voice fought the battles of Woodrow Wilson in the Senate during the trying days of the League of Nations fight. And it was the same voice that told the Senate, after it doomed Wilson's measure, "I'd rather be a hound dog and bay at the moon from my Mississippi plantation than remain in the United States Senate."

He retired from public life in 1923 after almost 30 years in Congress.

Senator Williams was born in Memphis, July 30, 1854. His father was killed at the battle of Shiloh. Memphis was threatened, so his family moved to the mother's old homestead in Yazoo County.

Williams first was elected to the House of Representatives in 1893 and served for 16 consecutive years. In 1907 he was unanimously re-elected, but in 1908 was elected to the Senate although he did not take his seat until 1911.

Earthquake Kills 127; Destroys Monuments

Athens, Sept. 28 (AP)—Many precious Byzantine monuments were reported today as having been destroyed by the earthquake in Greece Monday night, which is known to have resulted in 127 deaths. Whole villages were razed in the vicinity of Mt. Athos, and it was said it was still impossible to determine how many dead still were under the ruins. Twenty-three villages were wiped out and the terrified people spent last night in the open.

September List of R.F.C. Loans Held Up

Washington, Sept. 28 (INS)—Demand will not be made on the Reconstruction Finance Corp. for the September report of loans to banks and other institutions, which is now 28 days delinquent, South Trimble, clerk of the House, said today.

Under the relief act, which broadened the scope of the Finance Corp., monthly reports were required to be filed.

CAR SALES UP, SAYS SLOAN

Washington, Sept. 28—Auto retail sales during August experienced their first definite rise since the depression, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, told newspaper men after a conference with President Hoover. Sloan said his conference dealt only with business.

A. P. Sloan, Jr.

"During August," Sloan said he told the President, "we experienced a nice uplift in our end of the automobile business. This rise was sustained during the first part of September and we feel that it reflects a general return of confidence in business and industry."

5 IN ALLIANCE TO RULE BOSTON POLITICS

Despite efforts to cloak their activities in secrecy, the Boston Evening American learned today that four members of the younger Democratic faction are to effect a political alliance for the purpose of dominating campaigns for city and county offices next year.

These men are former State Senator Joseph J. Mulhern of Dorchester, who, it is said, will be a candidate for district attorney; City Councillor John F. Dowd of Roxbury, unsuccessful candidate in the recent campaign for nomination as sheriff; City Councillor Francis E. Kelly, unsuccessful candidate for nomination as lieutenant governor; and Garrett Byrne, Roxbury attorney, who has been active politically for a decade.

Each of the quartet has a large following, and operating as a group they should be in a position to control a powerful minority who would dominate Boston politics.

Dowd and Kelly were strong candidates in the primaries of last week. Dowd has thousands of friends in all sections of the city. Kelly is a powerful political factor in Dorchester.

Former Senator Mulhern and Atty. Byrne have proved in the past that they also have large followings.

ROOSEVELT IN DELAWARE LEAD

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Sept. 28—Little by little President Hoover continues each week to whittle down Governor Roosevelt's Delaware majority in the nationwide postcard presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

With 1175 ballots tabulated from the tiny state Roosevelt now has a majority of only 27. A week ago it was 32.

While Hoover is whittling away at Delaware, Governor Roosevelt is piling up ever increasing majorities in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina all of which four years ago gave their electoral votes to the Republican candidate.

The closest one of these States, as indicated by the poll returns, is West Virginia, and it is continuing to give Roosevelt 60 out of every 100 poll ballots received.

70 Years Later! G.A.R. Girds for New War

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP)—The boys of '61 aren't yet ready to take back seats.

The thin blue line of the Grand Army of the Republic is being called to battle by their national commander, Capt. William P. Wright of Chicago.

The object of the fight is to prevent the city council from passing an ordinance which would put the annual Memorial Day march under civilian control and let the aged veterans of the Civil War take inconspicuous seats in the rear.

Capt. Wright, recently elected to command the G. A. R., opened his offensive with letters to all aldermen and city officials.

3 OF BRITISH CABINET QUIT

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Three important members of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's 11-month-old National Cabinet resigned today following a disagreement over the tariff proposals approved at the recent imperial trade conference in Ottawa.

The three who resigned are Viscount Snowden of Ickornshaw, lord privy seal, and former Labor party leader, and two noted Liberals, Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary for Scotland.

The resignation marked the first break in the National government which was chosen from all three leading parties to meet the financial

STOP SLAVERY, SAYS STIMSON

Washington, Sept. 28 (INS)—Denying this government has proposed "dictatorial powers" for the supervision of Liberia, Secretary of State Stimson advocates a broader authority to abolish slavery in the Negro republic.

Stimson explained America's policy in a telegram, made public today, to Secretary Walter White of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and W. E. B DuBois, editor of "The Crisis," who had protested this country's course.

The secretary said, in part:

"The view of this government in respect to Liberia is simply that any officials sent there in behalf of the League of Nations shall have sufficient assurance of support and authority from both Liberia and the League to make it worth while sending them.

"The United States is seeking to co-operate with the other nations of the world in bringing to an end conditions which have shocked the humanitarian sentiments of the whole civilized globe."

Debating Hole in One. Luck Declares Grimes. Bill Long Says Skill. ↕ "Lucky" Left Handers. The One-Armed Wonder. God Bless the Ladies.

Ramblings of a Frozen Golf Reporter

WE WERE PUNCHING the bag, as they say along Cauliflower Alley, or chewing the fat, as the expression goes among the elite of Beacon Hill, in between shots in the Boston Evening American's Hole-in-One Tournament, yesterday. What we were punching the bag, or chewing the fat on—which ever way you want to have it, Old Deahs—was whether hole-in-one is achieved chiefly on luck, or chiefly on skill. "It's luck, pure and simple!" opined Ol' Bill Grimes, casting his eagle eye about the assemblage as if to say he'd knock the block off the fellow who dared dispute him. "Luck, I say! Why the greatest golfers in the country play for a lifetime without accomplishing the feat!"

Park Commissioner Bill Long, the best park commissioner Boston ever had, is a brave man. He looked the fighting member of the Clan Grimes right in his ferocious eye and said: "To reach any green in one requires a certain amount of skill. The actual dropping of the ball in the cup may be luck. But you never could get near enough to the cup, Bill, for Lady Luck to perch on your shoulder, without the skill it takes to reach the green in one. Inasmuch as skill is required before the luck, I would say that skill, not luck, has most to do in the scoring of a hole in one. To prove my contention, Bill, I'll bet you that if anyone in this tournament bags a hole in one, he will be better than the average golfer. Luck will win him the hole but it will be skill that gives luck a chance to work."

AFTER SQUATTING on our shivering haunches on a windswept knoll in Franklin Park from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., yesterday, watching every variety of golfer take pot shots at that hole 115 yards away, we will second the motion of the best park commissioner Boston ever had. For among the flock of 138 golfers that stepped up to the tee, the 12 who succeeded in getting the little white ball to rest inside the 10-foot circle all were above the average. If you don't think it takes skill to lift the ball with a mashie or a mashie niblick up and over a little knoll and drop it on the green the other side of the knoll, 115 yards from the tee, why just come out to Franklin Park with the rest of the gang and try it yourself.

BUT HOLD ON, here's Joe Mooney, of the well known Mooney's of Harvard, on the air. With his titian locks standing up straight in excitement Joe horns into the argument with: "Skill, my eye! Skill nothing! Why Tommy Murray, who was second nearest the pin in today's shooting and one of the two men who placed two shots inside of the 10-foot circle, never broke a 100 on the Franklin Park course. Any guy who can't break 100 certainly cannot claim to being a skillful golfer. Why Tommy himself told me he closed his eyes when he made that shot within 19½ inches of the pin. Skill, my eye!"

Please, will some sturdy son of Yale step forth and give that Harvard guy an argument. We couldn't. It was so cold on that knoll that our teeth were chattering and when we attempted to show Mooney he was wrong, all wrong, we stuttered. But Joe, honest now, you must be something orful as a golfer for we'll bet you that you can't drop a couple of balls in one on that Franklin Park Green if you try all day. And if Tommy Murray, who dropped two there, isn't skilful why you, who can't do it at all, must be something horrible. How's that for a comeback at deah ol' Harvard?

GRANTING FOR the nonce the contention of Ol' Bill Grimes and Harvard Joe Mooney, that luck, not skill, is the chief source of holes in one, then Lady Luck must have been especially sweet on the southpaws yesterday. There were nine left-handed golfers who teed off. Yet two of them, Saul Turk, the plumbing and heating man from Roslindale, and L. H. Brann of Brockton, both were inside the magic 10-foot circle. Besides that honor, Turk was one of the two men who succeeded in putting two shots inside it. Two other left-hand golfers, the two Starr brothers, Milton and Edward, each put three of five balls on the green. Not inside the magic circle, but on the green. And remember, Park Commissioner Billy Long said it took real skill to reach the green in one. With four of the nine left-handers entered showing exceptional skill in reaching the green the southpaws beat the right-handed brethren yesterday four ways from the proverbial Jack.

IN HANDING OUT the orchids a great big bunch will have to go to Joe Sweeney of Scarboro. Joe put three of his five balls on the green. That was a feat in itself but when one considers the fact that Joe is one-armed it was astounding Step up to the tee you famous Mister Sarazen and you famous Mister Ouimet and let's see what you can do with one hand. One-armed Joe Sweeney outshot 90 per cent of his two-handed brethren yesterday. Don't forget there were some mighty good golfers among them.

THE LADIES, God bless them. Nothing is complete without them. Naturally they sweeten up the Hole-in-One Tournament. And they shot some golf. Miss E. I Berkett put four out of five balls on the green, something that less than half a dozen of the masculine stick wielders did. Miss Ethel Silverman, plainly nervous and flustrated by the big gallery, steadied herself on the last shot and just grazed the pin with a beauty which rolled just outside the magic circle. Mrs. Carolyn Smith, wife of the well-known wrestling referee and instructor, Sam Smith, also shot some beautiful golf. Her direction was superb. With a heavier iron she might have succeeded. All of her shots were dead on a line but just short of the green.

WITH ONE LONE exception, all the golfers yesterday depended on mashie or mashie niblick. P. J. Keefe used the woods and put two shots on the green. It caused Ol' Bill Grimes to opine: "If that fellow makes his approach so skilfully with the wood, just think what golf he would shoot if he learned to use the irons properly."

Then it does take skill to reach the green in one, Bill?

At 11:30 the tarpaulins were dragged off the infield at the comissioner's orders and plans for the opening tilt went right ahead. Shortly before noon the Yankees began to filter into their dugout, with old Cy Perkins, veteran of the Philadelphia Athletics' three year rule, all decked out in a bull pen catcher's regalia, the first Yankee to stride out on the field.

* * *

Almost simultaneously with the Yankees appearance, the sun struggled clear of the clouds for the first time during the day. It shone briefly for a moment, drawing a loud cheer from the bleachers.

* * *

Babe Ruth, looking fine and hearty, Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri, and all the rest of the big and little Yankees, soon were arriving over their own side of the field. They paired off to warm up, throwing arms and were jubilant as the sun finally blazed forth in all its glory.

* * *

The Cubs, cocky and full of noisy exhuberance, had a merry time dressing in their own quarters. Manager Charley Grimm and his warriors all seemed eager to tackle the American League champions. Grimm stuck to Guy Bush as his starting pitcher and McCarthy to Red Ruffing.

* * *

Although the sun came out to stay by 12:30 the bandmen remained suspicious to the last. They stuck to their sheltered spot in the stands, and drowsily waded through a series of marches until absolutely certain they wouldn't get those natty uniforms wet again.

* * *

As batting practice started Earle Combs, gray-headed Yankee center fielder, smashed the first ball into the bleachers. The crowd yelled happily and the band at once took on a new lease of life.

* * *

It took Babe Ruth three long belts to right field before he finally got under a practice slant and lifted it far into his cheering worshippers in the right field stand. This part of the field was filled almost to capacity and the Babe's wallop set the fans to howling in glee.

CRITIC RANKS VINES NO. 1

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—European tennis commentators have become convinced that the world's best player no longer is Henri Cochet of France, but Ellsworth Vines of the United States.

Vines, who defeated Cochet twice this year—in the Davis Cup challenge round and the American championships—is ranked No. 1 both by A. Wallis Myers, tennis authority for the London Daily Telegraph, and by the Paris newspaper L'Auto. Cochet is placed in the No. 2 spot by both.

Tossers May Blind Yanks and Cubs Heavy Hitters

By JOE CASHMAN

New York, Sept. 28—Dark, cloudy skies, made to order for the pitchers—Charlie Ruffing of the Yanks and Guy Busn of the Cubs—are in prospect for the opening of the World Series this afternoon, with a strong possibility that the affair will be washed out entirely.

The last-minute bulletin from the weather bureau was that the heavens will be gloomy, and quoted the chances of rain as better than even.

It was pointed out to the sky prophets by the oldest scribe present that he couldn't remember when last a series opener had to be postponed.

But all that observation resulted in was a reiteration from the big barometer and thermometer man that if there isn't a torrent, there'll certainly be a mist when game time, 1:30 p. m. rolls around.

PLENTY OF SEATS LEFT

The Yankee management wouldn't shed any tears over a postponement. There are still thousands of tickets for the opener available and it is felt that a delay can't possibly hurt and might help the sale.

A murky overhead will mean plenty of heartaches for the famed sluggers of both clubs: Ruffing and Bush are both bullet-ball strikeout artists, whose speed is most difficult to follow in perfect baseball weather and is next to impossible to see when the sun isn't shining. There should be more whiffs than hits, if the elements live up to expectations.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks finally decided on Ruffing as his starter late yesterday, after deliberating for days whether to nominate him or Johnny Allen, his prize rookie.

60,000 EXPECTED

The latest estimation from Business Manager Ed Barrows of the Yanks as to the attendance today is 60,000, which is a fair-sized crowd even in this largest of cities, but which, at the same time, falls 10,000 short of taxing the capacity of the local stadium.

Betting on the series has picked up considerably at the 11th hour.

The Yanks rate 10 to 7 or 8 favorites to win the first game, and 7 to 5 favorites to capture the engagement and bring back to the American League the World's Championship, after a year's absence.

A fortnight ago, the New Yorkers were 2 to 1 favorites to triumph in the opener and also in the series. The poor work of the local pitchers in the closing days of the campaign changed the price, and now it seems at least 50 per cent of the critics in this town like the Cubs to win.

However, in case you're interested, your correspondent is still stringing along with the McCarthymen to finish in front in six games.

CUBS WELL RESTED

The Cubs will go into the first game without having touched a ball since their final game last Sunday. They were scheduled to work out in the Stadium yesterday, but wet grounds halted them.

This will have no ill effect on the National League entry, according to Manager Charlie Grimm.

The Windy City pilot states that each and every one of his charges are in prime condition and he looks for them to win the title in five games.

McCarthy reports likewise as regards the Yanks.

When the battle between the country's two largest cities for baseball supremacy opens, with the chances of one depending on Charlie Ruffing and the hopes of the other resting on Guy Bush, attention will not be centered on these two young men.

Instead, it will be riveted on the rival shortstops, who are expected to settle the issue.

EX-YANKEE CUBS' STAR

Mark Koenig, a former Yankee, is guarding the berth for the Cubs, having been resurrected from the Coast League just in time to lead the Windy City outfit to the National League championship.

Frank Crosetti, another Coast beauty, serving his first year in the majors, fills the berth for the Yanks.

Koenig's big bat may carry the Cubs over the top. His erratic fielding may crack them wide open.

SPEED VERSUS GUILE

GUY BUSH

Oh, Very Distressing Mr. Phair's Guessing

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

New York, Sept. 28.

As the Cubs and Yankees mingle in a clinch,
There are prophets who deliver in a pinch,
There are dopesters keen and wily,
Baseball seers respected highly,
Who will tell you that the Yankees are a cinch.

There are other seers with voices loud and bluff
Who will hand you quite another brand of stuff.
They enlighten all the nation
With the cocksure information
That the Cubs are bound to treat the Yankees rough.

While the prophets and the dopesters take their fling
There is one who won't predict a single thing.
Once I tried my hand at guessing
And the outcome was distressing—
I'm the guy who picked the Giants in the spring.

Whether the Yanks overwhelm the Cubs, or vice versa, the losers will find consolation in that old reliable alibi: "A seven-game series doesn't mean a thing"

Chicago is all hopped up over the impending series, while New York assumes the attitude of one who can take it or let it alone There is a deep rooted impression in these parts that the Cubs are a set-up for the Yanks, and that the show will be a mere formality in four acts Some such feeling prevailed last year, when Messrs Grove and Earnshaw were honing to devour the poor little Cardinals

---

Another wet blanket on public enthusiasm is the practice of selling tickets in sets of three. It simplifies the work of the baseball officials, but it fails to arouse any songs of rapture among the customers. Some of them can't afford three games, and some would be satisfied with one, even if they could afford a dozen.

It will be a case of pupil against teacher when the Cubs and Yankees meet Charley Grimm was merely one of the undergraduates when Joe McCarthy was professor of applied baseball at Wrigley University

---

It would be even more dramatic if Rogers Hornsby were still managing the Cubs

ELIS PRACTICE IN RAIN

New Haven, Sept. 28—Yale was robbed of its second last double practice, as a drizzle caused cancellation of afternoon drill. The Elis in the morning held a two-hour session in which the backs worked at the handling of a wet ball.

It was said today that the fate of the several players taking examinations will be known Friday.

CUBS CHOICE OF RUNYON IN SERIES

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, Sept. 28 (US)—Colonel Jacob Ruppert will today don the very latest model black derby, symbol of the Manhattan Islander, and will sit in a box at the Yankee Stadium to lead the local huzzas for the home club in the opening game of the World Series of 1932.

Col. Jacob Ruppert (Jake to his nearest neighbors) will be surrounded by the social and political big-wigs and stuffed shirts of Gotham, and there will be scallops of patriotic bunting here and there about the Stadium, and band music, and all that sort of business, for this is the first appearance of the World Series in these parts in several years, and it must be made something of an occasion.

Col. Jacob Ruppert owns the Yankees, 1932 champions of the American League, and it is his fond hope that they will triumph in the series over the Chicago Cubs, the new titleholders in the National circuit. Upwards of 60,000 of Col. Jacob Ruppert's fellow citizens of Manhattan, the Bronx, the Borough of King and Queens, and perhaps of Brooklyn, will be in there today fond-hoping with the colonel.

YANKS 6-5 FOR FIRST

The Broadway boys, who traffic in such matters, make the Yankees about 6 to 5 to win the first game this afternoon, and 7 to 5 to take the series. These figures are subject to revision on very short notice. The betting on a World Series goes up and down like the mercury in the thermometer.

Most of the baseball experts (oh, yes, there are baseball experts) pick the Yankees to win the series in not more than six games. They think the Yankee attack will swamp the Cubs in reasonably short order. My personal selection—and you would scarcely call it expert—is the Chicago outfit.

I make this selection partly just be contrary, and partly because the Cubs seem to be one of those extra-enthusiastic baseball outfits that are always very tough to beat in a World Series.

CUBS GET CIVIC SUPPORT

It is a sure thing that the Cubs are getting more of what we might call civic moral support than the Yankees. My western operatives tell me that good old Chi is practically on fire over the series, with a sellout for all the games there, and the citizens ready to cheer their boys very loudly. In New York we have had the strange spectacle the past few days of tickets for the series going begging.

The question as to whether Mr. Ruth will be in the Yankee lineup in the series is easily answered. He will. And, in the quaint patois of a bygone day, how! Mr. Ruth, but recently ailing with a pain in his innards, is now all aglow with health and vitality.

Mr. Joe McCarthy, who used to manage the Cubs, and now manages the Yankees, is picked to out-master-mind his rival manager.

CUBS BOSS CONFIDENT

Mr. Grimm thinks his pitchers, Bush, Warneke, Grimes, Root, and the rest of the lads, will stop the Yankee offense, while his own hitters are hashing up the Yankee pitching.

Mr. Grimm's boys seem to be hustlers and bustlers. I like hustlers and bustlers in a World Series. I also like hitters like Ruth and Gehrig. Hitters like that don't have to hustle and bustle.

All they have to do is stand still and swing. On sheer class, the Yankees out-figure the Cubs. In a short series, like the World Series, the figures aren't worth a dime.

COLBY CARDS LONG DRILL

Waterville, Me., Sept. 28—A long scrimmage between A and B, with practically the entire squad being given a chance to get into the fray, was the principal part of Colby's football program today.

Stiegler, right tackle, who received a wrenched leg in the Amherst game, is out of practice. Jack Locke, halfback, who has been on the hospital list with a sprained ankle, returned touay.

Chet Dyer, right halfback for the varsity, was kicked in the face and may be lost for some time.

Gene Macalary, righ tackle, and Bonkowski, a sophomore guard on B, attracted the attention of the coaches by their aggressive playing.

CHARLIE RUFFING

They go today! Ruffing will be throwing his high, hard one, trying to throw it past the Cubs. But the less robust Bush will be mixing 'em up, hoping to out guess rather than blind the Yanks. Bush can turn on the heat, too, if necessary, but he thinks he does better with the Mississippi strategy. And he's plenty foxy when the dough is down.

Playing Choo-Choo Barrow Shows Way Babe Born With Fever

Cubs Just As Game As Mickey Walker

New York, Sept. 28—You know, I've been switching around on this World Series like a donkey engine in a freight yard. First off I liked the Cubs. Then I liked the Yankees. Then I liked the Cubs again. Now I like the Yankees.

And right there it will have to lie, for better or for worst. The Cubs are a fighting ball club. A real good fighting ball club. They always play the string out. They're dead game. So was Mickey Walker.

In the final analysis I guess the Yanks have got too much goona-goona for 'em. haven't the slightest idea what goona-goona is, but I see it advertised on the billboards and it sounds something like gone. Which is what a baseball is when those Yankee bats kiss it on the seam.

To be sure, they are saying that the biggest Yankee bat of all is waving impotently these days. That the gentleman named Ruth, who propels it, is sick and that he will be more hurt than help to the New York cause. But I don't know. Somehow he usually turns out to be a right interesting invalid in these spots. Dead or alive, he can still caress that horsehide for my red agate.

There are a lot of ball games where you don't have to hit but one if you hit it far enough. And if the old guy who stands alone can't hit 'em far enough, who would you pick out to do your far enough hitting?

The old guy who stands alone started working at this World Series trade on October 5, 1918. There was some other fighting besides World Series fighting going on about that time and quite a lot of fans got the papers with the story of the first game of the World Series for a Christmas present.

The old guy pitched that first game in the Cubs park, Chicago, and blanked the Little Bears. The score was 1 to 0 and he gave them six hits.

Ed Barrow Had Coached Babe

You, of course, know the story about how he was supposed to set Leslie Mann, who had been slashing the cover off the ball, back on his heels the first time he faced him to show him who was boss.

Ed Barrow, who was managing the Red Sox, had coached Ruth for days about how to pitc to Mann. Had told him what Leslie looked like, where he came in the batting order. All about him in short.

Cousin Ed advised his gallant but goofy young southpaw to step in there and switch a couple under Mr. Mann's cap bill. He figured that Leslie might be just a wee bit annoyed and upset if he got dust on the seat of his trousers.

Imagine, then, Ed's surprise when his gallant but goofy young southpaw started standing poor little Maxie Flack on his spine. Maxie wasn't going to hurt anybody with that bat. Thus after George had given him the duster a time or two he came down the middle with it and struck him out.

After which he came back to the Boston dugout rubbing his hands together with evident satisfaction over a job well done.

"I guess I didn't put that Mann on the seat of his pants like you told me to, eh, boss!" he said.

Yank Battery Poison To All Pitchers

All Chicago hitters looked alike to him in 1918, in other words, and also Chicago pitchers may look alike to him in 1932.

About the time those Cubs get ready to take his pulse, he'll up and take their watches. Just as like as not he'll hit one this afternoon or tomorrow which will break all known records for sustained flight.

Having had a fever means nothing to him. He was born with a fever and a flair for the spectacular. Whoever wants the job can have him to pitch to in the clutches.

QUESTION: THAT SCHMELING INFLUENCE?

That's the champion of the world up there with Andy Callahan. Sharkey saw Der Maxie pop off Mr. Kearns' Toy Bulldog the other night and seemingly couldn't get back to Boston fast enough to do a little private training. So here he is with Andy, who is to meet Lou Brouillard on the Evening American's Christmas Basket Fund card at the Garden, Oct. 7.

Steve Passas will enter the ring a slight favorite to retain his light-heavyweight wrestling championship against the rugged attack of Mephisto at Mechanics Building tonight.

Passas has long been a ruler of his division and few challengers have caused him much worry. Mephisto, because of his youth and power, has a chance of upsetting the champ.

Promoter Charlie Gordon has Rocky Stone meeting Wild Bill Dolan, Ted Germaine tackles Ed Fiella, while there is also a battle royal listed.

In the semifinal Fred Bruno takes on Nick Coste. Swen Siskey meets Al Vantres in a special go.

MIDDLESEX SQUAD OUT

The Middlesex School football squad had its first workout at Concord when 35 candidates reported to Coach Robert F. Foster. There are only five lettermen, Capt. Kenneth Burnes, end; Fielding Simmons, Jr., fullback, and W. Andrew Locke, end; Kenneth Young, Jr., substitute fullback, and Donald Miner, quarterback.

Middlesex will open its season Saturday against Boston Trade School on the Middlesex gridiron.

Fittons Prepare for Invasion of Millstreams

The Fittons are polishing up their attack for the game with the Dorchester Millstreams at Dilboy field, Somerville, next Sabbath. They expect to bury the Millstreams under an avalanche of touchdowns once their backs get the attack clicking.

The U. of Peabody eleven is putting on the finishing touches for its opening game with the Portland Pros at Portland next Sunday. It is expected that the University of Peabody eleven will be one of the best in New England with a flock of well-known college stars on the roster.

Because Orin Pape, a member of the Boston (football) Braves, played with the Pere Marquettes last Sunday against the Brockton Okos it is being thought that the Peres have been taken over as a "farm" for the Tribe.

Nothing definite, however, can be learned about the situation other than that the Braves gave Pape permission to engage in a game with the South Boston Caseys.

If the Braves should make the Peres their prep school the South Boston eleven will be so strong that it would find little competition among other semipro elevens in this sector.

JUMBOS SHOW IMPROVEMENT IN WORKOUT

Lew Manley's Tufts varsity gridmen started their final polishing work today for the Middlebury game, Tufts' first of the year, at the Tufts Oval on Saturday.

In the usual Tuesday scrimmage the varsity showed considerable improvement in its attack.

John McGonagle is playing at guard in place of Len Spaulding, who is on the injured list.

The remainder of the first team lineup looks like the starting lineup for the Middlebury game on Saturday at the Oval. In the line are Freddy Oliver and Gordon Grinnell, at the ends; Roy Woodworth and Ed Batchelder, tackles; Don Cochrane and John McGonagle, guards, and Johnnie Parkhurst, center.

The backfield is not settled, but Bill Staffon at right halfback; Ken Clark, fullback; Sam Clayman at quarter and Bud Uanna at the other wingback work well. Harry Hymanson, Ed Monier and John McMahon will all see service in this backfield against Middlebury.

A very odd scramble of the digits in Tap's cartoon is deduced from the positions of the stars and the planets in the heavens for today. All you have to have is implicit faith in the star gazers. And all they have to have is a chart and a telescope to dope the figures. Or so we understand.

CANADIAN GOLF STAR PUT OUT

Ada McKenzie of Toronto today gained the third round of the women's national golf championship match play by defeating Jean Armstrong of Winnetka, Ill., 6 and 5, on the Salem Country Club's layout.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, who has held the title five times in the past decade, gained a 7 and 5 victory over the other Toronto entry, Mrs. C. S. Eddis, who was good enough last week to place in the finals of the Canadian championship.

Mrs. Leo Federman of Lakeville, N. Y., was onee up on Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., one of the women's national title golf favorites, today, when they finished the first half of their second round match on the Salem Country Club's course.

Both went out in 42, four over par, and Mrs. Federman gained her lead by winning the ninth with a par four. On that hole Miss Orcutt's run-up putt was short and she needed two more to get down to a five.

Ada MacKenzie of Toronto, was four up on Jean Armstrong, of Winnetka, Ill., after going out in 39, one over par.

GLENNA IN LEAD

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia had the same margin on the other Toronto entry, Mrs. C. S. Eddis, who was runner-up in last week's Canadian championship.

The five-times former champion was 40 out, playing the last two in fives to her opponent's sixes. Mrs. Eddis was 45 out. She is a short hitter and she was bothered by the heavy going.

Mrs. Vare snagged a birdie on the first, putting her second on and got a par four on the second to go two up.

Mrs. Eddis gained backa hole by negotiating the short third in a par three, Glenn trapped her drive and took two putts for a four. The ex-champion got another birdie four on the fourth, reaching the green again in two. Mrs. Eddis three-putted for a six and again went two down.

Peggy Wattles of Buffalo was two up on Mrs. C. F. Eaton, Jr., of Wellesley, at the turn.

VAN WIE ONE UP

Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, was one up on Edith Quier, Haverford, Pa., when they started on the inward nine. Miss Van Wie lost the eighth with a six and both went two over on the ninth, the Chicago girl three-putted Miss Quier put her second in the pond.

Miss MacKenzie took the fifth with a par five, yielded the next to a regulation three but became three up again by getting on the seventh in two and dropping her second putt. Miss Armstrong had a poor second and a worse chip for a six.

MRS. HIGBIE ONE UP

Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit was one up on Rosalie Knapp of Glenhead, N. Y., going to the fifth, after taking the first and third holes with pars. Both were one over on the second and a birdie four gave Miss Knapp the fifth, where she got on in two and dropped an easy second putt.

FORMER PURPLE STAR DRAFTED BY TIGERS

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Failure of the major league clubs to exercise their privilege of selecting players has put a temporary quietus on the cries of anguish which have risen from time to time from minor league clubs which objected to giving up some of their best players for low prices through the draft system.

3 PITCHERS DRAFTED

At the annual draft meeting last night, three pitchers and an outfielder were chosen from four class "AA" clubs. In 1931 a list of 15 drafted players was considered unusually small compared to the 20 to 25 men chosen for several seasons before.

The players drafted last night are:

By the Chicago White Sox—Joe Heving, pitcher, from Indianapolis, won 15 games and lost nine in 1932.

By the Detroit Tigers—Frank Nekola, pitcher, from Newark. Won six, lost 11 in 1932; played also with Toronto.

By the Chicago Cubs—Lynn Nelson, pitcher, from Seattle. Has won 21 and lost 15 so far this year.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

It was an improved Max Schmeling who knocked out Mickey Walker in eight rounds. The German is punching shorter with his right hand than he did in his bout with Jack Sharkey.

Incidentally Schmeling now throws a short right hand much like Sharkey does. Sharkey developed a short right hand punch when he fought Harry Wills. He has since improved on this wallop. It was particularly successful in both of Sharkey's bouts with Schmeling.

Max apparently decided he would do better with his own right if he shortened it a bit. He still lets a long right hand punch breeze now and then, but only after he has slowed down the opposition with straight left jabs and short right hand punches.

* * *

Max to Fight Strib

Joe Jacobs tells me Schmeling will fight Young Stribling at Miami, Fla., and that he may also take on Max Baer in California. Baer and Schmeling would draw a tremendous gate in either Los Angeles or San Francisco. Baer has won his last 11 starts, and is already being hailed as the next champion by Californians, who are very strong for native sons.

Then there is a possibility of Schmeling battling Primo Carnera.

"If Schmeling can knock out Baer and Carnera, the German and Sharkey will draw a million dollars next year," said Jimmy Johnston, who knows his cauliflower.

Lee Picks Callahan

Andy Callahan will win the New England welterweight championship, from Lou Brouillard at the Boston Garden a week from Friday night, according to George (Kid) Lee of Worcester, former New England welterweight champion.

"I have seen Brouillard in most of his important bouts," said Lee during a fanning bee in New York the other night. "Lou is a great fighter, but I think Callahan punches too hard for him.

"I do not believe Brouillard's five-pound weight advant'ge on Andy means a great deal. When I won the New England welterweight title from Al Mello, I weighed 140 pounds, while Al scaled 150. Even ten pounds doesn't mean a great deal in this class.

"Callahan will be strong at 142 pounds, while Brouillard will have to strain himself a bit to come in at 147.

"I believe Andy is wise in not trying to put on extra weight. It wouldn't do him any good and would have a tendency to slow him down.

"Walker made the mistake of coming in too heavy for Schmeling. Mickey scaled 174 pounds which was eight pounds above his natural fighting notch. The extra weight was only useless fat, and tended to slow the Rumson warrior down. Walker would probably have got knocked out no matter what he weighed, but he would have made a better showing than he did if he had not tried to build himself up.

"Callahan has had more experience than Brouillard. He also punches harder than Lou. Brouillard's best sock is a right hook to the chin, but Callahan figures to get inside of this blow. He will also have an excellent chance to score with his own left if Brouillard pulls back with his right hook.

"I am making a little wager Callahan wins the New England welterweight title. And he may do so by scoring a knockout."

GRID RULING MAY HINDER CRICKARD

Harvard began to feel the weight of those much discussed changes in the football rules for the 1932 season today. And it's doubtful whether you'll find the Crimson strategists as much in favor of the changes today as they were at the beginning of the season.

The Crimson will depend upon Bullet Jack Crickard to put Harvard above its many and powerful opponents during the next two months of grid warfare.

As he runs, Crickard whirls and dodges. But the new rules say that if any part of the ball carries excepting his hands or feet touch the ground, the forward progress of the ball is stopped and the play ended.

RULE STOPPED CRICKARD

In the last scrimmage the Casey squad engaged in Crickard dashed for the goal line, 30 yards distant. He was but five yards from scoring when a [illegible] defensive back barely hit him with his arm, knocking Jack off balance. One of his knees touched the ground as he recovered. Instantly the whistle blew, stopping action.

Heretofore, the Crimson star would have gathered himself together and continued in his stride, crossing the line before an opponent could get within yards of him. Now Harvard is afraid that it will see its brightest star and most effective weapon robbed of his effectiveness in some important games.

Harvard's injury list reduced yesterday to three athletes acquired new proportions as a result of the fire and spirit shown by Jimmy Knox's Junior Varsity.

FIVE OF VARSITY HURT

At any rate, five varsity men required the attention of Dr. Gus Thorndike, the team physician during the practice and were ordered from the field of play.

Donald Gleason was the first of the lot. Gleason joined the squad yesterday, after being out with an injury for about a week. It was his first scrimmage in several days and may be his last until just before the New Hampshire contest. The other non-combatants today are Bob Hurlbut, halfback, George Bennett, halfback, Samuel Wolcott, end, Richard Dow, tackle.

The only players definitely out of the first game are Warren Casey, center, and Donald Gleason. And the absence of these two centers caused Eddie Casey to shift another guard to tackle. Frank Crane, originally a center and a good one at Everett High and Andover Academy, went back to his old position today.

SIKI PINNED BY NICK LUTZE

Nick Lutze of California won in straight falls over Regis Siki in the main go of the wrestling show at the Rollaway Rink in Revere. Lutze won both falls with a double armlock and backfall.

Karol Zbyszko of Poland threw George Saunders of New Orleans with a top body hold and double wristlock.

In other bouts Nick Skotos of New York and Wong Buck Cheung went to a 20-minute draw and Bob Wilkins of Texas and Frank Carone of Lynn drew in 30 minutes.

Who's Going to Lose?

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Here's how the rival managers looked at the World Series between the Yankees and the Cubs, starting today:

Charley Grimm, Cubs: "Naturally I think we'll win. I won't attempt to say how many games it will go. My men aren't afraid of the Yankee hitters. We have confidence in our pitchers."

Joe McCarthy, Yankees: "I think we'll win all right. There isn't a limp or a gimp on the club. We're in grand shape from top to bottom."

RAIN FORCES HALT IN HOLE-IN-ONE TOURNEY

125 GOLFERS WILL TEE OFF TOMORROW

Rain temporarily halted play in the Boston Evening American's Hole-in-One contest at Franklin Park today.

The entire tournament is therefore moved up a day. Starters scheduled for today will have the same times tomorrow, and Thursday starters will go Friday.

If you have any doubt as to your starting time, watch the lists published daily. No one will miss a chance at winning.

Although the weatherman promised clearing skies later today, there will be no play in the contest whatever.

KEEPERS AT WORK

This is in order that the greenkeepers may restore both tee and green to their first day condition.

It is also to give you remaining contestants an even break with the first day golfers.

The rain gives the present low man of the tournament, Henry C. Lynch of West Medford, another day of grace in which to rule the Hole-In-One roost.

While Henry is tops at present, indications are that the mark of 18½ inches will be bettered before the entire 1400 golfers have taken their five cuts at the pill.

Four contestants in as many hours were low in the first day's competition. The lead shifted rapidly as new marks were set.

The somewhat heavy green was an aid to most of the golfers who managed to get within scoring distance of the flag.

15 ACES IN CIRCLE

Mashie niblick or soft No. 6 irons shots had a tendency, once they hit the green, to "sit down" with rolls of less than three feet. This accounts for 15 aces getting inside the 10 foot circle.

The mashie niblick, incidentally, is the most popular club for this test. Some golfers use two and three clubs in the course of driving their five shots. There's no rule against this.

Low trajectory shots are much more apt to get results than high sailing drives.

125 START TOMORROW

This is because of the wind which sweeps with considerable force at all times over the trees to the right of the green. At the end of its flight, a ball caught in this wind will travel as much as 10 feet out of line. Plenty of near perfect attempts ended this way yesterday.

Another 125 golfers will star in quest of the elusive ace at the Park tomorrow. There'll be pro's and dubs in the entry list. But by now, everyone knows that anything can happen in a tournament like this.

Incidentally,135 last minute golfers got in under the wire today.

WASHBURN AND BRIDE HERE

"Gentleman" Jack Washburn, accompanied by his bride, the former Dorothy Dawn, stage star, arrived in this city today ready for his finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, with Gus Sonnenberg, which will be held at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

Washburn was secretly married to Miss Dawn at Montreal three weeks ago. It will be remembered that Miss Dawn came to Boston last summer to see "Gentleman" Jack while he was training for his bout with Henri DeGlane.

The fact a party of Boston society girls gave Washburn a tea at the Ritz prompted her visit. She was quite anxious to know what it was all about when she arrived.

If Washburn wins from Sonnenberg, he will demand another title go with DeGlane.

Harvard Band Has Brisk Workout; Squad Large

Harvard's 60-piece band, one of the finest in the East in past years, got its first workout along with the varsity grid men yesterday.

It looks like a bigger and better season for the Crimson musicians, with a larger turnout than ever before.

College bands may be just bands at other institutions, but at Harvard the band is a big thing, and the competition for a place in the lineup is as keen as for a spot on the eleven itself.

'Experts' and 'Dubs' Grin Into Rain

Driving rain and a stiff cross wind at the green, but not noticeable at the tee had the morning golfers all hooking deeply to the left.

• • •

After he drove within inches of counting distance of the cup, Park Commissioner William P. Long confessed that he could barely see the flag at which he was shooting because of the rain.

• • •

Sam Rosenthal, one of the early starters, had a gallery who applauded every shot. He repaid the rooters by landing a shot which led the field, momentarily.

• • •

Two baseball Jack Ryans were among the gallery. Jack Ryan, the old Washington catcher and Red Sox coach, was on hand to watch Tommy Murray make his 19½-inch shot, and Jack Ryan, former International League outfielder, was also among the spectators.

• • •

The gallery will be a long time forgetting the bid one-armed Johnny Yuark made to land in the 10-foot radius. Here's a kid that has plenty of heart.

• • •

The gallery drew another from the baseball ranks in Dr Harry W. Martin, at one time a pitcher for Tufts College and the Philadelphia Athletics.

• • •

The tendency to "choke up" before the crowd, especially among the women, was noticeable. Most of the golfers took little time between shots.

• • •

Percy E. Spiers of Dedham missed a fine chance to land in the running when his best ball was 3 feet 3 inches from the cup. His five shots were all fine but were twisted to the left by the strong cross wind.

• • •

Robert W. McLean's partners, Tom Boyle and Joe McIntyre failed to appear with the third place winner. They are still eligible to compete.

• • •

STATE FIRST BOWDOIN FOE

Brunswick, Me., Sept. 28—In preparation for the game with Massachusetts State College, with which Bowdoin opens at Whittier field on Saturday, Coach Charlie Bowser is giving the squad long signal drills.

Several new plays are being tried.

Thus far, the backfield has not looked good. The men are slow and their interference is poor, but the squad as a whole show decided improvement.

INDIANS' NEW SHIFT PROVES EFFECTIVE

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 28—The Green's latest weapon, the new Dartmouth shift, which was shelved prior to the Norwich game, was brought back into the Indians' practice regime today when Coach Jack Cannell sent his first four elevens through a stiff workout, employing the new shift in scrimmage for the first time.

Coach Cannell's latest trick has much merit and will be a big factor in the 1932 campaign. The Dartmouth mentor is as yet undecided whether to test the shift against Vermont, preferring to wait until the Lafayette game if necessary until the warriors are ready for the formation.

Cannell continued to stress fundamentals, drilling the linesmen on charging and defensive work for some time.

The first and second string backfields and ends again rehearsed aerial plays, employing laterals as well as forward passes. In the kicking scrimmage between teams A and B, Bill Clark and Jack Donovan did the booting, the latter replacing Jack Hill who had late classes.

Several promising prospects in the scrub ranks were revealed in today's scrimmage. Jack Mahoney, J. W. Knibbs and Jim Aieta performed well in the backfield, while Sweeney, O'Leary and Arthurs played well in the line.

Lineups in today's scrimmage were: Team A—Mackey, le; Baldwin, lt; Michelet, lg; Branch, c; Hoffman, rg; Glazer, rt; Donner, re; Fishman, qb; Donovan, lhb; Clark, rhb; Morton, fb. Team B—Embry, le; Conothan, lt; Hulsart, lg; Frankel, c; Huntley, rg; Shuttleworth, rt; Trost, re, Hedges, qb; Mahoney, lhb; Stangle, rhb; Crandell, fb.

BOSTON ELEVENS IN TWIN BILL AT FENWAY

JAMAICA AND HYDE PARK FAVORED

Another doubleheader will occupy the center of the Boston high school grid stage at Fenway Park today.

In one half of the twin bill, Coach Jimmy Duffey brings his Purple and Gold eleven in from Jamaica Plain to match punts and passes with Mechanic Arts high. In the other game, Skip Sherlock's eleven from Hyde Park comes to grips with Trade School.

Both Jamaica and Hyde Park are slight favorites pointing for victories in their respective debuts. Both are anxious to equal the victory marks of East Boston high, which got off on the right foot against Brighton in the grid debut at Fenway Park yesterday.

Today's meeting between Hyde Park and Trade School will be the first in three years. In 1929, the out-of-town club ground out a two touchdown win.

The debut of Jamaica Plain and Mechanic Arts is also a rubber affair. Mechanic Arts dropped the powerful suburban outfit in the opener last season, wiping out Jamaica's victory of the year before.

Slippery conditions, such as the teams may expect to encounter at Fenway Park today, will favor the light teams of Jamaica and Trade.

East Boston, true to predictions, was impressive as it rolled over Brighton to a 12-0 win.

George Sacco and Irving Crossetti halfbacks for the Noddle Island outfit, put their team ahead by two touchdowns over the suburban boys. Crossetti intercepted a pass and ran 60 yards for a score, and Sacco recovered a fumble back of Brighton's goal line to give East Boston an extra six points.

Tom Campbell's Memorial high served notice on the rest of the high school world that it is definitely out of the pushover class when it ground out a 6-0 win over a powerful Charlestown team.

BRAVES SET FOR LEAGUE OPENER

A final two-day drive for the Boston Braves is scheduled by Coach Lid Wray at Braves Field today and tomorrow.

The pro coach is working like a beaver getting the club in perfect shape for Benny Freidman's Dodgers, who will be the first opponents of the season at Braves Field, next Sunday.

ATTACK NEEDS POLISH

Much to Wray's discomfiture, he has noticed one or two rough spots in the Tribal offense which will need plenty of attention if the Braves are to get off on the right foot against the Dodgers Sunday.

For the first time since the opening of the training season, Wray witnessed his Warner-Jones offense show indications of stalling. Hence the double sessions of today and tomorrow.

A single drill will be given the Braves Thursday, while on Friday they will taper off with light drills and kicking practice for the backs.

LINE SHIFTS EXPECTED

It is expected that Wray's original lineup in the backfield will remain intact, though there may be a few shifts in the Braves' forward line.

The backs will be Hughes, Pinkert, Musick and Plansky at the kickoff Sunday, Wray indicated. Wray may replace his entire center trio before game time, so the line is unsettled.

Reggie Rust is still on the arnica squad.

JONES K. O.'D BY UNKNOWN IN FIRST

By GEORGE GRIMM

They were thinking up today a new first moniker for the huge Hartford Negro known as Unknown Winston. They were also wondering, on the strength of Unknown's showing, first against Walter Cobb and last night's victim, Billy Jones of Philadelphia, also colored, why he was ever known as Unknown.

By the way he flung a pair of hands like mallets all over the Arena ring last night, he shouldn't be unknown, Unknown. Mister Jones, sah, withered into a state of I-don't-care under Unknown Winston's whacks in less than a round of boxing.

The huge Hartford colored gentleman, Winstôn, knocked out Billy Jones, highly-touted Philadelphia Negro, in the first round of a slated 10-round main go.

BRASSILL HALTS GO

Winston floored Jones six times in less than two minutes. The last knockdown was the final. A left hook to Jones' jaw did the trick, and with such dispatch that the Philadelphian's mouthpiece flew 50 feet into the audience. Jones sprawled in a wobbly heap to the resin and Referee Brassill stopped the fight.

The second-last 10-rounder was a thing of beauty to behold. The light-footed, hard-punching Steve Halaiko won a decision over a worthy contender in Pancno Villa of New Bedford. The very first spasm had the paying customers out of their chairs.

Villa opened a cut under the Buffalo lightweight's eye in the first round, but the damage proved not serious. The bout merited a return engagement, which, duly enough, and hardly after the semi-finalists had gone to the dressing-room, was announced by Promoter Eddie Mack for two weeks hence.

Frankie O'Brien scored an eight-round technical knockout over Tony Domingues of Cuba, in another 10-rounder O'Brien's southpaw style aggravated the Cuban, who flung punches in the breaks and antagonized the watchers. Domingues' left eye closed tightly from a punch landed in the eighth round, and the medicos advised the curtain.

So What?

—By JOE MOONEY—

When Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey embrace, as they did at the recent fight, you can't tell whether they're shaking hands or tieing each other up.

One more win and that Unknown Winston will become the most famous mystery since hash was invented.

Speaking of tieing up, Primo Carnera, with the aid of the New York Supreme Court, had Max Schmeling so he couldn't reach into his pockets.

The suit says that Max wanted to hire office space between Primo's shoulder blades.

And, after he hired the office, he found it was too high up for business.

A miss is as good as a mile. But not for walking.

Ooh! Boogeyman!

Hush, child, it's only Herb Verney, Bucknell's star halfback. He doesn't wear that "iron mask" to scare you, or the opposing linemen. It's—well, it's to protect his classic features.

PETTY, MURPHY SLATED FOR MOUND DUTY

Newark, N. J., Sept. 28 (INS)—Jess Petty for Minneapolis and Johnny Murphy for the Newark Bears were groomed today to pitch in the little World's series games to be played tomorrow night.

Newark jumped into the lead in the series with a 11-to-0 victory yesterday, Donald Brennan, portly International League pitching star, holding the Millers to four hits. Charley Hargreaves, former Brooklyn Dodgers catcher, led the Newark attack, getting four of 16 hits.

Ryan, Vangilder and Hill were ineffective against Newark's clouters for the Association champions. Only once, in the third inning, did the Millers get more than one man on base. The attendance was 6339, with total receipts of $8951.

H. C. CAPTAIN MAY BE IDLE FOR MONTH

Worcester, Sept. 28—Thirty-three members of the Holy Cross football squad were named for training table today.

Capt. John J. McEwan, coach, is drilling the team lightly, stressing passing attack.

Don Kelly's ankle injury is likely to keep him out of the Providence game Saturday. Bart Hanus, who scored both touchdowns against New River in the opening game, is on team A in Kelly's place.

Capt. Jim Ryan's leg was inclosed in a new cast today. He may be lost to the Crusaders for a month.

Jim Flanagan, Portland, Me., boy, has been advanced to right tackle to replace Ryan.

Walter Clifford, rated as second in value among the pilots, is in a Boston hospital under observation for stomach trouble.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

In the name of bigger and better vaudeville, Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit are this week emerging from several years of immersion in radio to once more test their talents in the face of an observing as well as a listening audience. For a single week at RKO Keith's they will be seen as well as heard; in the meantime those pestiferous radio contracts will be solemnly observed at some expense by transfering two weekly broadcasts from New York studios to strictly local stations

* * *

Divide Time Between Stage and Radio

Without much parading of facts and figures, Miss Sanderson and Mr. Crumit are mixing a single week of radio and the legitimate drama, doing double duty at satisfactory compensation. The appearance of these people at Keith's next Saturday will be the only time this season that two of radio's most talented entertainers will desert the glass-enclosed studio for the open stage. Both Miss Sanderson and Mr. Crumit are ample figures of days gone by in the theater—Mr. Crumit especially. A portly gentleman, with ukulele dangling at his side, he will be easily remembered by many playgoers whose faith was strong in musical comedy. Miss Sanderson, too, will be no unrecognized personage to many who make their way to Keith's next week. Heroine of many musical romances sponsored by the Shuberts in their early days and later by the more artistic [illegible]an, Miss Sanderson sang her happy way through [illegible] and corresponding matinees.

Concession [illegible] Restricted to a Limited Few

[illegible] Miss Sanderson and Mr. Crumit are two of radio's [illegible] stars who are permitted to maintain business contact with rival programs. While this may not in its finer sense come under the head of trade restriction, there is still a measure of monopoly in it. The concession is accorded—if at all—to only a limited few. The cost of transferring two weekly broadcasts from New York to Boston during the engagement of these entertainers at Keith's is staggering in items of dollars and cents But it has been graciously accepted by the anxious advertisers All of which, in its own way, suggests the supremacy of the air in matters sternly commercial.

* * *

For the [illegible] time in Boston, though the idea is not entirely novel, E. E. Clive, director of stage affairs at the Copley, will on Friday give the first of a series of free performances of "The Squeaker" to the unemployed A similar attempt to lighten the worries of men and women out of work was attempted by the Actors Equity Association in New York. Boston, fortunately, has not been convinced of the need of such demonstrations Mr. Clive, however, considers the idea practical for any town and proposes to put it into effect at once. There will be weekly performances of plays at the Copley for those who are idle tickets for which will be distributed by the welfare departments of Boston and neighboring towns

A Rare Feature

According to the law, Will Mahoney, current stage star at the Metropolitan, was denied the privilege of presenting his eccentric dances on Sunday. He did manage, nevertheless, to put forth his most interesting dance on that day and still keep within the law. While denied the privilege of skipping about on the stage he was not denied the light fantastic which he performed upon the xylophone That, in legal parlance, was an expression in music.

George Bancroft Selected to Head Film Cast of Chicago Story

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1932, by Universal News [illegible]

Los Angeles, Sept. 28.—George Bancroft will star in "If Christ Comes to Chicago," the late William T. Stead's novel which Edward Small and Harry Goetz of Reliance Pictures are producing for United Artists release The 40-year-old story is so popular in Great Britain that the sale of the film in England alone is expected to pay the cost of the negative

Jack Lait who knows his Chicago, is modernizing the Stead novel which will be one of four features on the new Goetz-Small program. "[illegible] the Waterfront" with Edmund Lowe [illegible] Style with Lyle Talbot [illegible] will be produced first. The Goetz-Small-United Artists affiliation [illegible] with U. A.'s policy of producing through independent units. A method of production which other major studios are taking up more and more.

Cromwell Picked

The coveted role of Tom Lee the young lover in M-G-M's "Son Daughter" has just been handed to Columbia's youthful Richard Cromwell. Perhaps the fact that Radio has been trying to get Cromwell for "Broken Blossoms," as reported exclusively in this column, gave M-G-M the idea of testing him for a Chinese role. Anyway, if I'm flattering myself, don't disillusion me. We columnists (even pinch hitters) can't help cherishing the forlorn hope that somebody pays attention to us

Retakes Necessary

Because both Phillips Holmes and Laura Hope Crews are unavailable for retakes Radio has called in Joel McCrea and Jobyna Howland to replace them in "Rockabye." The unavailability of Holmes is a tough break for the Studio, since he figures in several scenes which they had counted on retaining in the new version. Now these scenes, too, will have to be remade, since Phil is due at Fox shortly for "State Fair

DAVIS OPPOSED GAMBLES, SAYS BROENING

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

[illegible] Staff Correspondent. [illegible], Sept. 28.—Neither U. S. Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania nor the supreme council of the Loyal Order of Moose etc. passed upon the 1930 and 1931 charity balls, alleged lotteries, it was testified today by William F. Broening, former mayor of Baltimore and ex-supreme dictator of the Moose at the lottery trial of Davis.

The witness, called by the defense, added that neither Davis nor the supreme council ever discussed the charity affairs as far as he could remember.

"On the contrary, Director-General Davis frequently expressed his opposition to all forms of gambling," testified Broening, a member of the supreme council.

What a newsreel subject this would have made — "Nero fiddling while Rome burns!" Too bad it happened so long ago — long before "The Globe Trotter" began to cover the news of the world and bring it to you via the talking picture screen, the radio and the newspaper press. If it happened today, "The Globe Trotter" would be right on the job — you would get a close-up of Nero's court — you would hear the crackle of the flames, their talk — and even the tune that Nero played. That's the way history is being recorded today — what a sensation for us and for generations to come!

'PILL BOX' GUARDS PAID $10 A DAY BY U. S.

THIS IS LIFE

OUIMET AND TUNNEY TELL THE WORLD OF THEIR INNER SECRET SELVES

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

SENDING ME BOOKS about golf and boxing is like sending grass petticoats to an Eskimo. But Houghton & Mifflin, the firm that once published Emerson and Longfellow, are now publishing Francis Ouimet and Gene Tunney. And very interesting publications they are, too. Ouimet's story has been out since the first of the month and Tunney's story is out today. So before the Jack Conways and the Bill Cunninghams say the final definitive words on Tunney's book, let me glance at it from my own inexpert angle.

R. E. ROGERS

Since I have never seen a major boxing match nor a major golf match, I have nothing to say about Tunney's disputed long count . . . of which, however, he makes a long and serious analysis . . . or about Ouimet's stance and grip. I want to talk about the personalities revealed in these books. The two volumes prove once more that although some autobiographies are better than others no autobiographies are uninteresting. And here are the stories of two men who belong in the aristocracies of their respective professions.

They belong, too, in a way past dispute. One can dispute forever about the merits of two statesmen or philosophers. But in sport one wins or loses. And if one wins often enough and in fast enough company, one belongs to the aristocracy. These books seems to tell me that if you want to belong you have to begin young. Francis Ouimet played cow pasture golf on the edge of the Woodland Club for years before he ever played on a real course. He found lost balls and snitched his brother's one club. He played all the time. The result was that in 1913 at the age of 20 he won the open championship and the next year the National Amateur.

After that he belonged to the small group of the elect, usually being a member of the Walker Cup Team, the inside group of the sport. Similarly Gene Tunney fought his first fights on the sidewalks of New York. He was a scrapper. He fought his way up in little local clubs and boys' organizations, and had begun to be known a little when war broke out. Once on the other side the interest of the officers in competitive sports gave him his chance, so that the young, lanky marine became the champion of the A. E. F., and decided to drop the shipping business and go after the title of the great Dempsey. Tunney's championship and Ouimet's comeback last year are perfectly logical. Given a life long devotion to the game—and Tunney insists that he never condescended to boxing, only to boxing writers—and the result seems reasonable, provided there is strength, skill and intelligence to supplement the devotion.

Ouimet's is a far happier story than Tunney's. The golfer is obviously a less introspective, less introverted person than the boxer. Ouimet tells us little of the inside of his life. His delight is in remembering his matches, play by play, and the good strokes of his [illegible] opponents. In the background is a modest business and a suburban business man, with home, wife and children [illegible] only occasionally centered, as in 1913 and 1931. He is content to be a happy amateur, in the top rank of his beloved avocation, taking the breaks of the game as they come with the true pleasure of the sportsman.

Gentlemen Vs. Cheats and Thugs

Tunney had a harder time of it, partly because of his temperament, partly because of his sport. Ouimet, without intending to, makes it perfectly clear that golf is a gentleman's game. Tunney deliberately makes it clear that professional boxing is a dirty game, full of chisellers, go-betweens, percentage-splitters, racketeers and the like. If a golf champion has difficulties, Ouimet says nothing about them. But Tunney says that Dempsey warned him that his troubles were just beginning. At one time he had suits against him aggregating more than $2,000,000.

Ouimet's only trouble seemed a certain tendency to bronchitis, but Tunney's left arm was so nearly paralyzed that he had a hard time enlisting in the Marines. Later, just before his championship series in the A. E. F. he broke his right hand and fought all through the series with it swollen to double its size. Thereafter he always had brittle hands, and for one spell he was away from the ring at least two years, living the life of a laborer and woodsman, trying to get his hands into shape.

Ouimet's first victory seems to have come to him as a great surprise. Thereafter, apparently, he always rid his best but without much worrying. Tunney worried all the time. He had the dreadful will to excel, as well as a vivid imagination that tended to keep him awake worrying about what his opponent might do to him, until he conquered that by sheer effort of will. His championship of the A. E. F. was unsought for and unexpected, but he deliberately determined to risk everything on going professional in order to get a chance to fight with Dempsey.

The story of the long climb is not a pretty one. The fighting part of it was bad enough, particularly the match when Greb cut his face to ribbons, but worse was the behind-the-scenes intrigue. Tunney himself, he says, planned the elimination series by which Tex Rickard promoted the biggest matches and the largest gates the sport has known.

Tunney Fighting the "System"

The back-scenes manipulations, particularly before the two fights with Dempsey, throw a lurid light on the state of the game, and Tunney treats the whole business in a cold, contemptuous way, which is rather effective. But there is no doubt that here is a thin-skinned, introspective worrier, with bad hands, who is not only fighting Dempsey, but fighting the whole game, his own friends as well, his own brittle hands and his own temperament. And his somewhat abrupt and dramatic conclusion to the book, the story of the boxer who was struck blind in a match somehow ties exactly the right knot in it.

I take it for granted that both men wrote their books. The publishers vouch for Tunney's, and Ouimet's is a pleasant, yarn-spinning undistinguished style of writing that seems perfectly authentic. Tunney's style is not pompous, as I feared it would be. There are one or two literary allusions dragged in by the heels, but on the whole, the writing is easy and vigorous, though pretty conventional in phrasing. The titles are clearly indicative of the men. Ouimet's "A Game of Golf" exactly describes Ouiment's attitude toward his long and happy life as a golfer.

Tunney's "A Man Must Fight" also exactly describes his attitude toward his own career, a little self-conscious, but not self-confident, an irrepressible habit of dramatizing himself, a touch even of melodrama and rhetoric which seems inseparable from the man. I will leave it to the experts to decide on the validity of Tunney's "alibis" . . . if alibis they are. To me the book is pretty persuasive; it rings true.

But in Ouimet's book one catches a glimpse of a picture of amateur sport at its best, played by a gentleman, who, altogether unconsciously, has given a picture of himself as the ideal sportsman.

Plea for Science

L. A. Hawkins, executive engineer of the General Electric Research Laboratories in Schenectady, N. Y., who made an appeal for application of scientific principles to politics when he addressed the Illuminating Society's convention in Swampscott today.

URGES SCIENCE IN POLITICS

A plea for the application of the scientific principle of progressive experiment to politics and economics was made today by L. A. Hawkins to the 26th Annual Convention of the Illuminating Society at the New Ocean House in Swampscott.

Hawkins, executive engineer of General Electric research laboratories, traced the course of scientific progress throughout the last 40 years, and compared its steady flow to the erratic eddies of the other two fields during the same period.

"Science proceeds entirely by experiment," he stated, "which has never been true about economics and politics. No cause was ever really advanced by the sure thing bet."

The entertainment climax of the convention is to be reached tonight with the annual banquet, entertainment and dance, which is to solace the golfers who braved the wet for the annual golf tournament held at Tedesco today.

MORE POLICE TO GUARD DOLE WORKERS

Second Assault in a Week at Overseers; Woman Victim Is Lacerated

The second assault in the welfare building within a week is expected to result in additional police being detailed today to prevent outbreaks.

Yesterday a woman supervisor was brutally beaten by an aid applicant because she refused to sign a card stating the applicant had complied with all the rules of the department.

FACES ASSAULT CHARGE

Joseph Russo, of Havre st., East Boston, the alleged assailant, will be arraigned in Municipal Court today charged with assault and battery.

The victim, Miss Alice M. Shea of Tremlett st., Dorchester, was treated at City Hospital for lacerations of the hands and face.

Russo was one of a number of men waiting to have cards signed proving they had worked for the city. Miss Shea refused to sign his card as he had failed to do the work. Police said he became abusive and then attacked her.

ATTACKER SEIZED

Russo was overpowered by applicants and welfare workers.

Miss Shea was wearing glasses when attacked and it was feared she may have received a nose fracture when they were broken.

Walter V. McCarthy, secretary to the board of overseers, termed the attack the most "ghastly affair" which has yet occurred in the welfare building.

After an all-day meeting of the welfare board, more than 150 of the 500 cases investigated by police were taken under consideration.

She loathes vulgar-looking flaming red painted nails but adores [illegible] as her favorite [illegible] . . . [illegible] so she boasts [illegible] sapphires . . . And wears a sapphire ring that has been [illegible] many times [illegible] in Switzerland at the age of 14 and paid for it out of the profits of her first book [illegible] . . . The bluest of eyes . . . Natural wavy brown hair . . . A suggestion of a chin dimple . . . Thin but warm lips . . . A throaty voice which is business-like yet cordial . . . She's five feet nine inches tall but would rather see her age in print than her poundage . . . (She did not tell us the age, however!) . . . She smokes moderately, modernly . . . Is a dainty eater . . . Loathes driving any auto and uses every means to escape doing so . . . Is crazy about clothes . . . Fussy about her silk crepe nighties which she wears to bed . . . Biographies, histories and modern novels which one should read, she feels, to keep apace with the ways of the times now . . . Prefers Wagner's music . . . Thinks the "Overture of 1812" is simply the best . . . And that Beethoven's symphonies should be a part of every child's life . . . She adores her children, but with her four boys away at school—the oldest is a Harvard soph . . . And her daughter a-schooling, Mrs. Cutler devotes her entire time to outside things, since her home life is so arranged now . . . Her kids are crazy about the success of their nice looking, youngish mother and proud as punch over the fact that she's not growing "fat and forty" over a bridge table!

How She Became a Lady Pol

When Mrs. Cutler was Leslie Bradley, Boston society girl, her one idea was to have fun as much as possible at parties and such like . . . She was noted for her love of horses and [illegible] blue ribbon winners . . . Then she became interested in social welfare work at the North End . . . Then Red Cross [illegible] during the war . . . [illegible] after the women [illegible] the vote. Women look at politics with an entirely different point of view [illegible] . . . [illegible] the women of Massachusetts [illegible] a little feminine [illegible] instead of the usual [illegible] talk [illegible] to the male voters . . . And most of all [illegible] reason [illegible] because she wants to help the needy, unemployed and more unfortunate ones . . . And realizes that in political power you can get to the right people for the right help.

Pickups:

Buddy Clark is not his real name! It's Samuel Goldie [illegible] and his pals call him "Sambo" and he began to sing like that when he was [illegible] Lou Rubin's Roxbury place when he was thirteen . . . And now he [illegible] for Met and [illegible] . . . Dorchester's Edith Pracker quit punching the clock last Saturday preparatory to her gold banding with Roxbury's F. L. Dorsey on Columbus Day . . . Twill be Cliff Natalie who'll music-shick it for the Tuesday Night Clubbers at their formal dance at Longwood Towers Oct. 4 . . . Wonder if that's really true that Winchester's sister-in-law is one of the Wynsom [illegible] ines . . . Albert Sheehan, formerly of the Tremont Theater, will take charge of the Wilbur Theater and we're still baffled as to what that big Boston Theater combination [illegible] . . . Ed Jardon and Bill Payne are two tenors with something in common, they're daily handball pards at the Y. M. [illegible] . . . Collection Racketeers Flee Bullet Threats

Collection racketeers from B[illegible] were driven out of New Hampshire and reminded that their departure would be speeded by bullets if they weren't quick about it, according to news today from Lochmere, a suburb of Laconia.

[illegible] Mrs. [illegible] whose methods [illegible] nationally.

Atty. Francis G. V[illegible] who [illegible] Middlesex county [illegible] not to pay another cent to the agencies [illegible] the government would defend them.

MAYOR OFFERS AID

Mayor Charles E. Carroll of Laconia [illegible] when he told Mrs. Florence B. Chamberlain that she should have used a shotgun on them and that if she lacked the courage he would do it for her.

The three collectors who caused all the rumpus said they represented the New England Collection Agency of Boston. They gave their names as E. F. Fletcher, 31 Blue Hill ave., Roxbury; Walter Brown, [illegible] Green [illegible] and Joseph C[illegible], Washington st., Roxbury.

Atty. Robert A. [illegible] lawyer, who founded and [illegible] director of the New England Collection Agency, and his brother Dr. A. F. [illegible] Cambridge [illegible] of the National Collection [illegible].

TEN INDICTED

[illegible] of their employees [illegible] Ada Sissen alias [illegible] are under indictment in Middlesex County.

"If I had a gun I would have shot them," said Mrs. Chamberlain to Mayor Carroll and the police. "I have enough spunk to do the shooting myself Mr. Mayor. Just get me the cartridges and see."

The trouble started when the three [illegible] of the Boston agency [illegible] to collect a bill for $19 from [illegible] Chester of Lochmere, and [illegible] housekeeper Mrs. Chamberlain.

DENIES DEBT

Chester, holding an able-looking [illegible] engaged in an argument with the collectors. He told them that neither he nor his housekeeper owed any such bill. [illegible] the collectors didn't even know what the bill was for but [illegible] been sent there to collect [illegible] remove all [illegible] household furnishings.

Mrs. Chamberlain [illegible] mayor and the police that her name had been forged to a paper which they presented. Chester [illegible] at one stage he was tempted to turn his dog loose at the agents.

The scene became so hectic that the police arrived and the three collectors were summoned to police headquarters.

VICTIMS COMPLAIN

Another stormy session occurred at police headquarters. The collectors [illegible] Chester and his housekeeper that they had seized an automobile [illegible] her house in Lochmere earlier in the day.

Mayor Carroll and Acting County Solicitor Normandin said they had received numerous complaints about the methods of bill collectors. It was when Mayor Carroll said he didn't like the actions of these collectors that he told Mrs. Chamber[illegible] on the shooting if she didn't have the courage.

LEGAL CURB SOUGHT

City Solicitor Wescott said the confiscatory powers claimed by these collectors overshadowed anything he had ever heard of in the field of bill collecting.

Chester said the agents told him they had power to act in any New England State. Both Chester and Mrs. Chamberlain told the authorities they thought one of the collectors had a gun under his coat when he demanded payment of $19.

Mayor Carroll told the citizens who were drawn by the excitement that he had filed a bill in the Legislature to curb the collection business by reducing the interest on chattel mortgages.

The Boston [illegible] didn't let any grass grow under their heels in their departure from Lochmere when ordered to "get and be quick about it," by Acting Solicitor Normandin.

Miss Helen Young, former clerk to Congressman Hale and legislative stenographer who lives near Chester, was summoned by him and his housekeeper before the higher authorities were appealed to. Mrs. Chamberlain thought Miss Young's knowledge of such affairs might help them. Miss Young agreed with Chester and Mrs. Chamberlain that the collectors produced no valid papers to establish their authority.

27 GRADUATED BY SCHOOLSHIP

There is widespread dishonesty and a decided lack of discipline throughout the nation. The lack of discipline is one of the great troubles of the country and is one of the essentials needed before prosperity can return.

This was a feature of the address of Rear Admiral Henry F. Bryan, U. S. N., retired, before the graduating class of 27 students of the Massachusetts Nautical School ship Nantucket at the navy yard.

He gave it as his opinion that one of the existing evils is the feeling on the part of many that they are superior to their fellow men.

He pointed out what he considered the danger of reading. He declared it is a fine thing to read worthwhile books, but that too many today are prone to dream their lives away in reading [illegible] rather than accomplishing results.

MOTHERS WILL MISS SYMBOL OF SAFETY

Too Much Publicity Given as Reason for Shift to Quincy Night Beat

Motorists who like to lean on the accelerator as they pass along Quincy boulevards may not shed any salty tears at the news of the transfer of James "Two-Gun" Baker to a lonely night beat, but the children of Quincy grammar school in Atlantic are going to miss him sadly.

For [illegible] years Baker has been one symbol of safety to Quincy mothers who knew that their children would be in no danger crossing the main traffic artery, Hancock st., on their way to school.

IDOLIZED BY CHILDREN

He is idolized by the children, to whom he is as kind as he is severe with speeders. They crowded about him today and begged him not to leave them. But Baker has his orders.

Baker, who has been a motorcycle officer for 10 years, stopped thousands of motorists for traffic violations and gained the reputation of being an "unfixable" policeman. It was revealed that his transfer had resulted from "too much publicity."

Baker refused to comment on the transfer although friends declared the shakeup in the Quincy police department had affected him greatly. He has been assigned to patrol duty in a cruising car from 10 p. m. to 4 a. m.

His transfer was one of several in a drastic shakeup of the Quincy department. Among those shifted were Patrolmen Chester Inman and John Wight. Too much publicity was also given as the reason for these transfers, according to unofficial report.

EFFECTIVE SATURDAY

Inman figured in the news a few weeks ago when he revealed that he fed the family washing to take off weight. Although nothing official could be learned in the matter, Police Chief Ernest H. Bishop declared the transfers had been made for the "good of the service." They become effective next Saturday.

Baker has been working in the afternoon and evening along the main highways through Quincy.

Members of his family today said he had received many calls from persons offering to aid him in regaining his post.

COHEN FIGHTS DISBARMENT

Disbarment proceedings in Supreme Court against Max Waldo Cohen, Boston attorney, were resumed today before Judge F[illegible] with Cohen due to offer his defense to stories of witnesses that he claimed to be able to "fix" another lawyer's disbarment case.

Cohen is alleged to have told Israel Kagno, Jr., that he could "reach" William Hitchcock and Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, who are in charge of prosecuting auto insurance frauds.

He received $1670 from Kagno who had been recommended for disbarment, and then said he required $800 more in order to "reach" the proper parties, according to the charges against him.

Louis Weiss of Hyannis testified Cohen told him he had dropped the Kagno case because the additional $800 was not forthcoming.

Kagno was disbarred and Cohen then said, according to Weiss:

"If he had given me $800 I could have got him off."

"Did he say how?" Weiss was asked.

"By reaching Mr. Mansfield and Mr. Hitchcock," was the reply.

Books—and a Number of Things—

By Charles Hanson Towne

Apropos something written here not long ago on the early days of The Smart Set, John Wilstach sends me the following letter:

"I was very interested in your remarks on struggling authors and a list of a few who had successful careers. One in particular interested me—Stephen French Whitman—a great novelist who somehow went astray.

"His 'Predestined' was, I think, the greatest novel about New York ever written, but afterward he drifted to scenes of Italy and never came back, in locale, to his native heath.

Poorly Paid

"His hero was a reporter on the Evening Sun, and I was a cub reporter on the Sun at the time. I was trying to write stories, but not very successfully. I remember meeting you when you edited the Smart Set, and you telling me how difficult it was to pay contributors who, to make matters worse, were your friends. I never made the magazine. Indeed, in those days, spoken of as golden, pay was poor. Morgan Robertson sold his best tales for $75, and Bob Davis was draining brains for the Munsey publications for one-half cent a word. I wrote a few tales for the Argosy and lots for the Sunday Telegraph, which paid 20 cents an inch of deep, wide column, and oh, how many words that inch ate up! For years I did publicity work, then I drifted back to fiction. Several months ago my novel 'Under Cover Man' was bought by Paramount for a picture, and Macualey has contracted for my next, 'The Fate of Fay Delroy,' some of which is about the time when Broadway was Broadway, before the war.

"There is one point on struggling talent which I think interesting. It was brought to my attention in a conversation years ago with Richard Le Gallienne. He said it coud not be estimated how much talent had withered because of the lack of a little encouragement. His theory was that the spark of genius may be easily extinguished; but people without any talent at all cannot be discouraged.

• • •

"A couple of years ago I became interested in the work of a novelist, now dead, Leonard Cline, whose novels 'Godhead' and 'The Dark Chamber' are, I think, works of genius. Making no money, he had to do, before he died, miserable hack work. This doesn't [illegible] right. The publishers did not include a little poem he wrote to me while I was in prison. I [illegible] is worth repeating

'He the night descended on
And his feet the tide swept on
And his vision of the dawn
Was lost in thunder.

As a cry that finds no end
Through a death-fast darkling region,
He that cried, but found no friend
But a bright legion.

Feeling how secure and strong
Is your faith beyond defeating,
Sends you in his quiet song
A thoughtful greeting.

He is well; his dreams increase.
Give you bounty of the season!
Peace and love and light and peace
In God and reason.

"Isn't that a cry of genius in the darkness. Poor fellow, like many others, he never found the recognition he sought. I imagine that if his books had been by a British novelist and imported they would have created a furore. We Americans ignore local talent compared to the welcome we give to any output that bears a foreign label."

The last I heard of Stephen Whitman he was living quietly in California. Why he does not write much these days is a mystery.

• • •

Sea Stories

It is true that Morgan Robertson, one of the best writers of sea stories who ever lived, became discouraged at the small prices he received. But one must remember that no one was paid well in the days when he published his work. I recall, as a very young man, encountering him in the corridor of the old Knickerbocker Hotel one winter evening. There was tragedy in his face. One of his best yarns had just been rejected, he told me as he buttonholed me in that crowded place. Then his great voice boomed out so that almost everyone around us could hear him, and he put on his roughest sailor manner

"Be a butcher, young man; be a baker or a soda clerk or a gymnast in a circus; but don't, don't, don't ever take up writing if you want to make a living!"

And the next second he was lost in the crowd.

I did not see him again until I was made editor of McClure's in 1917. There we were issuing the definitive edition of Robertson's works; and he, old and broken, connection with another firm a sat in an office next to mine patiently autographing copies at so much an autograph. It was pathetic that one so gifted could find no other way in which to make a bare living; yet it pulled him through a critical point in his distinguished career.

Every day I said to myself that I would take dear old Morgan Robertson to lunch; yet every day I found myself busier and busier with my new and pressing duties. Finally I fixed a day in my mind for an engagement with him. He went to Atlantic City for a week end, and died there of a sudden stroke.

And so that untasted luncheon with an old and valued friend was like Tennyson's "never-lighted fire." I have never ceased to regret that I never shared it with him.

Latest Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THERE IS NO DOUBT ABOUT IT! OUR CONCEPTION of feminine beauty has changed and keeps changing. We remain faithful to our ideal of youth, slimness and liberty, but, this ideal which we call modern has been so fully realized of late, that to continue to satisfy us it must experience some development and change.

* * *

Feminine beauty is a quality that has been admired through the ages and to the beautiful woman is all homage paid, of course. Milady makes a grave mistake if she thinks that just because she has a lovely face she need not develop either her mind or body!

* * *

Because fashion has so thoroughly served this need for the art of pleasing, it begins to conceal the woman more and more. Are not ankles more interesting now that with long evening dresses one sees them less.

CATHERINE HURD

* * *

Woman has realized what power lies in mystery, and she learns to shift attention from one point of interest to another. Hence, the ever-changing, ever-fascinating fluctuations of the styles—they seem so innocuous, but they are really most carefully thought out to discover or reveal unsuspected charms.

* * *

Miss Catherine Hurd is always well dressed, with each and every féminine detail beautifully attended to. Miss Hurd is fair, quite tall and slender and very fond of out-of-door sports. Have you noticed how stylish she looks in her garnet ensemble, and her jaunty hat with just enough brim to make it very alluring. Miss Hurd is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hurd of Milton and Chatham

* * *

Her wedding is to take place at Chatham, the family's summer home next Saturday. Chatham seems to be quite the place for matrimonial events. Earlier in the spring the wedding of Miss Barbara Whitehead to Mr. Joshua Nickerson. Last Saturday Miss Priscilla Place to Mr. Carleton Nickerson and now the charming Miss Hurd to Mr. Louis Graton of Cambridge

* * *

Sporty Tweed Suit and Black Hat

ANOTHER WELL DRESSED MEMBER OF THE YOUNG set is Miss Alice Williams of Brookline. Miss Williams is dark, and lovely looking. She has a fascination of manner and an attractive smile. She looks very well this fall in her sporty tweed suit and modish black hat that fits her wee head, and lets the tips of her curls stick out.

* * *

Miss Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Williams and is to make her debut this season. She has already been charmingly entertained and there are many more functions to be looked forward to on her social calendar.

• • •

SPEAKING OF WELL dressed people. We cannot overlook Miss Mary Sears of Beacon st., Boston, who is looking charming this season. Miss Sears is one of this season's most attractive debutantes. She is popular with the young set. Miss Sears is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sears of Beacon st., Boston. We hear that on December 12 she is to make her formal bow, and a gay and festive time is predicted for the young lady.

• • •

SHE HAS LOOKED MOST lovely this fall in a quaint old-fashioned evening gown of [illegible] taffeta with a becoming white collar that sets off her beauty to great advantage. The effect of the gown is the quaint style of the nineties with the fischu and the high waist line; long flowing skirts that touch the floor and are very full, and an engaging bouquet of flowers at the waist that add that feminine touch which is so attractive.

• • •

Yale Blue Frock

WE SAW MISS CAMILLA ALSOP today in a very smart frock of Yale blue woollen material, and the collar which fell in soft lines about her neck had dainty silk embroidered polka dots. She wore a wide leather belt about her slim waist and smart bronze pumps to match her jaunty brown felt hat that turned modishly up in the back and dipped down over her forehead. Her bag was brown and there you have a completely delightful costume

• • •

MISS BARBARA GLIDDEN of Newton, one of last year's debs who was presented at Duxbury, sharing the honors with one of her friends, Miss Hannah Coffin, is a most interesting person with a [illegible] that is quite remarkable in one so young. Miss Coffin is fairly tall, and is very fond of [illegible]. She wears her clothes [illegible] and is always dressed.

Rose Stearns to Make Bow

Preparations are being made for the presentation of Miss Rose Gordon Stearns, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, of Buckminster rd., Brookline

Her debut will be one of the fashionable events during the last week of October, Thursday, the 27th, being the date chosen for the occasion which will be a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, to be followed at a later date by a dance, the plans for which have not yet been decided.

Miss Stearns studied at the Beaver school and also was graduated from the Masters school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. She is one of the attractive members of this season's young ladies stepping over the threshold of the society ranks.

"MARY FAITH" -:- How a Fascinating Heroine Met Old Problems in a New Way.---By the Author of "The Flapper Wife," Etc -:- By BEATRICE BURTON

He was picking out some ties from the dozens and dozens that hung on the inside of his closet door. Mary Faith watched him from the doorway. She wondered if he remembered that he had worn that plain dark green satin one on their wedding day?

"Kim, don't you remember the day we were married?" she asked him suddenly. "Don't you remember the first supper we cooked down in Aunt Ella's kitchen? And remember how we woke up to the bells? You can't say that our married life was a 'flop' then, Kim. We were awfully happy, weren't we?"

His shoulders lifted and fell in a careless shrug.

"That wasn't our married life—that was our honeymoon," he said. "And listen to me, Mary Faith, why drag up the past? Why be sentimental? Why be sentimental about something that's all over? We made a mistake. Let's admit it and forget it. Let's wipe it off the slate."

After that she did not argue with him.

She slipped out of the house and sat down on the top step of the back porch. The stars were out thick as water-lilies on the vast black pool of the night sky. The air around her was cool and sweet and somewhere close at hand a bird twittered sleepily.

She Wondered

She found herself wondering how the world could be so beautiful and so peaceful when life could be so bitterly cruel . . .

"I'm going, Mary Faith," Kim's voice came to her through the doorway behind her. Turning her head she could see him standing in the middle of the kitchen with his Gladstone bag in his hand and his new light overcoat over his arm. He was peering out into the darkness.

"Aren't you coming to say good-bye?" he asked.

"No—I'm not. I'm not leaving you, Kim. You're going away from me, and I can't say good-bye—I'm sorry."

She watched him as he turned and walked out of the bright little room without another word. Presently she heard the sound of his car as it started. When the murmur of its engine had died away in the distance she got up and went back into the kitchen.

Mrs. Farrell was sitting at the table in the dining room. She had been crying and her eyes were red and swollen. She gave Mary Faith a wild, dazed look as she came into the room and sat down across the table from her.

Shoulders Shook

"Well, what are we going to do?" she asked. "I guess there isn't anything to do but what Kimberley told us to do, is there?—It kills me to think of giving up my home and going down to Garrettsville—" She put her face down into her hands and her broad shoulders began to shake with her sobbing.

"You aren't going to give up your home," Mary Faith said quietly. [illegible] Mrs. Farrell [illegible]. She raised her face from her hands and [illegible].

"You're going to stay right here and I'm going to stay with you," Mary Faith went on. "I'll get some kind of work to do this summer—and I have seven hundred dollars that we can live on after I have to stop working. That ought to tide us over."

Mary Faith [illegible] and [illegible]. "You see, it's like this—I'm going to have my baby in January. And I think he ought to be born right here where you and I can take care of him, don't you?"

There was a dead silence in the room for a minute or two after she stopped talking. Mrs. Farrell's eyes grew round and large with her astonishment and her mouth fell away open.

"A baby?" she repeated. "A baby?" She shook her head as if she couldn't believe it.

Kim Doesn't Know

"Does Kimberley know this?" she asked sharply.

"No. I was going to break the news to him today—and then all this trouble came up. So I kept still," Mary Faith explained simply.

"But you shouldn't have kept still! You should have told him! If he'd known about it he never would have left you the way he did just now. Never in this world!"

Mary Faith nodded. "I know it . . . That's why I didn't tell him. I didn't want to keep him at all if he didn't want to stay and you must promise me that you won't tell him."

Mrs. Farrell stood up, shaking herself like a hen.

"He ought to be told! He ought to be brought back here!" she said bitterly. "Why should he go scot-free, and you and I be left with all the trouble to face, I'd like to know!—I know what it is to be left, Mary Faith . . ."

She walked away from the table and straightened a steel engraving of "The Stag at Eve" that hung above the sideboard. When she turned back to Mary Faith once more there were tears running down her face.

"Think of my son doing a thing like this to me when I've given up my whole life to him for 28 years and more!" she said, her voice thick with tears. "Walking in and telling me to break up my home at a moment's notice! Ordering me off down to Garrettsville to live on my sister's charity! What's the matter with him, Mary Faith? What do you think ails him?"

He's Discouraged

"I'll tell you what ails him. He's discouraged," Mary Faith answered steadily. "He's been having a hard time lately and he's just plain sick and tired of everything all at once. And you and I are just part of what he's sick and tired of—grocery bills and the rent coming due and the quiet life we lead here in this flat. Kim likes a good time and I should have seen to it that he had it. All this that's happened is partly my fault, Mrs. Farrell. You mustn't put the whole blame on Kim's shoulders."

And so she defended him to his mother as she would have stood up for him against the whole world.

Mrs. Farrell got up and went into the kitchen to make herself a cup of the weak hot tea that she always drank before she went to bed. "It quieted her nerves," she always said.

"What about that girl? The girl that you and he were talking about?" she called out above the sound of water running into the tea pot.

Forget the Girl

"I'm not even going to think about that girl," said Mary Faith. "Dr. Thatcher says I ought to be quiet and happy for the next few months—and I'm going to be quiet and happy if it kills me."

That night Mary Faith couldn't sleep. She lay staring into the shadows of the room where Kim's face seemed to take form before her eyes. The pillow still held the scent of his hair, a faint dry smell like birch bark. The room was full of him.

She heard the clock in the flat next door strike one and two and then three. A little after three she gave up all hope of sleep and got out of bed. She softly closed the door of Mrs. Farrell's room so as not to disturb her and dressed herself. Then she went into the kitchen to get Kim's clothes from the laundry basket under the table and ironed them.

By five o'clock, when the dawn was gray and cool in the windows of the flat she had his trunks packed and ready to go. There were two of them, a big black one and a little steamer trunk. Kim had a great many clothes—twice as many as she had.

[illegible]

Sent Money

[illegible] Mrs. Farrell used for a writing desk stood between the windows. Sitting down at it she addressed an envelope to Mr. J. W. McIntire of the firm of McIntire & West in the City Bank building. She wrote Kim's name on the back of the envelope and put the bills into it—the fifty dollar bill and the two fives.

FOR A CLEAR HEAD

No Set Talks for Curtis

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Got to hand Charlie Curtis credit for his speeches. Never took a lesson in his life. Plays entirely by ear.

Just this week he thanked the Democrats for their fine work in the relief program.

If our memory ain't too annoying the relief idea was Mr. Hoover's. But Charlie stood up in West Virginia and thanked the opposition.

He had to go outside the party and bless the Democrats. Charlie couldn't find a Republican who had helped in any manner, shape or form.

This is Charlie's first speech since the Kansas ovation, when he smothered the administration modification promise with a blanket of dust from the old vacuum cleaner. Charlie went so dry he developed a body squeak.

Anyway, we'll concede that he is brutally frank and too honest about it all. If anybody in Washington is writing speeches for Charley we want to warn them that Charles has left his reading glasses home in his other coat.

SATIN CREATIONS LEAD IN AUTUMN BRIDE'S TROUSSEAU

Satin is the material supreme for the 1932 fall bride's trousseau. The one worn by Ethel Johnson, at the left, is of Marie Antoinette rose satin. The other, worn by Martha Tencher, is black and white and is copied from that worn by Jean Harlow in her picture "Red Headed Woman," only this hasn't the ostrich on the sleeve. The Marie Antoinette offering is nicely fitted and the soft flowing lines just escape the floor in length. Regarding the showing at the right, some of the smartest evening dresses coming out of Paris these days, are made of two colors of one material. This negligee has a wide flap in front and pretty flowing sleeves.

A man will sometimes carry a girl's letter in the pocket over his heart for a whole week—then put it in his desk and wonder (when he comes across it the next summer) who it was that signed herself, "Your Blue Eyed Baby."

Nothing to Crow About, These Alarm C(l)ocks

Scene: Harvard sq.

Characters: Two Cambridge police officers.

"I see where the Harvard freshmen have a fine crow this year."

"You mean 'crew,' don't you?"

"No, I mean crow."

"Crow?"

"Sure. Crow. A rooster's crow. Right in the dormitories, too."

"When do they practice?"

"Every morning at 4 a. m."

"What are roosters doing in Harvard dormitories? You sure they're not cheer leaders you're thinking about?"

"No, roosters who are held for psychological tests are kept in a sort of menagerie there."

"So what about it?"

"Well, the freshmen don't like it a bit. They threatened to make crow pie out of them."

"Well?"

"So Harvard has decided to move the roosters to a spot where their crowing cannot be heard."

"Is that all?"

"Yes. Cock-a-doodle-doo!"

VALENTINE -:- By Hazel Livington

A Heart-Gripping Novel Depicting Love and Disillusionment

"I know. But you were right, Joe, I WOULD rather do it myself. You can do lots with a place like this. I wish you could have seen the terrible places Millie used to take and then fix up. There was an apartment we lived in once—just before I came to Aunt Julia—that was a little like this, only not a twentieth as nice, and by the time Millie had her own things out—flowers in flower pots on the window sills and things like that—

"That will be great, Val! I could just see how it would look. Architecturally it isn't half bad. Good proportions, nice oak floors, good beamed ceilings and those nice dormer windows—and then that river view. Gee, Val, I can't wait till we do get it fixed up!"

"Come on, help me unpack the boxes. My things will make all the difference."

[illegible] wanted to call.

"Now, with everything all over, and nothing fixed? Oh, Joey, can't we wait, just a couple of days?"

"Whatever you say, honey girl."

So Joe made the excuses. He helped her unpack the Russian samovar, the old pieces of silver, the [illegible]

HAPPY TOILERS

[illegible]

"Now where do I put them, Val?"

Where? Val moved around. Tried pictures. Tried cushions. Nothing was just right, so she had Joe move the heavier pieces of furniture.

They perspired for three hours.

"The only difference," Val said, "is that when we got here it looked as if nobody ever lived here, and now it looks as though somebody is just moving out."

She was tired enough to laugh, half hysterically.

Joe hurdled four silk cushions and a brass bowl and grabbed her. Lifted her in his arms and carried her to bed.

JOE PROVES CHEF

"You poor kid! Now you lie there and rest a while and I'll get some food. I'm starved, aren't you?"

"I believe that's what's the matter with me. I'm famished. But you rest, Joe, and I'll fix something——"

"You stay right there and I'll do it!"

Val settled herself on the pillows. Interesting smells came from the kitchen.

Pearl Neely had stocked it with a few staples, fresh cream and butter, eggs, bread and coffee. Mrs. Peacock, Joe's ex-landlady, had carried up armloads of fruit and vegetables and an immense lemon pie.

Joe brought in bacon sandwiches and coffee and great wedges of pie.

"How perfectly heavenly!" Val [illegible]

Joe wanted to laugh—Val took things so for granted. She never asked where the supplies came from. Did she think he made the pie?

"What are you smiling at?"

"You—because you're so beautiful!"

"Oh, Joe, you're so funny!"

So they ate, eating and drinking cup after cup of strong coffee. The hours fled. It was nearly morning when they had finished planning the lovely home they would make of this place.

Val spent two days unpacking, [illegible]

[illegible] moved in.

Cooking. That was another difficulty. Nobody had thought of it. If it had not been for Joe's agility with the can opener there wouldn't have been much to eat.

It looked easy. It sounded easy. "Beat well. Bake in a moderate oven until done."

WOES OF COOK

But how are you to know what's meant by a moderate oven and how can you tell without eating it whether or not a thing is done?

As for Val, Aunt Julia had never taught her how to cook. It wasn't that she hadn't wished to learn. Somehow Aunt Julia always did everything, there was never anything left for Val to do. At the last moment she thought of it, and lectured about some of the important points Val was to remember. But Val was far too dreamy, too full of love and romance to do much more than nod and murmur "I see," and "Yes, Aunt Julia, I will," at appropriate intervals.

"Your pie dough should be very dry, and your biscuits very wet," Val remembered . . . or was it the other way around? She tried both methods, with equally bad results.

"Let's eat out until we get everything unpacked and you're more used to the house," Joe suggested.

Mrs. Peacock, who lived just around the corner, and had been Joe's landlady for three years, was a life-saver, too.

"You just stop in any night to dinner," she told Val after they met, the morning of the second day when she arrived unannounced and uninvited, while Joe was at work.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Fragments!

The McKee pogrom against the town's burlesque shows has the Minskys on their respective ears and the lads are taking out their peeve at the mayor and those they hold responsible by slapping huge jeering posters in front of their closed houses. Now, of course, there are some of us—or perhaps I should say some of you—who will sympathize with the Minskys in their resentment for this abrupt curtailment of what has been a profitable venture but perhaps it will console you to know that this isn't the first time burlesque houses have been closed down. Back in 1897, the venerable Charles Frohman instigated a drive against burlesque shows which were beginning to steal patrons from his productions. In those days, beer was served during and between acts and Frohman's agents discovered that the law provided that no saloon could furnish entertainment without a special license and that no place of entertainment could furnish refreshments without a special license. Frohman invoked that law and for a time there was no burlesque in town.

A rather handsome lad is William Duryea, whose name has figured in the public prints during the past year, chiefly because of two unfortunate alliances with two well known gals of town. He eloped with Norma Taylor, as you may recall, and a few days later the blonde lass instituted proceedings for annulment. At the time, Duryea vowed he'd never look at or wed another woman as long as he lived, so as soon as the courts severed the link binding him to Norma, he eloped with the former Follies beauty, Helen Henderson. The newspapers referred to Duryea as one of the owners of the famous Greenwich Village Inn—an error which I hasten to correct. The only owners are Harold Meltzer, son of the famous dramatic critic of former years, and James Anderson Riley. Duryea merely worked for Messrs. Meltzer and Riley. However, the point of this paragraph is that on Friday, Helen Henderson's suit for divorce against Duryea opens in the local courts but Duryea won't be here to defend it for tomorrow he sets sail for China. He's paying his fare out of the $5,000 his wife presented to him the day she told him she was going to divorce him.

The Authors' League of America has issued a confidential letter warning its members that a certain confidence man is operating among authors using the names of well known writers for references. He has approached Robert E. Sherwood, for instance, posing as a friend of Owen Davis, and told Roger Burlinghame he was a close intimate of John Marquand. The chap is about 30, colored, and describes himself as a dancer, singer and musician and the story he tells is that he was a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music. Two years ago, he declares, he ran over a man in Columbus Circle, the man died and he went to Sing Sing where he spent one and a half years, during which he led the orchestra and gave lessons to the warden's daughters. Now he is out—will the author (whom he approaches) help him out? I don't blame the authors' league for being excited but personally my sympathy lies with anybody who thinks he can get money out of an author in these days.

Two voices identically alike are those of David Freedman, collaborator with Eddie Cantor on all of Cantor's literary efforts and George Jessel. The same nasal twang, the same droop of the lip.

The Metropolitan Opera Company will have its first real opposition this year. Some time within the next few days, your own newspapers will tell you about it, but this is what I can tell you now. Jeritza, one of Metropolitan's chief props, will be with the new opera company and within the next day or two Chaliapin is expected to sign. The Casino, originally the Earl Carroll Theater, will be the town's new opera house.

Roxy, although a Jew, prizes as his [illegible] a piece of crucifix presented to him by Cardinal Hayes. Proudly he displayed it to Marion (Mickey) Nolan the other night in Reuben's. "I wouldn't part with it," he exclaimed excitedly. "It's brought me all my good luck." Nolan fumbled around in his pockets. "I have a good luck piece too," he said. "I wouldn't part with it." Nolan [illegible] out and displayed [illegible] a miniature Hebrew sacred scroll.

Connie's Inn, in Harlem, presented its new fall revue Sunday night and, as is usual, the place was jammed to the doors with Broadway celebrities. A distinctive show as usual and it ran for hours with no sign of abatement nor were any of us wearied, for there is always a freshness and sparkle in the entertainment offered by these dynamic sepian entertainers working in a night club operated by Caucasians for Caucasians. Here you will find such well-known artists as Jazzlips Richardson whose son, once a junior member of the "Green Pastures" company, is appropriately named Jazzlips Richardson, Jr. Here, too, that voluptuous lass, Louise Cook, quivers her thighs and weaves her shapely body provocatively, but chiefly you will go away with vivid memories of the lad they call Snakehips Tucker. Tucker has an India rubber body and spine and legs of jelly. You have never seen such a dance in all your born life as this boy rolls—and that's the word—out for you. When he's through, you wonder where he gets the energy to walk off. How do you suppose the fellow spends what spare time he has? In Harlem dance halls and cellar rendezvous—dancing madly away with dusky Harlem belles.

One New York hotel has just ordered a dozen or so beds seven feet six inches long to accommodate oversized ladies and gents. It never occurred to me before that very tall people might have difficulty in the average hotel bed, the length of which I have learned is six feet six inches. But it appears that isn't long enough for a man even as small as six feet two, say, for the average person, the hotel people have discovered, usually sleeps with his head anywhere from six to eight inches away from the head of the bed.

ROME HONEYMOON CAPITAL

Mussolini Favors More and Better Babies

Pope Also Believes in Aiding Marriage---Why Not Use the Idea in America?

ROME has become the honeymoon capital of the world, thanks to the efforts of the Pope and Premier Mussolini. Both the Premier and the Pontiff believe in early love matches. The Holy Father gives the newlyweds special audiences and presents the brides with lovely rosaries as wedding gifts, and the grooms get medals.

The pope believes in domesticity and does all he can to promote happy marriages among the young people of Italy. He says 'They are happier married.'

And Mussolini, who knows the value of homes, families and more and better babies for the stability of Italy, sees to it that

If the bride and groom are resting along Cupid. A railroad rate of one-fifth of the regular fare is offered to newlyweds for a round trip honeymoon excursion from anywhere in Italy to Rome.

ANY PLACE IN ITALY

If the bride and groom are residents of Rome, they may get the same reduction to Venice, Florence, Naples or Capri—in fact, to any place in Italy where fancy may prompt them to spend the first days of their marriage.

Young couples from abroad, whatever their nationality, will get 70 per cent railroad reduction if they'll agree to spend their honeymoons in Italy.

Wise Pope! Wise Premier! Both know that men with families are less likely to be swept off their feet by soap box oratory handed out by self-appointed prophets whose pipe dreams are often less reliable than the old form [illegible].

Youthful marriage is less of an experiment in beautiful fertile Italy than in these United States. In Italy every inch of ground yields its crop. Between the ancient olive trees swing vines loaded with grapes.

BRED TO THRIFT

The people are bred to thrift. A lira (about 5 cents) goes farther than three or four times that amount in this country. Pope and premier are safe in urging early marriage. Mussolini wants his people to have large families. He does not favor birth control.

Forgetting economics for the moment, it must have been a lovely sight not long ago when 70 couples were united in the old cathedral in Naples, the brides in white, the grooms in the brave [illegible] of holiday attire, the sun shining as the sun can shine only in Italy . . . and after the ceremony, the happy couples off to Rome!

Good gracious: why don't we do something romantic like that in this country?

Why Not Learn to Dance?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've lived in the tropics for several years and I never bothered to learn how to dance. I'm a frost and a dud when I go out with a crowd, and I think the world has been given over to a set of whirling dervishes. Don't girls ever like to talk or go out in a rowboat or do anything but dance? I feel like Rip Van Winkle. I'm lonesome. And yet I wouldn't mind taking a nice girl home with me as my wife [illegible] LONESOME JACK.

Dear Jack: Why don't you learn how to dance? You have no idea what fun it is or how much you'll enjoy yourself once you've started. In every city, town and hamlet of these United States there are people who will teach you all the latest steps for a modest fee. But, better than that, my dear man, is to ask one of these charming whirling dervishes to teach you?

She Goes Out With Younger Sister

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have trouble getting a date with my girl on Sundays. I am living alone and it's terribly lonesome Sunday evenings, the time when every normal young man wants to be with the girl he loves. Her family are at the bottom of this. Her younger sister wants my girl to go out with her and very quickly the mother backs her up. JOE.

Dear Joe: You don't tell me enough about this girl, my dear Joe. Most girls of 21, if they really care about a young man, will not give up a Sunday evening to going out with a younger sister. Does your girl protest at this, or does she only give it as an excuse for not going out with you? Write me again and tell me this most important detail. Meantime, Sunday evenings should not be lonesome for an attractive young man.

Listen, World! Cruelty

By ELSIE ROBINSON.

EVERY TIME I think about those poor little Hutchinson youngsters I get madder.

Elsie Robinson

Those thin little voices wailing in the horror of that fall . . . those helpless little hands clutching at the enormous night—and the fear that will haunt them as long as they live, that will leap to cripple them in moments of decision.

I can't get the cruelty and the pity of it out of my mind. Poor little tads! I'll wager there's hardly a mother in America, unless it be stunt mothers like Mrs. Hutchinson, whose heart isn't aching at the thought of it.

Usually, I'd be all a-throb with sympathy for Ma and Pa Hutchinson, also. But, under the circumstances, I'll tell the cock-eyed world that the tougher time those parents had on that ice-flow, the better I'm pleased.

I've heard folks say that Pa Hutchinson ought to be punished.

But why just the father? What about the mother who would subject her babies to such a risk? Mothers are people in 1932 and should be treated as such. And a flying mother who will risk her babies on such an exhibition is exactly as responsible for her heartlessness as a flying father.

Something should be done about such parents.

But first, something should be done about all of us who think that parents are in a class by themselves, with special exemptions and peculiar sanctifications.

This classical idea that "Poppa and Momma Know Best" and "A Parent Is a Child's Best Friend" is vicious bunk.

No one can be a better or a more devoted friend to a child than that child's father or mother, PROVIDED SAID PARENT IS AN INTELLIGENT, WELL-BALANCED, UNSELFISH AND KINDLY HUMAN BEING. But there is nothing about the physical fact of parenthood which automatically endows a male or female with intelligence, balance or character.

AND THE PLAIN FACT IS THAT MANY A PARENT POSSESSES NONE OF THESE QUALITIES.

YET, BECAUSE OF OUR SENTIMENTAL ATTITUDE, WE PERMIT ALL PARENTS WITHOUT QUALIFICATIONS, TO HAVE ACTUAL POWER OF LIFE OR DEATH OVER THEIR LITTLE ONES.

If a stranger had taken those little Hutchinson girls for that transatlantic flight and crashed with them in Greenland, the whole world would have rocked with horror and indignation.

Yet because two silly, selfish human beings who subjected them to that risk, for purposes of personal exploitation, happened to be their father and mother, they will probably escape with slight criticism—and be allowed to repeat the performance as soon as they get another plane!

Some way should be found to control these exhibitions. Children are constantly being exploited by unfit parents—displayed in theaters, dragged through parades—with a brutal disregard for their immature bodies and minds.

We have State and Federal laws for the protection of trees, waterways, orchards, livestock, for these things are part of our national treasure. Yet the richest portion of our national treasure, the children of America, are still exposed to ruthless exploitation.

Daily True Story

A Honeymoon Venture

THE YOUNG COUPLE emerged from the Municipal Building and stood for a moment under the wind-swept arch, their faces shining with excitement. They had just said "yes" to some very important questions in the Municipal Chapel.

"Sorry?" asked Ted Huston.

"Not a bit," exclaimed the new Mrs. Ted, who had been Mary Niles a few minutes before. "It's wonderful! I wouldn't be a mere 'Miss' again for worlds."

The groom consulted his watch and whistled in surprise.

"Sorry, dear," he said, "but my appointment to see about that job is only fifteen minutes off. You'll have to go back to your hotel alone. Wait for me and I'll be there in an hour to get your things moved over to my place."

There it was, the economic problem. Back in their home town, with the ceremony barely over, Mary and Ted had taken a big chance on getting married before Ted found a job.

In a way, it would even be a bit of a saving, they had agreed. They could both occupy Ted's small furnished apartment, which would be a saving in room rent.

ALL WOULD BE WELL

If Ted only found work now, all would be well. But if he didn't [illegible] to think about [illegible] they each had families back home, but their families were very conservative, except for [illegible] Ted's [illegible] Anthony Huston, something of a wanderer who had figured in a sensational breach of promise suit a few years back. [illegible] Anthony.

So no [illegible] of the marriage. Ted made every effort to find a job [illegible] but the answer was always the same. Employers were having all they could do to keep their staffs. [illegible] were more plentiful than hope.

Mary marked with concern the effect which the ordeal was having on her husband.

Their funds were rapidly approaching the vanishing point, and she felt something drastic had to be done. Maybe a good show would help, she thought. They'd hardly even been to the movies lately.

She pawned a small ring and with the proceeds bought tickets for the most popular current musical comedy. She told Ted they had been given her by a girl friend.

The show was a good one. The scenery, settings, picturesque costumes and lively songs and dances all combined to put the Hustons in high spirits.

"MEET MY WIFE"

They were smiling and chatting gaily as they went out to the lobby for cigarettes during intermission.

A moment later a distinguished looking, elderly man in evening dress stepped from a group nearby and pressed a finger against Ted's coat.

"What's this I see?" he demanded, a roguish twinkle in his eye. "My nephew, no less, cavorting about the bright lights, and with a beautiful brunette who smokes, too."

"Uncle Anthony!" exclaimed Ted. "Meet my wife—Mary."

"A pleasure," said Anthony Huston, bowing in courtly fashion. "But when did we acquire you? I hadn't heard of it."

"Neither has the family," said Ted, telling the whole story.

Uncle Anthony remained silent [illegible] but his eyes gleamed.

"My boy, I'm proud of you," he exclaimed. "When this show's over we're all going out and celebrate your bringing such a delightful ornament, such a charming young lady, into the family.

"We'll also celebrate your break from stodgy family traditions. I can just see your father's face when he hears the news. And don't worry about the future. Your Uncle Anthony, whatever they may think of him back home, is a good business man, and has a place for you. From now on you're under his wing."

Girl Should Reply to His Thanks

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When you leave a dance floor after dancing with a young man and the young man says "Thank you for the dance," is it customary to say anything or not? I have asked several girls and they just don't say anything, but I don't think that [illegible]

Not making any reply [illegible] thanks [illegible] awkward [illegible] to feel like this. And the well-bred girl is sensitive to the fact that this "Thank you for the dance" leaves a one-sided impression that only the man enjoyed the dance. So [illegible] answer something that will [illegible] that she too enjoyed it. [illegible] "It was delightful." It is just this kind of social [illegible] that changes an awkward pause into a gracious conclusion.

Gifts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I recently spent some time in the hospital while [illegible] and the student nurses were wonderful to me with their kindness and attentions. I would like to send them a little gift. Could you suggest something? GRATEFUL.

For this kind of gift I think that lovely sheer linen handkerchiefs [illegible] of monogrammed are perfect gifts. They are, it goes without saying, always welcome gifts. The same thing is true too of a lovely purse for day wear or a lovely evening bag. Or books, of course.

Kidney Stones May Become Dangerous

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

KIDNEY troubles are all too common today. Many ailments involve this organ, and cases of stone in the kidney or in the bladder are numerous.

Dr. Copeland

Great progress has been made within the past few decades in our knowledge of how to deal with diseases of the kidney. For kidney stone modern surgery has found a safe operation, although the exact cause of the formation of the stone has not yet been discovered.

Many theories have been advanced as to possible causes, but most authorities believe that stones are traceable to germs. When found in a most cavity in the kidney, germs accumulate debris and various salts. From microscopic size the mass gradually grows by taking on layers of phosphates or other deposits present in the urine.

As long as a stone remains small it causes no pain or discomfort. Tiny stones are passed in the urine without the knowledge of the individual. But unfortunately the stone may grow rapidly. The stone may be located in a part of the kidney from which it cannot be dislodged and in such cases it causes pain and severe damage.

Severe and persistent pain makes known the fact that there is stone in the kidney. If the nature of the trouble is recognized early and the stone removed, it is very probable that the kidney will not be permanently injured, but when ignored, as often happens when the pain is slight, damage is progressive and the kidney is ultimately destroyed.

The warning given by repeated attacks of pain should not be disregarded. Complete X-ray examination, physical examination and urine analysis should be made without delay. These examinations should be repeated at intervals. If operations is advised, do not postpone it.

Health Queries

Miss Elizabeth A. Q.—What should a girl of 13, 5 ft. 5 inches tall, weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 119 pounds. This is the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Lace Gown for All Day Long

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Paris hasn't yet found any satisfactory substitute for that old reliable of fashion, the lace dress.

The lace tailored suit is not only an idea, it is a Paris fact. French dressmakers are designing it as a costume for those difficult hours between noon and midnight, when one may run from a luncheon to a bridge party, thence to a business appointment, with a dinner and the theater after.

The genuine lacey dress is entirely different from this type of costume. It is thoroughly feminine, frilly and fragile-looking.

Ardenre makes the lace dress with a yoke of flesh-colored tulle so that it looks like an evening gown without really having a low decolletage. She makes the skirt full and ample, and hangs it over a slip that does not quite reach to the full ankle length that the dress attains.

The lace jacket, combined with matching tulle, ties around the waist as if it were a blouse, and has full ruffled half-sleeves over some tight wrist-length

MARKETS

BUSINESS

FORBES SUMMARIZES CHEERING FACTS

By B. C. FORBES

If things can be kept on a fairly even keel between now and election, reasonable hopes will be satisfied. It cannot be denied that politics has become an unsettling influence. The effect of this may be more pronounced in the security markets than in trade and industry.

Securities have already enjoyed very substantial recovery from their worst levels, thus making them vulnerable to reactions. Business, on the other hand, has had no spectacular rebound, but has crept up modestly here and there. If these gains can be held, or appreciably extended during October the showing will be generally regarded as reassuring.

Clothing Manufacturers Busy

A Philadelphia friend gives me this news: Full-fashioned hosiery mills are running night and day shifts. Low-priced hosiery has been advanced 10 per cent. Demand for Stetson hats has substantially improved. Radio manufacturers are busily engaged filling orders for the Christmas season. Spinning mills are going full tilt.

President Jay W. Smith, of Chris-Craft Corporation, Algonac, Michigan, states that during the last 12 months they built and sold eight of every ten "runabouts" costing $700 or upwards. Although motor boat sales throughout the entire country have substantially decreased since 1929, Mr. Smith voices this philosophy:

> "Good comes out of every period of depression. The manufacturer who has continued to progress, with new ideas, new methods and new products, will find his position strengthened in the future."

Telegrams Indicate Sales Gains

A surprising call for high-grade sport goods, and also for indoor games, has recently blossomed.

Enterprise: A diminutive, juvenile bootblack has set himself up in business in the doorway of a vacant store in lower Fifth ave., New York, and he tells me that he is doing much better than when he was a nomad.

Western Union reports marked increase in business-getting telegrams.

Insurance Loans Decrease

Borrowing on insurance policies has notably decreased. New York Life's applications for the last two months ran 30 per cent below the peak month of the year. President Buckner reports also "a substantial increase in the number of policy loans repaid in whole or in part."

For the first time this year, an increase, I learn, has developed this month in the number of cabs hired at leading New York transportation terminals.

Sales of investment trust "units," meaning a package carrying part-ownership in a considerable number of stated stocks, are increasing. When investors could buy them at much lower prices, the vendors could induce relatively few to sign on the dotted line. Of course, today stock averages must be regarded as far below what they are likely to be after economic recovery gets going full steam.

America's stock of unsold used cars is the lowest in several years. Most owners keep their cars running until they can run no longer. Also, many families who used to buy new cars have been content to purchase used vehicles. One hopeful motor manufacturer offers to bet me a new hat that "there will be a scarcity of automobiles next spring." Here's hoping he's right!

The number of security owners in America continues to expand. The total equals well over half the number of families in America— nearer two out of every three. Clearly, those who have been fortunate enough to continue earning have saved as never before.

The country direly needs drastic economies by tax leviers and more earning and spending by taxpayers.

MILL ACTIVITY NOTED IN BANK LETTER INDEX

By FRANK H. MELOON

First National Bank of Boston's New England letter made public [illegible] says:

A. W. Robertson

"Our index of New England industrial activity for August advanced sharply to the highest level since last April, but it is still 25 per cent below the corresponding period of a year ago. The marked upswing was largely accounted for by the textile and leather industries and related lines. After allowances for seasonal changes, cotton and wool manufacturing advanced 48 per cent, men's and women's clothing 23.5 per cent, shoe production 23 per cent, hosiery and knit goods 23.5 per cent. This burst of activity was precipitated by the sharp advance in raw materials and finished goods prices with buyers rushing to replenish subnormal stocks before prices advanced still further."

* * *

"August sales of cotton cloth were the highest on record, and more than double the preceding month, but these sales were for goods to be delivered over a period of three months or so, and also included speculative sales which will come on the market again. The trade views with some anxiety the present situation as the greatly accelerated production of cotton goods is catching up with incoming orders."

Buying on a gigantic scale in expectation [illegible] markets in which it has centered have seen [illegible] this week. First was the announcement by Chairman A. W. Robertson of Westinghouse Electric that the time had arrived to [illegible] the upturn, followed by [illegible] President F. A. Merrick [illegible] had placed orders for [illegible] of copper. Having discussion of possible [illegible] the third annual New England bank management conference under auspices of the Bankers Council of the New England Council will be held in Boston on October 21. The conference will be under direction of Walter S. Bucklin, president of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, chairman of the Council's bankers' committee.

Forthcoming banking [illegible] will be [illegible] by [illegible] vice-president of [illegible] Co., New York; Arthur A. Ballantine, under-secretary of the Treasury, will speak on work of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Nathan Adams, president of the First National Bank of Dallas, Texas, and member of the Federal Home Loan Board, will discuss "The Federal Home Loan Bank and Its Opportunities."

It is rarely that a speaker is [illegible] on any occasion [illegible] "fills the bill." We [illegible] President Victor M. BOSTON STOCKS MOVE UPWARD

Stocks turned upward in today's trading on the Boston Exchange with leaders showing gains of 1 to 2 or more points. Utilities were strong with American Telephone gaining almost 3 points while New England Telephone sold up a point. General Electric advanced a major fraction.

Boston Elevated dropped over a point. First National Stores gained slightly more than a point. Fractional gains were recorded for such issues as Gillette, Mass. Utilities, Stone & Webster and United Shoe. Nash Motors jumped a point.

Laundries' Net in 12 Weeks Lowered

Consolidated Laundries Corp. reports for 12 weeks ended September 10 net of $61,685 after depreciation, interest and federal taxes equivalent, after allowing for dividend requirements on $7.50 no-par preferred, to 15 cents a share on 400,000 no-par shares of common against $155,821 or 36 cents a share on 403,962 common shares for 12 weeks ended Sept. 12, 1931.

For 36 weeks ended September 10 net was $302,241 after charges or 69 cents a share on 400,000 common shares, against $523,162 or $1.22 a share on 403,962 common shares a year before.

STATE ST.

Hears:

That the rather uninteresting outlook for the share markets remains the same for the next few sessions at least. Some observers are of the belief a narrow range is in prospect. This element does not expect there will be anything but moderate setbacks seen, and it will be difficult to make even trading turns. They also indicate that they expect a fairly smart upward movement to develop after a short following has been encouraged by the indecisive price action.

This and That

There are some rather conflicting reports regarding the position of English investors who took good sized blocks of American stocks early in the summer. New York brokers who, presumably receive a fair share of the transatlantic business, report profit-taking while English observers deny it.

The foreign buyers ostensibly concentrated in domestic rails . . . This group will undoubtedly share in any revival as soon, if not sooner, than any other section . . . But the hard thing for home observers to overcome is the feeling a measure of reorganization is due next spring, notwithstanding revival.

Generally speaking the rails are overburdened with debt. No large sinking funds or depreciation accounts exist which might be used to wipe out the surplus mortgages. Only one way out remains, and that is to formulate some plan by which all classes of bondholders will accept a reduction in their claims.

Odds and Ends

Chicago continues to be the bullish center of the country. Operators in the western city are impressed with upturn in sales reported unofficially by the large mail order houses. They reason that such figures provide a good idea of conditions throughout the country.

The hand of the Chicago operators is plainly seen in such issues as Sears, Montgomery, Simmons Case and Harvester . . . And the [illegible] remembering what they accomplished in 1928-29, is none too willing to scoff at their bullish attempts . . . At least they deserve a hand for their courage.

The heavy industries still lag and this is the real barrier to out [illegible] stock market enthusiasm. Steel and motor companies only hope for signs indicating the spring of 1933 will bring improvement. This leaves the burden to the construction companies which are reported as showing some improvement.

Central Loadings on Own Lines Up

In the week ended September 24 New York Central loaded 41,030 cars on its own lines, against 41,439 cars in the like 1932 week. It received 50,084 cars from connections, against 59,033 cars in the same 1931 week. In the week ended September 17, this year loadings on its own lines totaled 40,743 cars and receipts from connections amounted to 49,202 cars. In the similar period last year loadings on its own lines were 51,650 cars and receipts from connections 59,459 cars.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

THE STOCK market continues to lack incentive for a major movement. Steel operations were reported up about 2½ per cent for the week, but any significance to the news was naturally removed by the low rate of activity still prevailing even with the improvement.

Threatened renewed price weakness in the oil industry dampened enthusiasm but had little immediate effect on share quotations.

Montgomery Ward Resists Reaction

Modest setback in Montgomery Ward during the late reaction served to impress the street with the strength of the present sponsorship for the stock. Its loss amounted to fractionally over a point from the absolute high of the recovery. Current speculative activity appears to have some real basis in fairly reliable predictions that the forthcoming September sales statement will reveal the smallest decline since January, 1931.

Considerably Smaller Deficit Looked For

This would follow nine consecutive months of decrease averaging slightly more than 20 per cent. Present business is said to have retained about half this average loss. In view of this deficit for the third quarter is now expected to be substantially smaller than in either of the two preceding three months this year.

Estimate 10 P. C. Gain in Auto Output

Preliminary reports are that September automobile outppt will show a gain of 10 per cent over August.

General Foods Sales Increase

Declaration of the regular quarter 50 cents dividend on General Foods common was accompanied by street reports that current sales of the company were approximately even with this time last year. This indicated a distinct improvement compared with July, which represented the low point of the year and a substantial reduction from 1931. Some of the demand since the turn appeared is understood to have represented replenishment of depleted stocks by retailers before prices are advanced to conform with higher commodity costs.

Allied Chemical Action Viewed

Regular Allied Chemical dividend was in line with general forecasts, although some sources were inclined to doubt this outcome up to the time of the announcement. The favorable action taken on the payment however left the Street still in the dark as to whether the requirement was being fully covered by current earnings because the company issues only one report a year. Some interest was attracted by rumors that an advance in chemical prices was imminent.

Comm. & Southern Earns 24c Share

Commonwealth & Southern Corp and subsidiaries for the 12 months ended August 31 last report a consolidated net income of $17,052,093 after taxes, interest, amortization depreciation, minority interest, etc. This was equal after preferred dividends to 24 cents a share on 33,673,328 no-par common shares.

In preceding 12 months the company reported a net income of $24,859,688, or 47 cents a share.

Gross income for the 12 months aggregated $119,841,768, against $134,091,051 in the previous year; net after taxes was $65,825,780, against $70,710,412; preferred dividends $8,995,602, against $8,971,775; surplus for common was $8,056,491, against $15,887,913.

In August gross totaled $8,675,419, as against $10,113,089 in August, 1931, while net after taxes was $4,542,245, against $5,281,834.

Soft Coal Roads Are Outstanding

The three big soft coal roads Virginian, the Norfolk & Western and the Chesapeake & Ohio, have weathered the period of business storm better than any other group of carriers. All three have been able to cover bond interest with a wide margin to spare and the Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio in the first eight months earned net equal to $5.07 a share and $1.60 a share, respectively, on their common stocks. Virginian earned $3.77 a share on the preferred, not quite covering the eight months of the year for the coal carriers and all three ought to give good accounts of themselves in those months.

SPECTATOR

Says:

The market shows that it needs stimulation. News is more cheerful what with two important regular dividends, a rise in steel production and optimistic forecasts by several railroad heads. Widespread tips that wheat would start something failed to materialize, which was largely responsible for shading of prices.

Look for Incentive

Sponsors for apparently willing to take stocks on recessions, but are waiting for an incentive before starting another demonstration on the upside.

Wall st. sentiment generally remains rather optimistic, but the speculative community is more skeptical than a month ago and isn't chasing stocks up unless there is a reason.

Telephone Business

American Telephone's business this month continued the improvement which developed toward the end of August, it is stated. Cancellations this month, it is said, are only about half what they were in August, and Illinois Bell Telephone is doing relatively much better.

Little thought has been given so far to the $9 telephone dividend. The meeting is nearly two months away and the Street realizes that conditions then will be an important influence on directors.

'Tis said a Chicago crowd is doing things in Simmons, the 1929 highflyer. The stock came through after having been tipped around for several weeks. Pittsburgh buying was seen in International Harvester.

General Motors

A large short interest is understood to be helping the bull group in General Motors.

Detroit was an active buyer of the stock . . . A good deal of short selling came into motors recently on rumors the dividend would be omitted at the November meeting. There also were stories around about a call on 500,000 shares of the stock for distribution purposes which enhanced bearishness in speculative circles. Some quarters are inclined to attribute activity in the motors as a forecast of next year's business . . . Nothing like looking ahead.

The hurricane in Porto Rico stepped on plans afoot to try to do things in the sugar stocks.

Allied Chemical's earnings for the year are estimated at around $4 a share. Allied's position has been helped a lot by the rise in security prices in the last two months.

American Can's earnings of $3.25 a share are quite a bit better than estimated several months ago. Then it looked like $2.50 a share.

MILLIONS ARE WRITTEN INTO GAS 'VALUES'

By M. L. RAMSAY

Washington, Sept. 28 (US)—Values of Associated Gas and Electric System Utilities in Pennsylvania and neighboring states have been "written up" nearly $26,000,000, without any addition to their plants, the Federal Trade Commission reveals.

The aggregate value of a group of 31 properties was boosted on the books, in the last few years, from $64,603,000 to $79,677,000. Associated interests had appraisals made which purported to support the higher values assigned.

The "write-ups" created surpluses on the books of the operating utility companies. By increasing the apparent value of the common stocks of these operating companies they also boosted the assets of companies higher up in the associated pyramid, as these assets appeared on their books.

"Values" of another group of properties were jacked up more than 100 per cent, from $10,176,000 to $20,919,000, when the New York banking house of H. D. Walbridge and Co. transferred them to a subsidiary company before the Walbridge properties were bought by Associated in 1925.

The difference of $10,743,000 was taken by the Walbridge interests as a profit on the sale of the properties to their own subsidiary.

Properties affected by both "write-ups" are grouped under an associated system sub-holding company, Pennsylvania Electric Corp., which now controls nineteen companies. These include the Pennsylvania Electric Co., the Clarion River Power Co. and the Associated Maryland Electric Power Co.

Typewriter Makers Recalling Workers

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 28—Three hundred former employes of the Syracuse plant of Remington Typewriter Co. have been recalled to work in the past 10 days, bringing total list of workers up to 1000. The plant is operating five days a week nine hours a day. Last week it was necessary to operate 5¼ days.

Production at the Syracuse plant of the L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriters Inc. has been doubled this month, as compared with August, and is three times the output in July.

Canada Employment Is Little Changed

Montreal, Sept. 28—Reports from 8007 Canadian firms showed 78[illegible],321 persons employed at beginning of September, against 792,149 at the beginning of August, according to Dominion bureau of statistics. Index number on Sept. 1 was 86.0 against 86.3 on Aug. 1.

LEADERS RALLY IN DULL WALL ST. TRADING

New York, Sept. 28—Leaders rallied in dull trading in Wall st. this afternoon, after earlier displaying irregular price changes.

American Can was up 2 points, in disregard of its omission of the usual $1 extra dividend, announced after the close yesterday. U. S. Steel firmed up a point, following announcement of a moderate further pickup in steel operations.

SOME GAINS NOTED

Afternoon transactions saw J. I. Case up over 2 points. At the same time there were point or better net gains for du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, American Water Works, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Union Pacific and Atchison.

Gains of 2 or more points also appeared for American Telephone, Allied Chemical and Auburn Auto. Drug Inc. rallied around a point. General Motors sold mostly at fractional advances.

Wheat went lower despite widespread bull tips, and cotton was easy. The Coolidge rail commission was formally announced.

Stocks backed and filled throughout the forenoon, with changes small. Support appeared on setbacks, while there were sufficient offerings on bulges to stem any rallying efforts.

Neither the utilities nor the steel stocks did much to reflect the improvement in their position during the week. The rails likewise were sluggish on the announcement of the commission.

The decline in wheat failed to dampen the ardor of the bull pool in Montgomery Ward, and the stock was pushed higher in heavy volume as the rest of the market dragged.

A gain of 14,419,000 kilowatt hours in power production was reported today for the week ended Sept. 24 over the previous week by the National Electric Light Association.

The latest figure was 10.2 per cent below the corresponding 1931 figure. The week before, a difference of 11.2 per cent was recorded.

NEW ENGLAND TOTAL OFF

Electricity output for the Atlantic seaboard in the week of September 24 was down 6.9 per cent, against a decrease of 7.3 per cent for week ended September 17. New England, taken alone, was down 6 per cent, against 4.1 per cent in the previous week.

Reports An Upturn for Export Trade

Export business is on the upturn according to a statement issued by the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Merchants' Association of New York, based upon the foreign trade inquiries which the association received from all parts of the world during the past two months.

The statement declared that the number of trade inquiries received by the Merchants' Association fell off considerably for the first six months of 1932, but during the last two months has increased almost to the average level of the last three years, paralleling the increase shown in our foreign trade for the month of August.

Cotton Mills Open in Manchester Area

Manchester, England, Sept. 28 (INS)—The majority of the cotton mills in this district opened on schedule today, following settlement of the dispute between employers and employes.

Virtually the only exception was at Nelson, where 12,000 weavers took time for further consideration of the settlement before resuming work.

American Gas Has Smaller Surplus

New York, Sept. 28—American Gas & Electric Co. and subsidiaries for the 12 months ended Aug. 31 last report a surplus of $11,163,852 after interest, subsidiary dividends and preferred dividends of parent company, depreciation, etc., and available for common stock. This compares with $15,986,832 in the preceding 12 months.

Whitney Admits Pool Abuses on Exchange

New York, Sept. 28—Richard Whitney, the stock exchange's "harassed" president, has again taken the stump in defense of the stock market.

His speech, made before a group of St. Louis business men and broadcast, is notable in that for the first time since the crash, Whitney admits abuses and the need of changes in the stock exchange's regulations of trading.

In past speeches and testimony he has been content to apply a generous coat of whitewash and let it go at that.

Now he attempts to show the public how it will be protected in the future from a recurrence of these abuses. He lists the abuses as follows:

1. Pools rigging the market.
2. Buying of publicity and spreading false rumors about securities.
3. Infrequent and incomplete corporation earnings reports.
4. Participation in pools in their own stock by corporation officials.
5. Activities of stock exchange specialists in connection with pools.
6. Activities of customers' men.

In admitting "pool" abuses, Whitney makes this statement:

> "Although pools in and of themselves are not necessarily evil, the exchange recognizes that the existence of very large pools, particularly pools in which company officials participate, may induce breaches of trust."

For prosecution of "nefarious pools," he would, however, place the responsibility on the state, but indicates the exchange would furnish the necessary information.

As for corporation officials, he again places the remedy in other hands—in this case those of the stockholders. He does not, however, tell just how the shareholders are to get the information on which to act. It is here the exchange could help out, but so far fails.

Sympathy Aroused for the Rails

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Sept. 28—Though railway earnings continue poor, the carrier systems have made progress since the depression started in arousing public sympathy.

Governor Roosevelt's address at Salt Lake City committed both of the major parties to railroad rehabilitation.

RAILS OUT OF MONOPOLY CLASS

The rise of competing methods of transportation has lifted railroads out of the monopolistic class and as a result railroad executives would like to be liberated from excessive regulation. At the same time they would like to have competing forms of transportation regulated on the same basis as the railroads.

A spokesman for the railroads, the president of one well conducted system, sketched for me his conception of a new deal for the railroads.

"You ask me," the executive began, "what changes I would effect if I could rewrite our laws and re-establish conditions of public regulation and private management.

"This is a rather large order, since it would involve a detailed statement of various technical changes in the act to regulate commerce which I would propose. I can, however, say in general that in my view the railroads are tremendously over-regulated and that competing forms of transportation are entirely unregulated so far as the federal government is concerned and inadequately regulated so far as state regulation is concerned.

PLAN TO CORRECT THE SITUATION

"I would correct this situation by greatly relaxing the regulation of the railroads through limiting the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission largely to those fields originally designed for its occupancy, under the original act to regulate commerce, namely, the authority to prevent discrimination by railroads in their charges as between shippers and communities.

"I would also give the commission authority to approve issues of railroad securities and perhaps some authority in connection with safety appliance laws and the power to fix maximum, but not minimum, rates.

"After securing these objectives, I would turn the railroads loose to be managed as other business enterprises are managed, and should be managed, by representatives of the people who own them, and I would then apply similar relaxed regulation to other competing forms of transportation. If this were done, the traffic of the country would naturally gravitate to those forms of transportation best adapted to serve its needs."

(Lamar, Mo., [illegible])

Bart McCrea, after noting that Rev. M. G. Smith, head of the Allied Forces of Prohibition, had endorsed Harry Bell as the official preference of the prohibition forces in Barton County, has this to say:

But I want to make him and everybody else this proposition: If he can find a man, woman or child who ever at any time saw me take a drop of liquor, or if he can find one that will say that he ever saw me under the influence of liquor or who so much as smelled liquor on my breath—I will give him a thousand dollars."

NICE WORK IF THEY CAN GET IT

We are glad to supply talent for men's smokers, lodge rodeos, traveling salesmen's picnics, etc. One of the most popular entertainment features we are booking for this Winter are the Cellophane Hoop Dancers, pictured above. These two girls come from a very good family, and can be trusted to furnish only high-class dances, guaranteed not to offend. Their peek-a-boo number is something they worked out themselves, and lasts only an hour and twenty five minutes. Entertainment committees are urged to get in touch with us as soon as possible, because if these little ladies do not get something to do pretty soon they intend to join the Minsky burlesque chorus.

WISDOM IN RADIO WIT

Trained Stage Folk Excel on Air

By N. F. T.

These ears have heard one testimonial dinner on the radio that actually proved entertaining from start to finish. As a result, the mental machinery functioning in between said ears has been set in motion. We wonder if others also enjoyed last Sunday night's get-together of stage folk in honor of Weber and Fields.

• • •

PARTNERS PRAISED

Not only was the whole affair exceedingly human from the standpoint of sentimental expression but it proved how successful an effort can be made by voicing such expression briefly. Not a single speech was boresome or overloaded with blatant oratory. William Collier, Sr., was never better as a toastmaster. Those who addressed the gathering were allotted three minutes each.

Wm. Collier, Sr.

• • •

There were Jewish stories, Irish stories, rich reminiscences by the veteran producer, William A. Brady, and continuous impromptu witticisms. For example, the reference to "Roxy" as accepting an opportunity to do some drum beating for Radio City, coming from, as it would, the crafty, facetious Mr. Collier. Also his reading of telegrams from President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt congratulating Weber and Fields on a half century of profitable partnership. These prompted the quip: "There's two fellows who couldn't be together for 50 years." All of which makes it a mystery why broadcasters haven't brought the extemporaneous genius of William Collier into the sound sanctums long ago, if for no other reason than to teach the radio crop of [illegible] masters of [illegible] of bad [illegible]

CRUDE CRITICS

More than a few present day radio program men shy in somewhat cynical fashion at the mention of stage people going on the air. These are the same fellows who very often claim we scribes don't know a good show when we hear or see one. Well, maybe so but then we certainly can and do in turn reply "the same to you." We could even add "many of them" if we wish to take certain current programs into consideration. Radio is not without good entertainment by any means. However, the room for more is plentiful. Likewise is the apparent need for additional men with ability to create and plan them.

LOCAL LATHER

An elaborate afternoon presentation, lasting two hours and including abundant Boston talent takes to the waves via Yankee Network facilities tomorrow afternoon (WNAC), between 3:30 and 5:30. Charles Hector's orchestra, Ranny Weeks, Eleanor Geer, The Gossipers, Ronnie and Van, George Wheeler, Emily MacKenzie, Organist Francis Cronin, Edwin Payner, Morton Bowe, Walter Kidder, Helen Barr, George Harris, Allan Rickards and others are among the artists to be heard. Linus Travers will supervise proceedings which from the array of people taking part should be good . . . Mr. Carl Dennett, scheduled to speak on the New England Council program tonight (WAAB) at 9:15, is ill, and therefore unable to be present. Victor M. Cutter, United Fruit Company executive, addresses the air audience instead. Mr. Cutter chooses as his subject, "Can the Federal Government Economize." What's more, that's a good question to follow up with WILL it do so?

On the Air

The World Series b'dcasts start today and neither Husing nor McNamee is to describe the actual contests but the "color" of the games. And if the boys reflect their own feelings about describing only the "color," it'll be all blue.

Strange that so many baseball an'ncers think a strike has something to do with a labor dispute; a ball, a formal gathering; a pitcher, something in which to carry water; a bat, an all-night spree, and a batter, a mixture of flour, water and eggs.

So Fred Keating, the magician has been added to the cast of the Abe Lyman b'dcasts. Fred's in the wrong end of the radio business. Magicians are wanted to take the place of bookkeepers, the latter having given up all hope of balancing the books . . . NBC now offers a musical program called Joint Recital. So contortionists are coming to the air, now, too.

Hot Air Talk: The orch. at the Mayfair this yr. will have 20 men, 17 musicians and Jacques Renard . . . Bing Crosby is putting on weight raising a mustache, these days . . . Leo Reisman is suffering from hay fever which is making his voice sound very hey-hey. Leo, by the way, is looking for a female voice to sing with his band at the Brunswick. The line of applicants should extend to Lynn . . . Paul Whiteman, who can't dance, is learning to ride (not play) the ponies under the direction of his singer, Red McKenzie, former jockey . . . Mickie Alpert will surprise a lot of folks this fall when he breaks out as a singer. His voice has gone down an octave or two and Harry Richman is watching carefully . . . NBC an'ncer Howard Petrie is contemplating baritoning on the air . . . Frank Luther's real tag is Frank Crowe, but if people called you Jim Crow you'd change your name, too. M. G. M.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 75,000

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1932

Hearst Papers Advocate

1—The five billion dollar loan to relieve unemployment and put billions of dollars into immediate circulation.

2—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.

3—Immediate modification of the Volstead act, permitting light wines and beers, reviving industry and employment, providing government income, ending racketeering and restoring American personal liberty.

Drastic Cut in Cost of Government Will Follow a Democratic Victory

Roosevelt and Garner will enter power on the fourth of next March with a pledge and a program to relieve the over burdened taxpayers of this country by reducing the cost of the Federal Government 25 per cent below the high level of the Hoover administration

Upon this vital question the Democratic platform is emphatic, clear, and explicit. It pledges "an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures" in three ways:

1—By "abolishing useless commissions and offices."
2—By "consolidating departments and bureaus."
3—By "eliminating extravagance."

Under the Hoover administration useless commissions and offices have multiplied, departments and bureaus have expanded, and extravagance has demoralized the entire Federal service.

As a candidate for President in 1928, Mr. Hoover pledged himself to a maximum efficiency of Federal administration at a minimum of cost to the taxpayers.

Despite this pledge, the cost of government has mounted steadily under the Hoover administration until the Government started the current fiscal year with a three billion-dollar deficit.

As Speaker Garner said in his letter accepting the Democratic nomination for Vice-President

> "This three-billion-dollar deficit was not born over night It has been developing and growing for three years, but not until the advent of the present Democratic majority in the House was there any effort on the part of the executive to balance the budget."

In the first year of the Hoover administration, $3 318 000,000 was taken out of the pockets of the people to pay for the upkeep of the Federal Government

In the fiscal year just closed, the Federal Government alone cost the people five thousand million dollars. And this extravagant example is partly to blame for the increasing cost of State and local governments.

Reduction of the cost of the Federal Government by 25 per cent under the administration of Roosevelt and Garner will make it impossible for State and local governments to shirk their responsibility for bringing about proportionate reductions

And with a countrywide reduction in the cost of Government will come relief for the taxpayers, a revival of business, and the return of prosperity on a firm foundation

"Where there's a will, there's a way."

Roosevelt and Garner have shown the will, and they know the way to give the people of the United States a better administration of their Government at Washington at 25 per cent less than they have been getting during the years of Hoover and depression

The Sport of Kings

Few persons are now under the delusion that football is not played by colleges mainly for profits and prestige

Why not cut football out and stage horse races instead? asks Henry S. Pritchett in "The Atlantic Monthly." Think of the excitement and the cash that would be raised by a Harvard-Yale sweepstakes! College trustees, instead of worrying about what coach and honor students to hire for the season, could just engage Eva B. or Little Lad and a good jockey to ride for the glory of Old Siwash.

College racing would also help the breed of horseflesh and encourage the farmers. It would also make the race better acquainted with its noble four-footed friend. A string of horses is certainly more pleasing to the eye than a huddle of masked youths all wrapped up until they are as grotesque and bulky as deep-sea divers.

If the job of entertaining the public is turned over to the stable faculty the students, Mr. Pritchett suggests, would have more time to study.

Just Folks

High Fortune

The man was pale of face and clad
In raiment worn and old
And it was plain to see he had
No great amount of gold.
And it was plain to see that he
Long since had ceased to strive
Or cherish dreams that he might be
The greatest man alive.

Beside the road beneath a tree
He sat as I came by
He pointed out a flower to me
Which seemed to catch his eye'
"'Tis very beautiful," he said,
"Gaze on it while you may
No matter what may lie ahead
This joy is yours today."

He guessed at once my great surprise
So strange a speech to hear
And added: "No man knows what lies
Beyond to start the tear,
And who beholds a lovely thing
Along life's winding way
Or stops to hear a song-bird sing
Has had a lucky day."

Cafe Prices Down

PARIS, Sept. 28—Many famous Parisian restaurants are prix fixe to attract customers. Such an establishment as l'Ecrevisse serves a 25 franc dinner, vin compris A dollar dinner with free champagne! Not the best champagne in France, to be sure, but it bubbles. And who can judge beyond its bubbles?

Scarcely anyone is wearing evening clothes. Ciro's is closed and its head waiters, Maurice and Julian, have opened a small spot which is attracting Americans who want to be seen. Restaurant Marguery is shuttered. Voisin's is being dismantled, and the famous Larue is about ready for a fade-out

Along the quai, La Perouse and Tour d'Argent struggle with only a handful of dinner patrons. Thus does eating in the eatingest city on the continent show the accumulated blight of a pinched purse. On the grand boulevards, dinners, with wine gratis, 7 fr. 50—30 cents—get the play.

One winnows—I'm sick of the word learns—that to the French restaurateur has come a sudden appreciation of American patronage He is far more gracious than in boom times. He has brought his jack-knife obesiance out of the moth balls and dusted off a few carpet-kissing bows.

There is a stouter infusion of the ecstatic and magnanimous graces of the grand old days—when Paris was Paris. French food is no better than food in other countries. Tremulous platitudes and premeditated little ardours made it what it is. And it's high time they snapped back to such brouhaha

* * *

Innumerable Americans, living abroad on market winnings for years, are in sorry plight In the fixity of this despair, they are enduring a pick-thank existence glooming in glittering bistros for a turn of the tide. Three worthy and thoroughly abashed gentlemen, once with chateaux, Citroens and vast leisure, have rapped—and where else are raps so loud?—at any hotel door, so far, awkwardly fumbling requests for loans. Each plea was modest, the most extravagant being for 50 francs. P. S. They got them

* * *

There are, of course, a few more fortunate expatriates left. They are the obtusely boorish and snooty sort, whose favorite quotation is Hendrik Van Loon's brief history of America: "Washington, Lincoln Three flights up and ask for Tony."

* * *

In the foam of faces about the dark-timbered Ritz cocktail room—the "sweat box"—I was glad finally to recognize Frank, the head bar man, recently reported dead. Blond, ruddy, and with increasing embonpoint, he beamed excellent health Across the hall in the men's bar, too, Lou Hauser was having his 7 p. m. Scotch and soda, a rite he has not missed a single day for 15 years.

* * *

Billy, usually indifferent, succumbed to the amorous aura of Paris today in a National City Bank branch. He saw a giant, slate gray mastiff, whose name proved to be Delysia. At sight of her he stretched belly-wise on the mosaic, his head between his paws, whining. Then springing toward her, he rolled on his back in a gesture of sublime adoration and licked at her ankles. Together they suggested Rhode Island and Texas. But Delysia's glance was definitely of annoyance. In the manner of Lillian Russell dismissing a runt, she swayed off leaving Billy looking so foolish the crowd tittered. But likely he is not the only gay dog to be "stood up" in this wicked city! I sneaked him home up a back street, a humiliated Romeo.

* * *

For many years no shop ever moved in Paris. Trip after trip the same locations, the same faces. Then, all of a sudden, like a flood of Nebraska grasshoppers, everybody moved. And most of us flounder like the fabled chameleon tethered to a Paisley shawl. It's a pity, for a chief charm was immutable sameness.

In a new Lanvin suit, tie by Charvet and over-the-channel spats, I rather secretly felt myself the boulevardier along chestnut-lined Champs Elysees today. But, like all precious minions of illusion, it was transitory. From one of those tan chairs of delicate wire, some low person called: "Regards to Piqua."

* * *

I tore Harry Silvey reluctantly from the rues this evening to taxi him to Versailles for a peep at the preserved royal pomp. He walked slowly for some time in the ancient splendor, finally observing: "A lot of palaces." So I taxied him back toot sweet, and, so far as he was concerned, the tooter the sweeter. I'm washed up. Tomorrow, in the Place de la Concorde, I give him to Paris.

Roosevelt Creed: New Deal, Old Justice

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

IN HIS SPEECHES last week Mr Roosevelt illustrated the sort of things he would stop were he in power, with references to the Insull scandal

Meanwhile it was announced by the Federal court that those who invested in Insull securities cannot hope to realize anything upon them

And toward the last of the week it was announced from Washington that Mr. Hoover will give us a Federal probe into the Insull crash

It has been months since the Insull crash; everyone has known that there was crookedness and probably criminality behind it; and the only thing that has occurred to so belatedly arouse Mr. Hoover's interest has been the speeches of Mr Roosevelt

Thus Roosevelt is making himself felt before he reaches the Presidency

Nothing better could illustrate the desperation of the crumbling dynasty of the financial oligarchs in Washington than the present pose of Mr Hoover on the power question He made many speeches while in the Commerce Department scouting the need for Federal regulation; in the Presidency he has consistently aligned himself with the special, and against the general, interest and has made no pretense at enforcing the Federal water power act. But the point now is made that on four occasions he has "recommended" Federal regulation; he made his last recommendation of this sort after packing the Power Commission against the public interest.

* * *

Has Sponsored No Regulative Measure

But all that aside, the fact remains that he has sponsored no measure for such regulation, and there has been no Administration plan submitted. This proves one of two things: Either the insincerity of his recommendation or a complete failure in his leadership. Mr. Roosevelt will lead.

The latter is now drawing to the close of his first tour and it is possible to make an estimate on his speeches. All have been good and sound in principle. They have exploded the silly propaganda about his wild-eyed "radicalism" and "demagogy." We do not recall a single sentence that would furnish the slightest justification for the charge His railroad speech smashed that canard. And something more may be said along that line:

He had not uttered a syllable relating to any forms of business to which any honest man can take exception. He has attacked crookedness in Big Business—and the attack from some high quarter was long overdue. But for the crookedness and greed in high business and financial circles we would not now be entering the darkest Winter of suffering the nation has ever known

Nor has he uttered a word of injustice toward any form of business or any industry. He has merely contended, as every really intelligent man now knows, that all forms of business and all elements are interdependent; that there can be no discrimination against any one to its undoing without disastrously affecting every other in time. There is not a banker or manufacturer who does not know that his interest must suffer when agriculture is stricken down or when 11,000,000 breadwinners and wage earners are out of jobs. But there have been too many who have not thought along this line until recently

Roosevelt's speech shows him standing for a national planning that will embrace all elements and industries in the program.

To me the most impressive of the Roosevelt speeches, because the most fundamental, was that before the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco a non-partisan organization It was not a partisan speech, but an exposition of the candidate's political creed and his analysis of our political needs He got down to cases and stated the real issue, which embraces all the others, in one sentence

"The issue of government has always been whether individual men and women will have to serve some system of government or economics or whether a system of government and economics exists to serve individual men and women."

That is fundamental and, as Roosevelt points out, goes back to the original differences between Jefferson and Hamilton. Issues change, problems differ as time goes on but the fundamental difference in the two schools of political thought is always the same.

* * *

Sketches Appearance of New Forces

In this remarkable speech Roosevelt understandingly sketched the appearance of new forces in American life which came first with the industrial revolution and then with the passing of lands and natural opportunity for the average man He sees where, in the early republic, it was political equality and opportunity that Government had to maintain, and how today it is economic. But in the field of economics as well as politics Government has its obligations to the whole of the people

Mr. Hoover interprets individualism as the right of the powerful to do whatever they wish in the building up of their fortunes; and Roosevelt knows the domination of a financial oligarchy destroys individualism for the masses of the people. It is Roosevelt, not Hoover, who is fighting for individualism.

* * *

"Best Minds" That Were None Too Good

When Mr. Harding came in with the "Best Minds," that have been none too good, the demand was that Government keep hands off and let business go its way. The result is that Government practically abdicated its function as the protector of all the people, that Big Business and Big Finance ran amuck, and in the end slashed the throat of prosperity for all of us Special interests were given a free hand, and, with the greed which goes with special interests, they made the most of it. As Roosevelt says

> "Each group has sought protection from the government for its own special interest without realizing that the function of government must be to favor no small group at the expense of its duty to protect the rights of personal freedom and of property rights of all its citizens."

And so Government abdicated, and the special interests were delighted, and the masses lived in a fool's paradise for a season until the crash came. Meanwhile privilege has been concentrating economic power on which all our lives depend in 600 great corporations that control two-thirds of American industry. And Roosevelt warns

* * *

Industry Controlled by Few Corporations

> "If the process of concentration goes on at the same rate, at the end of another century we shall have all American industry controlled by a dozen corporations and run by perhaps a hundred men."

Now that state of things would not have disturbed Hamilton, who believed in the domination of the many by the few: it would have disturbed Jefferson. And it disturbs Roosevelt where it does not disturb Hoover. If you would know the difference in spirit and approach of the two candidates, read the Commonwealth Club speech of Roosevelt—one of the finest, I think, ever delivered by a Presidential candidate. The tragedy in America has been in the spirit and outlook of our rulers; and if you would know the spirit which animates the man who will be the next President read this San Francisco masterpiece

It means the change we want
It means the new deal we purpose to have

The Soul of Wit
Twelve to Six
These Twins Not Siamese
Our Trouble Is Sin

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ALICE ROOSEVELT LONGWORTH, daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, will make one campaign speech, in Indianapolis, October 17, advocating the election of President Hoover, of course. She is a "good Republican."

She will hardly make a shorter speech than one made by the daughter of former Governor Smith, when he ran in 1928. Miss Smith said: "I hope you will all vote for father," and said no more.

Mrs. Longworth might say: "My father would vote for President Hoover." That would be ONE word shorter than Miss Smith's speech.

The great event of 1932 in the estimation of millions of Americans started yesterday when the Yankees of New York beat the Cubs of Chicago by 12 to 6 on a muddy field.

Baseball is definite, if you understand it. It has its heroes, their names known to millions. Politics is vague, with candidates instead of heroes. Forty thousand paid to watch Babe Ruth and the others yesterday. How many would pay to hear any or all of the candidates?

Daisy and Violet Hilton apply for naturalization papers in Chicago. You are surprised to learn that, born in England, they are the ladies known to the world as "The Siamese Twins." Some circus man had a good idea. "Siamese" added a great deal to those twins. They would be entitled, presumably, to two votes.

According to the Rev. Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, dean of New York's Union Theological Seminary, our depression came, not because we are paying for the big war, not because of overproduction, the wickedness of public utilities or the unloading of tens of tens of millions of shares of stock representing nothing in particular.

The whole trouble is SIN.

"Wholesale, unabashed ruthless sin" is what ails us, according to Dr. Van Dusen. We have offended God by not believing in Him.

What a reverend doctor says must be true, but you wonder whether all the millions idle and the children suffering have sinned sufficiently to deserve what is happening to them.

A cable despatch from Paris to Cyrus H. K. Curtis announces that "plans for a new study of the war debt arouse enthusiasm in French financial and other circles. The French are delighted to learn that many members of the war debt committee are also members of the French Legion of Honor. One of them, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, is a grand officer; George W. Wickersham a commander in the order.

That is interesting. There ought also to be some members, past masters or grand commanders in the great American order of taxpayers.

Scientists were all excited when a mammoth was found frozen in the northern ice. The huge creature of elephant type, with enormous tusks, hair and flesh, was perfect, except that wolves had eaten some of the flesh.

More interesting is the discovery by Danish scientists in Greenland of vikings buried and perfectly preserved in the frozen ground of the island, fully dressed in tight breeches, double breasted coats of homespun cloth, no coffins.

Frozen bodies of northerners that went to Greenland 600 years ago are even more interesting than the frozen mammoth.

Associated Press reports that "John Ford Darling, noted economist, important banker," fears that "economic attraction" will bring about the absorption of Canada by the United States."

Geographical reasons would help the absorption, according to the learned banker, also the fact that "Canada has to pay the United States $150,000,000 a year interest."

Banker Darling evidently does not know the Canadians well. They don't intend to be absorbed by anybody and will continue to pay their debts for which they probably got full value.

Some day, far off, Canadians might enter into equal partnership with the Americans. In the meanwhile, it is useful to have so able a pacemaker and so good a friend on the north.

The government complains, with tears, that Russia, selling goods here, notably asbestos, uses "unfair practice." The Russians come here and sell asbestos for whatever they can get. The asbestos people say so.

"This richest, most powerful country in the world," refusing to recognize the Russian government and then crying about its trade methods, seems rather ridiculous, especially as we have been "dumping" our surplus of manufactured articles all over the world at prices much lower than our home prices.

Huge Dynamite Theft Is Clue to Bombers

Eleven cases of dynamite were stolen between Monday and early today near the Gilbertville-Hardwick town line 20 miles west of Worcester where, on Tuesday, the home of Judge Webster Thayer, Sacco-Vanzetti trial justice, was destroyed by a dynamite blast.

The discovery, made shortly before noon today, was considered the best clue yet unearthed in the Worcester bomb outrage.

At the same time it greatly increased fears of a widespread plot of terrorism because not more than two cases of dynamite in the opinion of experts were used in the Worcester bombing.

These fears earlier in the day had caused the beginning of organization of the first Boston police bomb squad in history.

The stolen dynamite weighed 550 pounds.

It was taken from the powder house of the Wenzel & Henoch Construction Company at shaft No. 10 of the Metropolitan water supply development and the tentative theory of investigators is that part of it was used to blow up Judge Thayer's home.

2 MEN ARE CLUE

In this connection police considered a story told by Irving Harper, watchman at the powderhouse, of great significance.

Harper said that early last Monday morning he was approached by two women in an automobile who attempted to buy dynamite from him. He told them no explosives were for sale and they drove away.

The check on all stored explosives ordered as a result of the Worcester explosion led to the discovery of the theft.

The padlock on the steel building in which 25,000 pounds of dynamite was kept had been broken off and a quick check revealed the large amount stolen. Harper said it was there when he last checked the supply on Monday.

Fingerprints were found on the jamb of the steel door and the broken lock and Sergt. Walter T.

Boston today was linked in the most astounding way with the nation's biggest illicit alcohol syndicate now under Federal investigation along the eastern seaboard.

The [illegible] revelation was made by federal [illegible] in New York [illegible] end of the [illegible] par with Detroit and New York.

Boston business [illegible] to whom the syndicate [illegible] shipments, are named, but all are believed to have been innocent victims of the racket. The center of the first report were obtained exclusively by the Boston Evening American.

Freight cars consigned to these concerns were diverted by two powerful Boston bootlegging gangs in the Southampton st. yards of the New Haven Railroad, officials declared.

U. S. AGENTS HERE

Federal undercover agents are now in Boston checking [illegible] angles of the investigation.

So big was the local consumption, that the bootleg gangs [illegible] motor truck companies to haul the alcohol between the freight yards and the distilleries.

The liquor gangs involved [illegible] be named shortly, according to the government agents.

The investigation is linked with the disappearance of Joe Bloom, former Bostonian, who has been executed and buried at sea in a barrel of cement by his former associates, according to federal officials.

GALE-WRACKED SHIP HERE

The United Fruit steamer Harbor Jensen docked in Boston today, from Tela, Honduras, after being battered by the tail of the Puerto Rico hurricane.

Off Charleston, S. C., Monday she ran into the tail of the tropical storm and was boarded by a tremendous sea which swept her from stem to stern and wrecked deck gear.

Chief Officer Oscar Orum, who was on duty at the forecastle head at the time, was impaled on the anchor windlass by the waves. He was so seriously injured that the ship put into Charleston after he had been given first aid treatment in response to radio advices from Miami, Fla. His condition at a Charleston hospital is serious.

Before this mishap a stowaway had been found on board. He was Jan Zak, a German beachcomber, from Honduras, who will be deported from this port.

A woman and her four children were the only passengers on the boat. The woman was Mrs. Maria D. Pena, of Newport, R. I., wife of a plantation employe who shipped her home because of the revolution threat.

GEHRIG'S HIT CUTS INTO CUBS AT START

Crowd of 55,000 Starts In Yelling as the Yankees Do Their Stuff

By JOE CASHMAN

Yankee Stadium, Sept. 29.—Too much Gehrig sent the Cubs on their way back to Chicago trailing the Yankees by two games in the battle for the world title, the McCarthymen crushing Chicago again today in the second game of the series here before a crowd of 45,000.

Gehrig blasted the hopes of the Cubs when he clicked off three singles in a row on the offerings of Lonnie Warneke, youthful hope of the Chicago team.

The series will be resumed in Chicago on Saturday with the Cubs [illegible] never before accomplished in a World Series winning after dropping the first two games.

HERMAN HITS AGAIN

Whatever happens to the Cubs before the series is over no one can say that Billy Herman didn't do his bit. Herman, who made the first hit and scored the first run of the series yesterday, was first man up again today and repeated the performance.

Only today Herman slapped out a double on the second southpaw [illegible] of Lefty Gomez. He advanced by steps to third and raced home when Stephenson popped out to Combs.

Fans noticed the change in the Cubs' lineup when they took the field. [illegible] who was reported hurt, was out with Jurges playing at short.

Demaree was in Moore's place in center field.

Warneke, the box wonder of the Cubs mound staff, acted like the little girl with a curl in the first frame. When he was good he was good enough to fan Ruth. But when he was bad he wasn't so good. And the Yanks wiped out the one-run lead by scoring twice in their half of the session.

Lou Gehrig, the crown prince of [illegible] began where he left off yesterday and singled to score Combs, who had walked.

Another walk given to Sewell by Warneke resulted in a tally when Dickey singled off [illegible] glove, Sewell scoring.

It looked like [illegible] a couple of Cub runs in the second. But with two on Gomez fanned the dangerous Herman.

Only three Yanks faced Warneke in the same inning. Against any other team, this performance would give a pitcher lots of confidence. But with the Yanks always ready to cream out [illegible] of hits all Warneke could do was hope.

The fans who came to see Babe Ruth play baseball failed to appreciate [illegible] act in the third inning which allowed Stephenson to even up the count.

BABE THROWS WILD

After Stephenson had doubled, Demaree singled to right, and the Babe, after assuring himself that it was a baseball he had recovered, made a wild throw to the plate.

The fans didn't like that, or may-

TARIFF SPEECH TONIGHT IN SIOUX CITY

Democratic Presidential Nominee Wins Hearts of Thousands In Nebraska

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

En route with Gov. Roosevelt In Nebraska, Sept. 29 (INS) Gov Franklin D. Roosevelt came today into the heart of the country where agrarian discontent and political unrest have reached their most acute stages.

He came with the political blessing and sponsorship of Senator George W. Norris, veteran Nebraska insurgent, who this year, as four years ago, has bolted President Hoover and is carrying the Democratic banner throughout the grain belt.

Tonight will find the Democratic presidential nominee in Sioux City, Ia., center of the famous "farm strike," which began as a small blaze and is steadily assuming the proportions of a major conflagration in this section.

TARIFF SPEECH TONIGHT

In Sioux City, Governor Roosevelt plans to deliver the last of his major speeches on this 9000-mile swing about the circle. It will be devoted principally to tariff, and the manner in which the Smoot-Hawley act has operated to the disadvantage of the farmer.

Gov. Roosevelt's program was so arranged as to give him most of the day in Omaha and environs. It included a parade of the city and a visit to a typical Nebraska farm, operated by one Gus Sumnick, of German extraction. Mr. Sumnick has a Rooseveltian family of 11 children, and he planned to show the Democratic nominee some threshing, some corn shelling and other routine chores of Nebraska farm life.

ADDRESS IN OMAHA

Later, Gov. Roosevelt was to visit Omaha's famous stockyards, and at noon speak from the court house steps.

In a picturesque setting last night at McCook, home town of Senator Norris, the nominee orally and physically embraced the insurgent leader, praised him as a man who had "put country over party," and in return was praised by Norris as a Roosevelt fit to wear the mantle of "T. R."

"What this country needs," said Norris, "is another Roosevelt, and here he is." That was the introduction.

Some 20,000 farmers and residents of McCook, jammed into the enclosure of a county race track, roared a greeting to the Democratic nominee.

NORRIS ABOVE HOOVER

Senator Norris, he declared, "is a better Republican than Herbert Hoover."

His speech won the hearts of thousands of listeners.

After his strenuous day in Omaha today and his speech in Sioux City tonight, Gov. Roosevelt will continue his journey eastward with Milwaukee next on the schedule.

FARM BANK FOR N. E. SOUGHT

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP) Representatives of farming interests in New England, New York and New Jersey applied to the Reconstruction Finance Corp today for establishment of an agricultural credit bank in the first district comprising these states.

A committee headed by Reps. Bacon of New York and Wolverton of New Jersey presented the plea. They told the corporation the need was acute for such a bank in the northeastern states. Wolverton said he believed loans to farmers in that area would be of a higher class than in other sections of the country because it was the last to seek a credit bank and therefore had the most behind its loans.

The committee included William B. Duryee, secretary of agriculture for New Jersey, Henry S. Manley, counsellor of the department of agriculture for New York, Arthur W. Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture for Massachusetts, C. R. White, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, and A. L. Brockway, vice president of the New York State Agricultural Society.

No National Appeal for Hurricane Fund

There will be no national relief fund appeal by the American Red Cross for the victims of the Puerto Rico hurricane, according to advice received by James Jackson, chairman of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter today.

The Red Cross is extending emergency relief to the victims, Jackson said, and will incur large expenses toward which individuals may contribute if they wish. The Boston chapter will accept all such contributions and will forward them to national headquarters.

EDGE WAITS FOR SPIRIT'S ORDER

New York Sept 29 (AP)—Walter E. Edge, United States Ambassador to France, came home today to "straighten out the kinks" in the French counter proposals to a prospective commercial treaty.

Arriving on the United States liner Manhattan, Ambassador Edge said his return to America in this pre-election period had no political significance. He added however that he would "do as the spirit moves me" when he gets to New Jersey.

"I can't see that the President needs any help in his campaign," he said. "I am home to discuss matters pertinent to my job."

Fall River Poison Murder Case Delayed

Fall River, Sept. 29 (AP)—Judge Benjamin Cook, in district court today, continued until October 15 the case of Joseph J. Turck of Lawrence, charged with the murder of Stanislaus Sleinlus, former head of the National Lithuanian Church in Lawrence. The request for a continuance was made by Dist. Atty William C. Crossley. Judge Cook also continued the case of Albert Cilclus, also Lawrence, allegedly an accessory. Sleinlus charged Turek on his death bed with having poisoned him.

Doherty Ruled Out and Declares for Ely

The name of Patrick H. Doherty, paid candidate for governor of the "prohibition repeal party" was ruled off the ballot by the State Ballot Law Commisison today, bringing to an abrupt close one of the strangest stories of trickery in political history.

The candidate himself, a retired Avon mechanic, when he heard the decree of the commission, said:

DOHERTY BACKS ELY

"I'm glad my name has been taken from the ballot. I never did want to be a candidate against Gov. Ely. As a matter of fact I intend to vote for him.

"I was drawn into the whole matter by deception practiced on me by "Attleboro Sam" Rushton, Lieut.-Gov. Youngman's political henchman. I am glad the Ballot Law Commission has exposed a deliberate conspiracy by the Republican party to defeat Gov. Ely through underhanded methods."

The ruling of the Ballot Law Commission came after it was shown that nearly 1000 names on Doherty's papers had been either forged or obtained through misrepresentation.

SECOND NAME REMOVED

Doherty's name was the second removed by the commission this week, the name of William R. Ferry of Newton, "prohibition candidate," having been eliminated because of alleged forgeries and misrepresentation.

Since the hearing opened a week ago, when Rep. John Higgins of Boston protested the Doherty papers, the names of close associates of Lieut.-Gov. Youngman have been frequently mentioned.

Samuel Rushton of Attleboro, said to be a backer of Youngman, paid Doherty $100 in the sub cellar of a Boston garage, gave him an automobile and promised him $100 a month to become a candidate, according to Doherty's testimony.

POLITICAL ALLIES

James F. Manning, a political ally of Youngman, and chauffeur for him on campaign trips, circulated Doherty papers in Cambridge. Samuel LeVine, another friend of Youngman, was charged with distributing Doherty papers in Lawrence.

Cabinet resignations at home, Irish rumbles across the channel, civil disobedience in India, empty exchequer in Australia—you would think that Britain's king-emperor is a very worried man these days. Perhaps all of them are sure that England always "muddles through." (International News Photos.)

DAVIS DEFENSE UPHELD BY 3 WITNESSES

Moose Members Testify Senator Was Unconnected With the Alleged Lotteries

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 29 (INS)—John M. Smith, of Rochester, member of the supreme council of the Loyal Order of Moose, testifying today at the "lottery" trial of U. S. Senator James J. Davis, denied emphatically he had contradicted his statements made in private examination.

The government charged that Smith stated previous to the trial that he did not know anything of the assigning of the "organization" contract by Davis to Joseph Jenkins and Fred W. Jones.

Smith testified that Davis had discussed his sale of the contract before members of the supreme council in Sharon, Pa., in August, 1930.

RECORD DISPUTED

The government read from a stenographic, but unsworn report of the private examination of Smith by a member of the U. S. attorney's staff.

It quoted Smith as saying he did not know of any contract sold by Davis for $600,000.

Witness insisted his statement in private examination referred only to his ignorance of the purchase price of the contract.

POINT SCORED FOR DAVIS

Julius Garfinkle, Washington merchant, director in the Washington Railway and Electric Co., the Riggs Bank and a trustee of Washington University, testified as a character witness for Davis.

Lawrence Grove, executive secretary of Cleveland Moose Lodge, testified Joseph Jenkins became head of the "organization" department in September, 1930.

This supported the claim of Davis that he separated himself from the department in 1930 and was therefore not responsible for checks traced to the department from the two charity balls alleged to be lotteries.

BIG ALKY RING BARED

turned the investigation toward Boston and resulted in today's amazing disclosures.

R. R. MEN INVOLVED

Railroad employes, numbering at least a score, are also involved in connection with the mysterious diversion of alcohol shipments.

What federal agents are now trying to discover in Boston is how the bootleg gangs were able to secure bills of lading permitting them to remove the shipments from the freight cars.

Wholesale forgery of bills of lading and collusion by trusted railroad employes is suspected.

Shipments as large as those made to Detroit and equalling the New York consumption of denatured alcohol, were made by the $10,000,000 syndicate headed by Waxie Gordon, New York Public Enemy No. 1, according to Department of Justice special deputies in New York.

Thirty cars of fine grade alcohol were shipped to Boston within a three months' period for "cleaning" in local stills like the Woburn "pill-box." After removal of the sickening formula ingredients, this alcohol poured into the bootleg trade.

FREIGHT PREPAID

All the alcohol shipped here came in carload lots, with freight charges prepaid.

Wherever Boston consignees are named by Federal officials, the statement is made that these concerns apparently were innocent and never received the shipments, these being diverted in transit.

A shipment of 40,000 pounds of alcohol, disguised as "caustic soda," was made to J. B. Ford Co., care of the Forest Hills Warehouse Co., Forest Hills, Mass., the officials s[illegible].

This shipment was made by the City Chemical Products Co. of Newark, N. J., October 10, 1931, which officials say is a dummy concern operated by the Waxie Gordon syndicate.

The Ford company is a reputable concern the government officials declared. The Gordon "mob" prepaid the freight charges, amounting to $127.68.

The Boston company knew nothing about the shipment, and the freight car filled with denatured alcohol was diverted in some manner after it left Newark over the Lehigh Valley Railroad, to come here via the New Haven.

SHIPPED AS RUBBER

A similar case was that of a shipment to the Stedfast Rubber Co., Tokio st., Dorchester, officials asserted. This was on Oct. 19 1931.

The shipment comprised 40,000 pounds of alcohol labeled "liquid rubber-Dunlop latex." It was shipped by the Choice Rubber Compound Co., Newark, N. J., another dummy name used by the Gordon gang.

This car came over the Lehigh Valley Railroad to the New Haven railroad, and to the Southampton st. yards in Boston. The car was a Baltimore & Ohio railroad car number 275,453, according to the government agents.

[illegible] parently a bill of lading had been presented for the contents of the car.

On May 11, 1931, the ring shipped 80 drums of alcohol which they called "castor oil" to an address on Columbia rd., Dorchester, which is a dwelling house, occupied by the Family Welfare Society of Boston, a dancing teacher and a piano teacher.

The bills of lading consigned the alcohol to the Eastern Oil & Grease Co., which is non-existent.

USUAL SWITCH-OFF

Seventy more drums were shipped to the same pace, and as before, the freight cahrges were paid in advance and the carload of alcohol diverted into bootleg channels.

Again on May 25, a car of alcohol came to Boston disguised as caustic soda, weighing 36,060 pounds, with prepaid freight charges of $115.39.

The Baily Sanborn Co. of Boston, a mythical concern, was the consignee of a shipment made June 15, 1931, and delivery instructions called for notification of the Boston Motor Line, 29 Chatham st., Boston.

This is the address of a number of express companies, including the General Express Co. which has charge of the place, and an official of this company said he never heard of the Boston Motor Line.

TRUCKS IN ACTION

Nevertheless, teh big five-ton trucks of the local bootleg ring backed up to the freight car, according to government officials, and removed 83 drums of alcohol billed as "castor oil."

On June 23 a shipment of 75 drums was made to the same mythical concern with the same delivery instructions. On July 3 the Essex Corn Products Co., one of the dozen dummy companies operated by the New York syndicate, shipped 30,000 pounds of alcohol labeled "corn syrup" to R. J. Hall & Co., care of the Bowker Storage Warehouse Co., 33 Commercial wharf, Boston.

An official of the Bowker Storage Warehouse Co. told the Boston Evening American that it never had any account under teh name of R. J. Hall & Co., and never handled any such shipment.

Most of the alcohol shipped here was "the real McCoy," according to federal authorities—that is, it had already been purified and went direct into bootleg channels without having to go through distilleries in this section.

The J. B. Ford Co. told the Boston Evening American it never had any shipment coming here from New Jersey, all its shipments coming here from it's factory in Michigan.

An official of the Stedfast Rubber Co said they had no knowledge of any such shipment as described by federal agents, verifying the agents' statement that this company, like the others, were innocent "dupes," the alcohol being diverted in the freight yards in all cases.

12 INDICTED IN RUM PLOT

Fifteen Greater Boston men, named as "contacts" for two rum syndicates operating along New England shores, are among the 82 indicted in Portland, Me., by the Federal Grand Jury that reported last Friday on liquor cases, it was revealed today.

The indictments, most of which are secret resulted from a six-months investigation.

Wire-tapping, interception of radio messages from shore stations to the rum fleets, a survey of the registrations of vessels and automobiles used in rum transportation and a list of pilots operating scouting planes for the syndicates are included in the far-reaching probe.

Chief among the Massachusetts men already under arrest is Thomas F. Kearns of Raynham, alleged "king" of one of the syndicates who is held pending hearing on his removal to Maine jurisdiction.

Kearns, Federal investigators said, operated the "Prudence", a $50,000 yacht, off the Maine coast and hired entire hotels at Boothbay, Me., this summer and also owned a "mother ship" which operated off the coast, and numerous speed boats.

How extensive the probe has been is shown in the arrest of Leslie E. Rowe, amateur radio operator of Portland who was held in $3000 bail today after his arrest as the alleged "key man" in the rum operations off the Maine coast.

Department of Justice agents revealed after the arrest that messages sent out in code from Rowe's set had been intercepted and interpreted.

Although an enrolled Republican, Dr. Stockdale, who once occupied pulpits in Greater Boston, said he was a great admirer of Governor Roosevelt, to whom people throughout the country are [illegible].

Interviewed at the Parker House he said:

"Throughout the country this coming election will register the largest reactionary and protest vote in history. The people want a change. FUNERAL PARTY FOILS PLOTTERS

Havana, Sept. 29—Scores, perhaps hundreds, of people were saved from death or injury when Mme. Clemente Vazquez Bello, widow of the murdered president of the Cuban Senate, changed her mind.

Reversing a decision to have her husband's body interred in Colon Catholic Cemetery here, Mme. Vazquez Bello decided the funeral should take place today at the family plot in Santa Clara.

Police and soldiers assigned to inspect the vault in Colon cemetery in which Vazquez Bello was to have been buried, unaware that Mme. Vazquez Bello had planned anew, discovered enough dynamite to have blown up the entire funeral procession.

Further investigation disclosed that the entire cemetery was mined with dynamite placed all along the route which would have been followed by the funeral procession.

NEW TREMORS ROCK GREECE

Athens, Sept. 29 (INS)—A new series of earthquake tremors threw residents of the Greek peninsula of Chalcidice into panic today.

Coming close on the heels of previous shocks that had devastated the region, the new quakes left utter desolation in their wake.

Meanwhile it was reported that five warships of the British Mediterranean fleet had arrived at Ierissos bringing relief and supplies to residents of the destroyed village.

According to latest figures the death toll of the earlier shocks has mounted to 338, while surveys of the damage indicated the towns of Ierissos, Yomatia, Nea Rhoda, Stratonion and Stayira were ruined.

2D COLLECTION AGENCY LINKED WITH FRAUDS

Investigation of the collection fraud ring was broadcast today when the State police and Middlesex County authorities began checking up another Boston collection agency with headquarters in School st.

Asst Dist Atty Frank G. Volpe said he had received many complaints about this company in the past few days and that he had information showing that the agency in question was being conducted by former employes of Atty Robert A. Goodman, a suspended Dorchester lawyer, and his brother Dr A Robert [illegible] of Quincy and Cambridge who with eight employes are [illegible] indictment in Middlesex county.

MANY COMPLAINTS

"I assigned Lieut. Arthur Keating of the state police to investigate the charge of a Waltham man who reported that collectors for the School st company had seized his car under circumstances identical with the methods used by agents of the Goodman agencies.

"Publicity has resulted in complaints pouring in our office from all parts of the state. Many of them are beyond our jurisdiction, having occurred in neighboring counties. I fear that Goodman agents are still active in other counties in spite of the wholesale arrests.

"We have just received two new complaints from the South Shore, one from Wollaston and the other from Weymouth. Howard Drew of 45 Standish rd, North Weymouth, with the aid of a neighbor, ejected two Goodman collectors from his premises and the collectors, O'Brien [illegible] Conway, brought action against him and attached his pay.

GIRL IS VICTIM

"I also had called to my attention today the case of a girl who lives in Wollaston. The School st firm which we are investigating tried to collect a dental bill for $225 from this young woman in the course of which they seized an automobile owned by her mother. She told us the collectors ordered her to drive the family car to a public garage where they held it and that she was so nervous that she nearly wrecked the machine on the way."

R C Y[illegible] an Arlington painter [illegible] office and reported that [illegible] of the Goodman [illegible] he turned over a [illegible] from A D P[illegible] of 21 [illegible] rd. When [illegible] told him he [illegible] bill to two [illegible] but Y[illegible] any of [illegible].

Henry W[illegible] of Melrose [illegible] Dist Atty Volpe that [illegible] of Goodman seized one of [illegible] in attempting to [illegible] $7 bill. He said they [illegible] two cars [illegible] one away and charged him [illegible] for towing. He later recovered [illegible] car. 20 B. E. F. VETS HEAR CURLEY ASSAIL G. O. P.

Cleveland, Sept. 29 (AP)—Twenty members of the "bonus army" ousted from Washington were guests last night at a Democratic dinner before which Mayor James M Curley of Boston was the principal speaker

Mayor Curley predicted a 'landslide' victory for Gov Franklin D Roosevelt in the presidential election and blamed the depression on the Republican administration

Curley paid high tribute to Alfred E Smith defeated presidential nominee in 1928 He said Roosevelt did not announce his candidacy until Smith three times had declared his intention to retire from public life

The Boston mayor ridiculed Republican promises in 1928 that a Republican victory would mean "two cars in every garage and a chicken in every pot

"We are not informed," he said, "that it was the purpose of President Hoover and those associated with him to exploit America for the benefit of the banking fraternity."

About 1500 Democrats attended the dinner Mayor Curley's speech was his 102nd on a nation-wide campaign tour

Male Manicures Training for New York Debut

By MARGARET LANE
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 29 (INS)—"Oh, he's a handsome thing! Six feet tall and a fine manicurist. A charming manner, and a man if ever there was one! He's certain to get a fine position as soon as he's through his beauty parlor work."

The proprietor of the beauty culture school is proud of his male manicure pupils There are six of them a-l-o-n-g with due consideration of looks and such charm to meet the screaming demand of women customers for male manicurists instead of girls

"They are the very first male manicurists," said the school principal with pardonable pride, "and they will make their debut as fully fledged operators at the American beauty and styles exposition at Grand Central Palace next month.

"LOGICAL SCHEME"

"You know" he lowered his voice, "the most expensive beauty parlors have been asking for young men to manicure their women customers. The women really prefer it

"After all, you know, it is only fair. A man would rather have his nails done by a pretty girl than than by a barber You get the idea?"

The scheme is as the principal holds strictly logical There is to the women customers of the Fifth Ave Beauty Salons something very sympathetic about a good looking young man who can murmur conversationally as he bends a sleek head over their hand and tips their fingers with scarlet Something much more soothing than an impertinent little blonde whose nails outshine one's own!

Lest, however, anything unkind should be said about the suitability of manicuring as a profession for six able-bodied young men, great stress is laid on the manliness of the handsome half dozen

"ALL REGULAR FELLOWS"

"They work in the evening" explained the teacher of manicure "when the girl pupils have gone home Each young man practises on the nails of one of the others for an hour, and then they change round

"They are apt pupils. What types are they? Oh, regular fellows! Effeminate types wouldn't meet the demand at all, you know! And in these days the best kinds of young men are thankful of a steady job at $35 or $40 a week Some women manicurists make as much as $60, and as the demand for men has only come from the most expensive beauty parlors they are sure of a good living. Most of them have other jobs already, which is why they work in the evening But they want to give them up for beauty culture."

One of the girls sniffed very faintly it is true, but it was a sniff for all that

"One of them is an interior decorator," she volunteered. After a pause she added:

"I guess the others are show fellers."

VALUE BOOSTING OF POWER FIRM UNDER U. S. FIRE

Washington, Sept. 29 (UP)—New "values" of nearly $16,000,000 added to Associated Gas and Electric System properties in Pennsylvania and nearby have been challenged by Examiner O. C. Van Zandt in the Federal Trade Commission's Power Trust investigation.

Van Zandt traced $15,[illegible]000 of these "values" to employment by associated interests of two sets of appraisers. When second appraisals produced higher figures they were [illegible] for those resulting from the first appraisals.

BOOSTING CHARGED

Appraisers' figures were boosted further by adding [illegible] certain generous allowances which a federal court in [illegible] had made in an unrelated [illegible] case, according to Van Zandt. The court had allowed as value the appraised cost of reproduction [illegible] company plus 15 per cent of this cost for going value, organization, financing and other overheads.

The biggest property affected, the Penn [illegible] Service Corporation, had a book value of $[illegible]

APPRAISAL LOWER

An appraisal by the F. L. Cheney Engineering Company credited it with a value of only $3,611,000. This appraisal included $[illegible]18,000 for various overhead.

Associated interests substituted the overhead percentages allowed in the [illegible] case, which produced an aggregate of $[illegible]. Thus the total appraised value of $[illegible] was [illegible] more than the value shown on the books.

BEAST COMES TO BEAUTY'S PARTY—LUCKY BEAST

When little three-year-old Betty B[illegible]h of Los Angeles gives a party for her doll she always has a guest—unlike the naughty girl in the Mother Goose rhyme. And the guest is Nubia, 14-month African lioness. Although nearly full grown, Nubia, who was purchased by Betty's father when only five days old, is a well-behaved beast. That's why she's invited to parties. The big cat has been raised on a bottle of milk and is a household pet. She enjoys her dish of cereal, as you can see. (I.N.P.)

Herriot said France has not realized sufficiently the importance of the treaty of Secretary Stimson and [illegible] of possible extension of the pact of Paris by means of [illegible]

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the vicious battle between the python and the tiger . . . in Frank Buck's thrilling motion picture, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," filmed from nature in the Malay jungle.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

BONUS, REPEAL ISSUES SPLIT G. O. P. HERE

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

A bitter row over the prohibition and soldiers' bonus issues loomed today before the resolutions committee of the Republican State Convention meeting in the Hotel Bradford to consider planks for the party platform.

The fight is expected to be carried to the floor of the convention tomorrow in Symhony Hall, disrupting carefully laid plans for a harmonious gathering.

DRYS FACE DEFEAT

The prohibition element, composed for the most part of church workers, which heretofore has dominated the G. O. P. platform framers, is prepared to raise vigorous objection to any change in the 18th amendment or the Volstead Act.

On the other hand pressure will be exerted by many party leaders for an endorsement of the stand taken by President Hoover calling for a change with guarantees of protection for the rights of dry states, a stand that goes beyond the resubmission plank of the national platform.

The selection of former Atty. Gen. Jay R. Benton, known as a liberal on this question, as chairman of the resolutions committee, presages a defeat for the prohibitionists and is practically certain to mean the loss of a great block of their votes in the November election. It was [illegible] pointed out. The [illegible] expressed by the [illegible] the Hoover [illegible] tion.

BONUS DOOMED

The bonus issue is expected to be dragged into the [illegible] by the more militant element, but small prospects of success as the party would be placed in the position of repudiating the President by favoring it.

Following the hearing before the resolutions committee the G. O. P. stalwarts will have their [illegible] before banquet in the same hotel to listen to a letter read by Fulton Hannigan, president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and another from Calvin Coolidge asking for the reelection of President Hoover and the state ticket, and hear a radio address from the President.

The orator will be Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, who was the keynoter at the New Hampshire state convention.

HEBERT KEYNOTER

The state convention on Friday will be opened by Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the state committee. The permanent chairman will be former State Treasurer John W. Haigis of Greenfield and the keynote speech will be delivered by Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island. There will be also addresses by Lieut. Gov. William S. Youngman and Gaspar G. Bacon, candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor.

The opening prayer will be offered by the Rev. Henry Wilder Foote, pastor of the First Church in Belmont. A program of organ music will be given by Harry J. Jenkins.

Recount Cuts 100 Off Mahoney Total

Recount of the legislative vote in Ward 13, in progress at the office of election commissioners today, revealed that 100 votes were erroneously credited to Rep. John V. Mahoney. The error was found in Precinct 4, where Mahoney was credited with 237 votes instead of 137. The change is not expected to cost Mahoney his victory.

SHORT SHORT STORY ON COMMUNISM ---AND A JOLT

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

The best political story I have heard in months has nothing to do with Mr. Hoover, perhaps the President is gently receding out of the minds of men. Perhaps the anonymous inventors of jokes and funny sayings are working something up about Roosevelt; about him, by the way—and Mr. Hoover won't think that is funny—it is said that even before the Maine elections, he and Mrs. Roosevelt were already planning the details of closing their house by next March. However, the story which is having considerable success is about a communist orator addressing a meeting. "Where do the poor live?" he shouted, and answered himself, "In the slums. Where do the rich live? On Park Ave. Comes the Revolution where will the rich live? In the slums. Where will the poor live? On Park Ave. What do the poor eat? [illegible] garbage. What do the rich eat? Strawberries in December. Comes the Revolution what will the rich eat? [illegible] garbage. What will the poor eat? Strawberries in December."

"I don't like strawberries," cried a communist in the crowd.

"Comes the Revolution," [illegible] "[illegible] eat strawberries in December."

Against Russia

To make [illegible] I [illegible] the [illegible] of my [illegible] Mr. Robin Maury. At [illegible] questions before allowing him to [illegible] I [illegible] that the Russian experiment is an experiment [illegible] they have [illegible] [illegible] in the future. And at the [illegible] I wrote the phrases [illegible] Mr. Maury [illegible] it seemed to me that even [illegible] American system [illegible] Now for the [illegible]

Do you object to a [illegible] you made in a recent column [illegible] writes Mr. Maury. The remark has stuck in my [illegible] three [illegible] I wouldn't bother you about it. It was to the effect that the Russians are being extremely noble [illegible] trying to pull through the world crisis which [illegible] and that you were afraid the United States, while it probably would pull through, would be [illegible] I can't see it. In fact I resent [illegible] have been cropping up [illegible] every eyes [illegible]

What [illegible] Russia [illegible] to keep [illegible] and what [illegible] majority of them [illegible] White Russians [illegible] of that government [illegible] claim they did [illegible] spiritually [illegible] and have been [illegible] Where [illegible] international [illegible] through bankruptcy may [illegible] quite particularly if he is a fraudulent bankrupt. But I have yet to hear any one call him noble, and so, I would lay a little bet, have you.

"In the United States, we seem pretty certain to go through the terrible job of recovery without a Bolshevik, Fascist or any other kind of revolution. Our substitute for revolution may be bourgeois and unexciting middle class and muddling and tedious. But I think that when you assay the Russian and the American producers for nobility, the American wins. For what have we been doing since October, 1929? We have been standing up to every wind that blew, and there have been some terrible ones. The great majority of Americans have yet to whimper in this storm. We haven't killed off any of our intellectuals, college professors, engineers or Great Thinkers, though some of them wouldn't have been missed. We haven't wrecked a piece of the vast equipment for making useful things and circulating money which we built up by working like slaves for 150 years. Our best efforts are now going into a fairly concerted attempt to make what we have and what we believe give better service for the greatest possible number of people. We have the factories, the natural resources, the great domestic free-trade market. Well, the growing movement toward the five-day week and six-hour day is aimed at passing the benefits of that equipment around to all of us.

"All these things seem to me to be evidences of a pretty noble attitude on the part of Americans, since you've begun an argument about nobility. We started out with a pretty noble concept—that every man is entitled to his chance in life. Whenever that concept has been in serious danger of being rubbed out by usurers and thieves, we've had a non-violent upheaval which has swung us back to the old ideal, or toward it at least. One of those things is, I believe, going on now. That we can put it over without hysterics, without running after fakers and fools and economic patent medicine men and without shooting a lot of people, seems to me to indicate the presence of some nobility somewhere in America.

YOUNG SMITHS TRY TO PATCH LOVE RIFT

By DOROTHY DUCAS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 29 (INS) The marital differences of the Alfred E. Smith Jrs. may be ironed out after all.

The eldest son of former Gov. Smith and his wife, who was Miss Bertha Gott of Syracuse, instead of seeking a legal seperation, as has been reported, are attempting a reconciliation, it appeared today.

NOT SEPARATED

Mrs. Smith before departing for an unnamed destination where it is believed a meeting with her husband has been arranged, issued an [illegible] statement to International News Service denying she and Mr. Smith had separated. [illegible] of the rift became known when Smith Jr. wrote several department stores [illegible] that he would not be responsible for his wife's [illegible].

"I have been ill," said Mrs. Smith. "I have been away from home in the hospital a good deal, and am still in poor health. But Mr. Smith and I have not separated. It's all untrue."

Young Mrs. Smith, who will be [illegible] Saturday, said she and her [illegible] are on the [illegible] Last June she [illegible] at St. [illegible] Hospital. The Smith family physician, Dr. Raymond T. Sullivan, was in attendance. The ex-[illegible] and his wife were frequent visitors.

MEET IN SECRET

After [illegible] operation, Mrs. Smith a few weeks ago suffered a heart attack and was attended by Dr. Samuel Lubash, whose offices are in the Smith [illegible] 5th ave.

News of the possible separation [illegible] statement from young Smith, who [illegible] left the city for an unknown destination. It is believed the two, who had been [illegible], will meet at a [illegible] their friends feel confident [illegible] peace will be made.

RED MURPHYS ARE DEFENDED

When you speak of "Red Murphy, the bootlegger," you tread on the innocent toes of some 98 innocent Red Murphys in [illegible], the Federal Court learned today when Atty. John J. Crehan sprang to the defence of the name.

Crehan was counsel for Francis P. Canney of Pelham st., South End, charged with transporting and possessing ale and whiskey at Revere o nSept. 20, and a dry agent in testimony said Canney was connected with a bootlegger named Red Murphy.

Objecting to the [illegible], Atty. Crehan told U. S. Commissioner Jenney that "there are probably 98 'Red' Murphys in Boston and suspicion is thrown upon them all."

The case was continued until tomorrow, with Canney held in $1000.

BOMB SQUAD TO GUARD BOSTON FROM 'REDS'

Tompkins of the state police was sent to the sceen to photograph them. State Detective John Stokes and other investigators were ordered to Hardwick.

CAN'T DESCRIBE THEM

Harper had such a short conversation with the two men who tried to buy the explosive that he did not obtain any detailed description of them.

Deputy Supt. Goode, directing the Boston department in the absence of Supt. Michael H. Crowley, sent out over the teletype today the following instructions:

Division commanders must understand, in connection with the recent bombing case in Worcester, that the utmost vigilance must be continued in the vicinity of the homes of public officials previously referred to, and at all public buildings within their divisions. See that officers performing this duty are properly equipped for any emergency."

COURTHOUSE GUARDED

Deputy Goode advised also that special protection be given at the courthouse in Pemberton sq., where a bomb was planted in 1917 with fatal results, and at all places where judges preside.

The bomb squad, he said, should be acquainted with all men of known anarchistic tendencies and should make it their duty to watch suspicious appearing persons with bundles.

"We can't afford to overlook any possibility," Goode said.

Meanwhile, the home of President Lowell in Quincy st., Cambridge, was under a 24-hour guard, with instructions given to officers of the Harvard campus by Maj. Charles R. Apted to question all strangers within the gates.

Arrest and, wherever possible, deportation of all alien radicals of suspected anarchistic tendency is expected to result from the bombin gof Judge Thayer's house.

VANZETTI'S LAST WORDS

A wholesale "red roundup," similar to those which followed the war, is being planned by the Department of Justice agents now working in Boston, Worcester, Providence and New York seeking a definite lead to the perpetrators of the latest in the long list of bomb outrages attributed to Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Not one or a half dozen but actually a large detail of federal government agents, is working on the case, it became known today. All of them are men who either worked directly in conjunction with inter-state developments in the famous case or who are in constant touch with radical activities.

They are men who have never forgotten the last three words spoken by Bartolomeo Vanzetti before he died in the electric chair at Charlestown. Those words were:

"Long live anarchy!"

The blast that demolished Judge Thayer's home Tuesday morinng was an echo of that cry and federal agents, together with state authorities, are apprehensive lest there be a re-echo at the homes of others prominent in the Sacco-Vanzetti prosecution. To prevent it, the wholesale roundup of radical reds will be undertaken.

A methodical and systematically progressive search for clues, and check of at-present intangible clues, were under way today.

Among the most promising was that revealed exclusively in yesterday's Boston Evening American—the disappearance from his Brooklyn, N. Y., home less than a month ago of a radical sympathizer with the executed men.

HUNTED BY AGENTS

This man, who formerly lived in the vicinity of Clinton and conducted a jewelry business, gave time and money to the cause of the condemned men. After vanishing from Brooklyn he is reported to have hired a garage in Olneyville, R. I., just outside Providence. Two Department of Justice men are seeking trace of him there.

Another was information to the effect that a man arrested recently on an arson charge in connection with the burning of a small hotel near Greenfield might know something about the case.

State police who went to the Franklin County Jail at Greenfield to question him learned that he was bailed out in $2000 last Sunday night. He was committed September 21. A search for him is under way. He is an alien and has no previous record.

Two New York-registered automobiles were still sought because the actions of their occupants in the vicinity of Worcester had been reported to police as being suspicious. The cars are registered to Bertram Kolmstead of 98 Bay View ave., Northport, N. Y., and George Knierson of 8918 Pauline pl., Glendale, N. Y.

Whether their registration numbers were noted after the bombing and how they happened to come under scrutiny, Supt. of Detectives William P. Finneran at Worcester would not say. He said their owners were wanted for questioning and police of New York and all New England states have been asked to be on watch for the cars.

ARMORED CAR GONE

There was no further trace of the New York car into which at South Braintree, yesterday, two machine guns and two shotguns were transferred from a Massachusetts auto, according to report made to police by a Brockton motorist.

Nor was there any trace of a car reported to have substituted Massachusetts plates for New York plates in the Blue Hills Reservation in Braintree. Police think the car may be the same in both instances; they have a description of it and a close watch is set in the district south of Boston, where live many who were prominent in the trial of the slayers.

One lead has apparently come against a stone wall. Mike Boda, friend of Sacco and Vanzetti, and linked by police with them in the murder for which they died, is still in prison in Italy according to a dispatch received today from Rome.

Efforts to locate his whereabouts were begun yesterday because he had been quoted in April as saying he planned to return to this country, from which he fled after the murder, to prove the "innocence" of his friends.

Out of Worcester this morning moved a detail of 150 state troopers on what is probably the most methodical search for clues ever conducted in this state. For once the phrase "fine tooth comb" is apt. They are moving along all highways out of Worcester, questioning residents, garage men, filling station proprietors and others, inquiring whether, within the 48 hours preceding the bombing, they noticed anything irregular or suspicious about anybody.

Still another detail of troopers is checking recent thefts of dynamite and also the licenses of those from whom explosives were stolen. Nearly 1000 pounds of dynamite have been stolen in Massachusetts within three months—an alarming figure when it is considered that only between 50 and 100 pounds were required to accomplish the widespread damage at Worcester.

The check of license-holders is in line with a suspicion that anarchists, masquerading under the guise fo legitimate contractors, may have procured permits to procure and store explosives.

One recent theft of dynamite is being given speecial attention. This occurred at Baldwinsville, 30 miles from Worcester, within a month. Ninety-two sticks were stolen, an amount consistent, in the opinion of experts, with the charge used at Worcester.

LAST THAYER THREAT

The last threat received by Judge Thayer was nearly two years ago, yet every threat letter he ever got is being investigated and its writing is being compared with samples of the writing of nearly 150 men who were under investigation by the department of justice when the Sacco-Vanzetti turmoil was at its height.

Investigation is being made of a Communist meeting held in Belmont Hall, Belmont st., Worcester, on the night before the bombing. The meeting ended a few hours before the blash shook the city and nearly killed the judge, his wife and a maid.

Circulars for the meeting were distributed throughout the city and several of these are in the hands of investigators.

The circulars are marked, "Organize and unite to beat back the savage attacks which are plunging you into unbearable hunger and misery."

Ostensibly they were circulars for the candidacy of William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for President.

PUBLIC AID ASKED

It was learned today, however, that investigators are anxious to discover whether Judge Thayer's name was mentioned during the meeting. It is considered significant that Belmont Hall, where the meeting was held, is only about one mile distant from Judge Thayer's home in Institute rd.

The condition of Judge Thayer's wife, who is suffering from scalp wounds and shock, was reported improved today at the Worcester Memorial Hospital. The judge himself has recovered from the depressing reactionary effects and, outwardly at least, is unperturbed by the total destruction of his home. Several movements for legislative action to reimburse him and his neighbors for their losses are gaining momentum.

Jean Ashe, maid in the Thayer home, was released yesterday from the Worcester City Hospital, quite recovered from an experience that left her seriously hysterical for many hours.

The investigators revealed that during the past few weeks a number of known radicals, estimated at between 200 and 300, made visits around Worcester, Boston and other large New England cities.

U. S. Department of Justice agents, working under Frank A. Chase, have been busy in Worcester for the past two days. It was learned that Chase has two skilled operatives, whose identities are being carefully concealed, working with him.

ROOSEVELT GOES TO PEOPLE; PEOPLE GO TO ROOSEVELT

No remote-control campaigner is Franklin D. Roosevelt. He goes out and tells 'em—personally. He likes a crowd. And look at the one that turned out to hear him speak at the State capitol in Phoenix, Ariz. They came from all over the State. Some crowd! Plainly the Governor was right in his glory surrounded by all these followers. He did not mind it a bit that these husky but good-natured policemen were needed to save him from too violent demonstrations of the enthusiastic throng while he spoke into the portable radio microphone that carried his words through the ether to a much larger crowd than the one in Phoenix. (International News Photos.)

THREAT CHARGE OF MRS. COHEN CALLED FALSE

Louis Weiss, rebuttal witness in the disbarment trial of Max Waldo Cohen, Boston attorney before Judge Field in Supreme Court today, denied he had ever threatened to "get" Cohen, as Cohen's wife and son had testified at a previous hearing.

After Weiss' testimony, Hubert C. Thompson, counsel for Cohen, requested a continuance until next Wednesday which was granted.

Cohen's disbarment is sought by William H. Hitchcock, special commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court to investigate alleged frauds in connection with auto insurance claims.

Mrs. Cohen had testified that Weiss, a former partner of Israel Kango, a disbarred attorney, went to her home last August, and in the presence of her son, waved papers in her face and demanded money.

"Your husband has got to give me money," Weiss was alleged to have said. "I've got him in the hollow of my hand. I disbarred Kango, and I'll disbar him."

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Broadway Merry-Go-Round!

And off you go, folks. On the Broadway Merry-Go-Round' Now, I've pointed out to you on these weekly little whirlabouts, the pretty gals in their pretty clothes—showgirls of Broadway, out of work, penniless, roomless. I tried to do something for them, as you recall, and found suddenly they had something they called pride. There are other little girls on Broadway — and from one of them I've received this letter: "We, the starving stenographers and secretaries, are still waiting to see some helpful suggestion regarding our welfare, appear in your column. We have been (and are still being) ousted, too, from our hotels, boarding and rooming houses, and thus far, no kindly newspaperman or hotelman has raised a sheltering hand in our direction. It's true something should be done for our out-of-work Broadway sisters, whose number is increasing daily, but our number is increasing, too. If you would only stop for a few minutes at two or three employment agencies and observe our strained, and in most cases, panic-stricken faces—many as young as the little show girls you mention, surely you would delve into a far corner of your kindly heart and find a spark of sympathy. Believe me, if we whom Wall Street has so indifferently cast out, were to join hands, we would make a double daisy chain encircling all Manhattan — and most of Westchester. October is approaching, Mr. Sobol—and it's going to be cold, horribly cold. Can someone help us?"

And here it is early Monday morning—3:30—and only a few hardy spirits still remain in the Village Grove Nut Club listening to Joe Lewis' goofy routine. One couple interests me. A blonde, pale-faced lass, with rather blank eyes and a young gent who can't seem to keep his hands off her. She doesn't spurn his attentions—in fact, she smiles—but she evidences no particular warmth. And yet, Broadway understands, the two are very much in love with each other —and it's a strange romance for the lad is Jack Stanley Morris, who only the other day eloped with Jean Coventry, Hollywood revue beauty, and is now being rapidly unwed—and the gal is Faith Bacon, nudist exponent and star of the Hollywood revue. And there is another little blonde who wanders across our path so frequently it's difficult to avoid her. Little Norma Taylor, ex-Guinan and ex-Follies beauty, who has suddenly turned serious and is now a full-fledged leading lady in the plays they give at the Cherry Lane Theatre in the Village. Just what that means I don't know, but I seem to recall vaguely that the torch-singer Helen Morgan was once a Grand Guignol player with her name in big letters on the program which reminds me that I watched Helen at a radio rehearsal yesterday afternoon. She sang "Half-Caste Woman" and after she was finished, she came back to where we were, weeping bitterly—silly sentimentalist.

An attractive woman over there if you'll just follow where I'm pointing. That is Mme. Frances Alda, erstwhile operatic star, and now I learn she's moving into the Waldorf to open a voice culture school and shortly, according to something I read in Aircaster's column, she's going on the air with Meyer Davis, but that's neither here nor there. Looking at her as she waves to you cheerfully, you wouldn't think that she's lost her entire fortune, something like $360,000, in bad investments and is now starting all over again, undiscouraged. And there's blonde Dorothy Hall—one of our better young actresses—a baby-voiced mime, who craves emotional roles and does well in them. Yesterday's papers told you she and handsome Neal Andrews were parting, amicably, and I for one am sorry, although my duties as a reporter compelled me to inform you months ago that the break was coming. Both Neal and Dorothy protested at the time that it wasn't so—but evidently it was—and yet I know that Andrews is still devoted to the handsome little Dorothy.

Whether or not it's an optimistic indication, I don't know, but a few furrier friends of mine who cater to our better known people, inform me that the girls are flocking in for fur coats—of the expensive type—the preference being for mink and sable. And there's one of the choice comics of the Big Street—Fred Allen, a lad of intelligence and a student of comic values. Queer fellow, having just signed a handsome radio contract, he refuses to listen to offers to appear in a show. The Lew Brown-Ray Henderson group has been haunting him night and day, trying to entice him into its field but the chap holds out stubbornly, insisting that he can only do one thing at a time—and do it right, which is a lesson many of us might learn who try to do everything and fumble at all of them. You're looking at petite Mary Hay, now, ladies and gentlemen, and you had better get a good look at her, for Saturday she sails on the De Grasse for Paree to start her proceedings for a divorce from the ex-newspaperman, David Bath. And I wonder what that little fellow, Frank Silver, thinks about, as he studies the group of song writers, busy chattering about their successes or potential successes, as they pick at their teeth with toothpicks from Lindy's. An unobtrusive chap this Silver and yet years ago he rode the crest high and pretty, as the co-author of a crazy ditty that happened to tickle the public—"Yes, We Have No Bananas." I don't know that he has done anything since of any account —but, at least, he'll be able to gather his grandchildren around his knees some day and tell them, "Look. You don't even know who I was. I wrote the most widely discussed and hated song of my time."

Look. There's Buddy Rogers again. Handsome lad, but I wish he wouldn't wear those extremely cut suits—I know Jimmy Walker wears them—but I never liked them on Jimmy either. Somewhere in my office there's a wire from Buddy that reads: "Despite offers of $6000 weekly to take my band on one nighters in addition to radio commercial accounts and offers to appear at prominent hotels, I am disbanding my orchestra October 1 to return to the Coast to sign with either Metro or Columbia for a series of film features. May appear also in next Pickford or Clara Bow film. Am giving up lucrative opportunities in East to disprove statements from some sources that I flopped in films." Here we are just skimming by Manhattan's handsomest theater—the Roxy. I can remember the great fuss raised about this house when the plans for its construction were first announced—there was talk at the time that it might seat 10,000 people, a slight exaggeration, of course—its actual capacity is 6200, giving it when full a population greater than many a full-fledged town. And now, they're changing the name—in fact, I was invited to attend a tea at the St. Moritz yesterday afternoon when Managing Director Frank Cambria was to make the announcement, which he may have already done as far as I know. Personally, Roxy has a nice round personal sound, but then it's not my theater, and, therefore none of my business.

A little gal of society is Gloria Gould who only a few years ago decided that Park ave. and its teas and Southampton and its bores were something she was going to put behind her. She wanted a career—preferably connected with the theater, so she became for a time the manager of a small Broadway movie house and then she sponsored a little theater movement and was at one time considering taking the leading part in a dramatic production. Now she's married to Wallace Barker and here she is back with us after months abroad—no longer eager for a career, her only plans being to be a good wife and mother according to her own statement. And if certain other women who insist upon being connected with the theater would only develop the same idea—they'd certainly be happier—and the theater, take it from me, much better off. See you next week.

Norma Talmadge Signed With George Jessel for Leads in New Film

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1932, By Universal Service, Inc.

Harriet Parsons

Los Angeles, Sept. 29—That persistent rumor of a Norma Talmadge-George Jessel film is about to become a reality. Norma and George signed yesterday to co-star in John Clein's independent screen production of the European success, "Di Wunderbar." Don Alvarado has also been signed for a tango dancer role.

The film will follow the original Hungarian drama rather than the American revue version presented by Al Jolson. Production will get under way in Hollywood about November 15.

Norma has long been awaiting a suitable vehicle for a screen comeback. She and Jessel have scored such a success on their extended personal appearance tour that a co-starring film seems like a box office natural for them. Interesting that Jolson won film fame when he made "The Jazz Singer" after Jessel turned down the chance to appear in the pioneer talkie version of his stage success. Now Jessel steps into Al's shoes in "Wonderbar."

Shocker Planned

Remember "The Lost World," strange prehistoric tale by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle which depicted a dinosaur romping about the streets of London? Watterson Rothacker owned the book, worked on it for ten years and finally produced it for First National release with Bessie Love, Lloyd Hughes, Wally Beery and Lewis Stone. "Watty," who is wandering about Europe, has just been asked to cut his trip short, come back and produce "War of the Worlds" for Paramount. It's a weird novel by H. G. Wells depicting a martian invasion of the earth, and Para plans to make it the most fantastic shocker of all time.

An Original Tale

Bill Boyd's next for Radio will be an original by Ben Markson. Ben is the clever ex-newspaper chap who co-authored "Is My Face Red" and collaborated on the adaptation and dialogue for "What Price Hollywood" and "Phantom Fame." Immediately after he finished "Rackety Rax" for Fox Radio called him back and gave him a contract for the Boyd yarn. Studio is planning to team him with Casey Robinson who'll work with him on the story and probably direct it also. Merian Cooper will produce.

* * *

Studio Gossip

Traveling the underground is a rumor to the effect that Helen Cohan, daughter of George M., is secretly wedded to one of the weary-footed lads who performed in the last Santa Monica dance marathon. You'll remember her in "Lightnin'" opposite Will Rogers. Meanwhile, Papa George is blasting the ears of the N. Y. press with tirades anent Hollywood. Suppose he's annoyed about the way the "Phantom President" ads are playing up Jimmy Durante? Don Cook goes back to First National to be in "Common Ground," the Chatterton picture.

Heard and Overheard

Leila Hymans

Nancy Carroll and Frances Dee are set for "A Good Thing," the Lawrence Hazzard play which Norman Taurog is directing for Paramount. Herbert Marshall finishes "Evenings for Sale" and departs Londonwards next week to appear on the stage with wife Edna Best in "Another Language." The day after Leila Hyams' M-G-M contract rolled over and died she started on "Island of Lost Souls" for Para. Alan Dwan has finished his picture for British International and signed for three more. Told you not to expect Alan home for some time.

Will Write "Style"

Adela Rogers Hyland had just one hour in which to talk terms with Eddie Small at United Artists before leaving for New York. But it was a profitable hour for Adela signed to do the original story for "Style" which Small and Goetz are producing at U. A. She'll write it in New York. "Style" will feature Lilyan Tashman and it is planned to bring over various famed mannequins from Europe to dress up the film. Harry Goetz returned to New York last night. He came out to assist in negotiating the Reliance-United Artists deal.

Playgoers Advertising for Seats Sets New Record for the Legitimate

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Reports which have been sweeping the country that Boston has become the nation's high spot in theatrical productions, seems to be well founded. If no other evidence were demanded—or even asked for—the fact stands, that for several days the newspapers have been carrying ads by playgoers seeking the purchase from other, and more fortunate box office patrons, of seats for any of the performances of "Reunion in Vienna." In 25 years of news reporting on the theater front, this writer has never discovered a situation to match it. Occasionally, holders of Symphony Orchestra seats have been asked in the public prints to re-sell at a premium. But not in recent years.

New Noel Coward Play to Open in December

With all the facts and figures as tabulated at the Plymouth Theater, "Reunion in Vienna" will pass into local history on Saturday night as the town's most exciting experience with plain and unvarnished comedy. The sensational New York run of the piece has undoubtedly had its effect; the Theater Guild's determination to limit Boston to two weeks also brought about some considerable reaction in lively box office interest. As it happens, very few of the major cities of the country will see "Reunion in Vienna." It will be seen only in the East. Early in December, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will forbear further road excursions and go into rehearsal with Noel Coward in his new play, "Design for Living." This attraction will naturally make its own test of endurance in New York.

* * *

NO NEW JOKES—President Hoover, in congratulating Weber and Fields upon their 50th anniversary as comedians, reminds them that what the country needs is a new joke. Ed Wynn rises to remark that there can be no new joke, maintaining that there are only 100 original gags, and every so-called new joke is only a variation of one of the first hundred.

Birthday Party

Fully as interesting as any of the adults in "The Green Pastures" are the "cherubs"—the little winged pickaninny angels who flit about in Heaven and keep their angel mothers busy guarding them from the pitfalls of the flesh. But the cherubs are very earnest young actors and they hold a deep and sincere veneration for Richard B. Harrison, who plays the Lawd and who, likewise, in fatherly fashion, bestows upon them friendly attention. As happens once a year in every man's life, today is the Lawd's birthday, and the cherubs are moving into a little private celebration of the event on their own account. They are giving Mr. Harrison a fish fry at the People's Church, corner of Camden and Tremont sts. A neatly inscribed invitation in childish hand has reached this desk. It is autographed by the committee, which is made up of Gloria Swanson Bumgarden, Philistine Bumgarden and Ruby Davis. Mr. Harrison today turns 68.

Symphony Soon

In another week the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be in full swing on its 52d season. Dr. Serge Koussevitzky arrived yesterday in New York from a summer in Europe. The orchestra will be immediately assembled for rehearsal of the opening program on Friday, October 7. During vacation in Europe, Mr. Koussevitzky remained relatively idle. Except for one concert, which he conducted for the Vienna Philharmonic on June 14, he made no public appearances. As usual, during the coming season the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will comprise 24 concerts. There will, however, be two shorter series of six concerts on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, the Monday presentations starting on November 7 and the Tuesday on November 22.

Pros and Cons of Cinema Prize Winners Take the Spotlight

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Page Conrad Nagel! As the genius of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, he could bring expert evidence to bear on a fan discussion, apparently started by the return of "Grand Hotel" to the local screen. The pros and cons of "bests" of the year are the moot points, albeit the Academy, which annually makes the coveted awards, will not make known its findings for quite a long time.

Fan opinion, in the meantime, may have free range in judging pictures and performances released during the film year which ended last July 31. "Grand Hotel" seems the leading candidate for the honor of being adjudged the best production out of Hollywood. Apparently this M-G-M masterpiece was far from exhausting its box office appeal during its eight-week run at the Majestic, for it has done splendidly the past two weeks at the State and is likely to repeat at Loew's Orpheum, where it opens tomorrow.

Among the women, Helen Hayes holds the cards, seemingly, due to her remarkable characterization of "Madelon Claudet." Few actresses can reach that lady's pinnacle in emotional power in portraying any age. At the moment, the only comparison that comes to mind is the work of Irene Dunne in "Back Street." This picture, however, came to public view after the beginning of the new film year, so the able Miss Dunne's achievement must hang upon the hook until another year is set down upon the cinematic records.

Of the men, Lionel Barrymore and Paul Muni take the lead. Some select the scion of the Royal Family because of his Gringelein in "Grand Hotel"; others think his work in "Guilty Hands" was greater. Muni, of course, is named for his performance in "Scarface." Walter Huston is a notable factor; for instance, his banker in "American Madness." Hobart Bosworth's "Miracle Man" was another feat of distinction.

Mention of "Grand Hotel" makes us think of that other issue, unsettled so far as the fans go—did Garbo surpass Crawford in this photodrama? Or does Joan best the great Greta?

It all makes good grist for the hopper of argument.

AGE IS ETERNALLY ON THE TRAIL OF YOUTH

Norma Shearer and Clark Gable are talking it over with Tad Alexander standing by. The trio are here seen in one of the situations in the photoplay, "Strange Interlude," based on the Eugene O'Neill drama. The film has its premiere at the Majestic next Monday night.

Music View

Aaron Richmond, a leader in bringing musical artists to Boston, announces some important events for the coming season. He states that the outlook is bright, and among his own features will be Vittorio Podrecca's Teatro dei Piccoli, Sicilian marionette theater. Mary Wigman, foremost dancer of the day, will appear in a number of New England recitals. A series of four Saturday morning recitals to be known as "musical travelogues," will be given by Guy Maier, late of the Maier-Pattison two-piano team.

The Society of Ancient Instruments, an ensemble which plays music of the 17th and 18th centuries will be presented.

HOOVER HAS BIG MARGIN IN N. E.

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Sept. 29 (US)—At the rate President Hoover is now going he will have New England solidly safe within another week, or two.

Latest returns from that area in the nationwide presidential post card poll of the Boston Evening American, in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States show five of those six states with comfortably safe percentages for the Republican candidate.

The sixth state, Rhode Island, where Hoover has been showing steady gains, is now so near the 60 per cent safety line that another week's returns may put him across.

At no time since the tabulation of poll returns started six weeks ago has Governor Roosevelt shown any indication of checking the Hoover gains in this state, which was one of the two outside of the south to go Democratic in 1928. Hoover holds 59 per cent with 1548 votes on record from Rhode Island. He has a 264 majority.

Massachusetts, the one other state outside of Dixie to go Democratic four years ago, appears more definitely lost to Roosevelt than any other state where Hoover is in the lead. The Bay State is giving Hoover 69 per cent of its vote with 8482 ballots tabulated.

Egyptian Room to Open for 5th Year

Tonight marks the formal opening of the Egyptian Room at the Hotel Brunswick. This is the fifth edition of Boston's supper room, opened 15 years ago. L. C. Prior is manager. Hangings are of silver, gold and white, with a smart motif of jet black. Accessories are in silver and black glass, and the entire effect holds a modified Egyptian note.

Riseman's augmented orchestra and Harold Phillips and a company of 30 will offer smart entertainment.

Back Bay Business Leaders Lay Plans

The first fall meeting of the Back Bay District Association was held at the Hotel Westminster last night. E. J. Sangor, the president, led the discussion of plans to stimulate business in this section Irwin Spear, the advertising manager of the Paine Furniture Co., has been appointed publicity director.

Swordfish Hauls Man Far Out to Sea

San Diego, Sept. 29 (AP)—A swordfish took a fisherman for a ride. Tommy Luz, in a rowboat, tried to haul in the harpooned fish, but the fish did the hauling.

When Luz finally cut loose his line he was five miles at sea. A rescue party found him clinging to a harbor marker.

850-Lb. Swordfish Caught at Halifax

Halifax, Sept. 29 (AP)—A swordfish weighing 850 pounds, the largest remembered by fishermen in this old clearing house, was caught today by C. Gorham and his son off the mouth of Halifax Harbor.

How Nominees Stand In Nation-Wide Poll

Washington, Sept. 29—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading.

In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

MEDFORD TRUST BOARD TO PAY BAD DEBTS

An agreement regarding valuation of the bad debts of the closed Medford Trust Co. was reached today between defense counsel and the state in the suit of the bank commissioner against the directors to hold them liable for losses.

The agreement brought the state's case virtually to an end, and a recess of 10 days will be given the defense counsel to prepare its case.

The defendants agreed that whatever the master finds is the amount required to liquidate the bad debts, he may assess the directors for that amount, provided he finds it proper to assess them at all.

Most of the defendants have signed the agreement and the rest, including Edwin T. McKnight, president of the closed bank, are expected to sign late today.

When today's session opened before Charles W. Blood, the master, the defense presented a suggested agreement which Robert T. Bushnell, counsel for the bank commissioner, rejected. The other agreement was then drawn up.

TOBIN EASY WINNER

Returns on the vote cast for Democratic State Committeemen in the fifth senatorial district, comprising Wards 9, 10 and 11 of Roxbury and Jamaica Plain, reveal that School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin was elected over Samuel Taylor, 11,341 to 1982. As a result Tobin will be the delegate from that district to the coming state convention.

HEARN FOR COUNCIL

It is rumored that Rep. William Hearn of East Boston, who was defeated in the recent primaries after holding office for a dozen years, will be a candidate for City Council next year.

LOSERS FOR COUNCIL

A movement is now under way to bring together all the candidates who met defeat in the recent campaign for Democratic nomination to the Legislature in Ward 18, Hyde Park, Mattapan and Roslindale, and to have them draw lots to decide which will be a candidate for City Council next year. Promoters of the proposed campaign believe an organized opposition can defeat City Councillor Clement A. Norton.

WOMAN LEADER BOOMED

Friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Montgomery of South Boston are urging her to be a candidate for the school committee next year in opposition to Mrs. Elizabeth W. Pigeon of East Boston. Mrs. Montgomery is popular in the peninsula district and is an active member of the Al Smith Club.

INGALLS HOLDS BABY

Rep. Alfred W. Ingalls of Lynn should get many mothers' votes when he runs for office again as a result of the manner in which he went to the rescue of a young matron at the ballot law hearing in the Ferry case. The mother had an infant of three months in her arms when she was asked to write her name and address on a piece of paper, Ingalls gallantly leaned over and said, "I'll hold your baby for you, madam."

"BLIND" SIGNERS

Many men and women who testified in the Doherty and Ferry cases have been "joshed" to a farethe-well by friends. Almost without exception these persons testified they did not know what the papers were when they signed for prohibition candidate and that if they had known they wouldn't have signed. And yet "wet" Congressmen have been voting "dry" for years.

Malden Vote Stands

Recount of Republican votes for representative in Malden failed to make any change. Representatives John V. Kimball and Burt Dewar are renominated.
